236-Acre Project Near Winston Knolls Planned

by MARILYN HEISER

Centex Homes Corp. Wednesday presented a preannexation plan to develop 236 acres west of the Winston Knolls subdivision along Algonquin and Freeman roads in Hoffman Estates.

The presentation was made in a public hearing before the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission.

The proposed subdivision would contain three zoning classifications: single-family detached, ownership townhouses, and commercial. Plans call for approximately 325 single-family houses and 618 townhouses. Over-all density in the project will be four units an acre.

The layout of the development calls for single-family homes in the north end of the project, townhouses immediately southeast and southwest, and commercial uses in the far south near the intersection of Algonquin and Freeman roads.

A COMMUNITY CENTER with a swimming pool and possibly tennis courts, available for use by residents of the subdivision, will be located in the area of the townhouses.

Centex estimates total resident population at 3,837. Of these, 1,285 will be school-age children. Because the project crosses the boundaries of Palatine and Barrington townships, 705 children will attend elementary school Dist. 4 and High School Dist. 224 in Barrington Township, and 580 will attend Elementary School Dist. 15 and High School Dist. 211 in Palatine Township.

The corporation plans to dedicate two elementary school parks to the school districts and several park sites to the Park District.

Centex drawings for the townhouses call for 75 per cent of the units to have three and four bedrooms. Richard Reagan, chairman of the plan commission, said that under R-4A zoning, the classification Centex is asking for, no more than 40 per cent of the units can have three bedrooms, let alone four.

He asked if Centex will request a special-use variance for the additional bedrooms in the townhouses.

OTHER QUESTIONS to be taken up when the hearing continues August 9 were raised by the Plan Commission and members of the audience. They include the following:

—Will there be an adequate water supply and water pressure? What about flooding problems and water runoff?

—Are there enough spaces for guest parking?

—Are sewage facilities adequate?

—Can the additional children be handled by the four school districts?

—Will the additional traffic on Algonquin and Freeman roads require road improvements and new traffic lights?

—Can the Palatine Rural Fire District adequately protect the residents?

The families in the project will be paying taxes to several taxing bodies, including the park district and the school districts. The plan commission asked if residents will be made aware of these different taxing bodies and the varying school districts children will attend.

Concern was also voiced over the design of single-family detached homes being planned. Centex said the project will use the same basic five models now being sold in the Winston Knolls subdivision.

The next pre-annexation hearing will be held at 8 p.m., at the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, 1200 Gannon Dr. Centex was asked to produce evidence answering the questions raised Wednesday.

HE CARES FOR children, no matter how retarded. Art Clausen of Hoffman Estates has worked part-time for Marklund Home for the Retarded in Bloomingdale for about a year. The Conant High School student helps with the 60 children at the home, all of whom are "profoundly retarded" and many of whom will die before they are out of infancy.

Relief Soon For Rte. 53 Motorists

Relief is on the way for Ill. Rte. 53 motorists with the new Interstate-90 scheduled to open sometime in September.

James Pitz of the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday that construction was on schedule and predicted the September target date would be met, barring bad weather. He said work had been delayed by the cement masons strike, but paving has now resumed.

The only work remaining is some paving and shoulder work on the stretch between Irving Park Road and Devon Avenue. When this work is finished, the highway will connect the Eisenhower Expressway with the Northwest Tollway. Drivers will no longer be forced to use the narrow, two-lane Rte. 53.

No figures were immediately available on the total cost of the construction project because it has gone on for so many years. Pitz said the Irving Park Road to Devon Avenue section cost $4 million.

Improvements for Rte. 53 call for the construction of a new roadway paralleling the present road, south of the Northwest Tollway, but not part of the existing Rte. 53. This freeway will be named Rte. 53 and the present road will be renamed.

NORTH OF THE Northwest Tollway, construction on the new roadway has been completed to Dundee Road on what is called Ill. Rte. 53. Pitz said that this section of highway may be given a U. S. route number in the future.

Construction started in 1960. Originally the state was only planning to improve Rte. 53. It was only after construction started that the state began thinking of putting in an interstate route.

The first stage of construction began between Algonquin and Kirchoff roads in 1960 and took about two years to finish. The construction crews then moved to the area between Kirchoff and Rand roads. By 1969 the entire stretch between Algonquin and Dundee roads was completed.

Because the first plan was for improvement to an existing state road, modifications had to be made to the construction to convert it to a new interstate route. Bridges were redesigned to make them waterproof. Thicker concrete had to be poured to handle the heavier traffic load. When finished, the concrete on I-90 should have a 20-year lifespan.

Auto In Collision With Squad Car

A Schaumburg Police Department patrol car responding to an emergency request for assistance from another squad car was involved in an accident at 9:23 a.m. yesterday at Higgins and Meacham roads.

The squad car, driven by Patrolman James Kuzel, 28, was southbound on Meacham, turning left to proceed eastbound on Higgins Road, with its siren blowing and lights flashing, said State Trooper G. L. Leming. A northbound auto driven by Mrs. Dorothy Kanehl, 38, of Hanover Park, collided with the patrol car at the intersection, said Leming.

Mrs. Kanehl was charged with failure to yield to an emergency vehicle. She is to answer the summons Sept. 27 in Mount Prospect branch of the Circuit Court, said Leming.

Indict Palatine Builder

by STEVE BROWN

A Palatine man was among more than a dozen Chicago area contractors and government officials indicted by a federal grand jury on a variety of charges including bribery.

Indicted on two counts of bribery was Royal R. Faubion, 1106 Pepper Tree Dr. Faubion was president and general manager of the Chicago division of Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. when the alleged offenses occurred.

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Chicago said the indictment alleges that Faubion bribed Lawrence E. Abbott, 54, an employee of the Federal Housing Administration, on May 17 and July 27, 1971 in an effort to gain Abbott's approval for Kaufman and Broad development plans.

FAUBION is serving as president of American Continental Homes, a subsidiary of American Finance Corp.

Kaufman and Broad officials in Los Angeles said they were not aware what development may have been involved in the alleged bribe incident.

Company officials stressed that they cooperated fully with the Federal Bureau of Investigation probe into the matter. They also stated that neither Kaufman and Broad nor any of its subsidiaries were named in the indictment.

Faubion joined Kaufman and Broad in 1969. He was formerly a vice president for Cambrom-Kendall, a Louisville building company.

The federal indictment alleges Faubion gave Abbott $800, three cases of liquor and a money clip in the two bribery incidents.

BARRINGTON SQUARE in Hoffman Estates, Pepper Tree Farms and Heatherlea are among the local Kaufman and Broad developments.

The company is recognized as one of the largest home builders in the Chicago area.

Another former Kaufman and Broad official, Maurice Sanderman of Highland Park, was also indicted for bribery.

Abbott and the three other indicted FHA officials have been suspended without pay.

Art's Special Kind Of Job

by WANDALYN RICE

Most of the children Art Clausen works with will never walk, never utter an intelligible word and will die before they are out of infancy.

But nevertheless the 17-year-old Hoffman Estates boy speaks of them with obvious fondness.

"The first day I worked here, I really didn't like it," he said. "That night I called to say I wouldn't be back and nobody answered the phone. So I came back and the second day was different. There was a little girl named Susie who started to respond to me and after that I had a reason to come back."

Clausen has spent about a year working at the Marklund Home for the Retarded in Bloomingdale, first as an unpaid volunteer and now as a nurse's aide. He changes diapers and generally helps with the children, most of whom are bedridden and hopelessly retarded.

AMONG THE children on a recent afternoon was a 12-day-old infant who was born with a large portion of the brain exposed. The infant was expected to die.

Another was Wanda, an 11-year-old hydrocephalic, her body still small enough to fit in an infant's crib and her head misshapen. She had not been expected to live beyond three months, and each day brings her closer to death.

About 50 per cent of the children brought to Marklund die and the rest generally progress to other institutions as they grow older. Clausen, along with the rest of the paid staff of 55 and 70 volunteers, accepts the reality of the children's plight.

"I've never been here when a child has died," he said. "but I've left one day and come back another and the child's been gone. It's something you live with."

Clausen decided to go to work at Marklund last summer because "I wanted to do something useful one summer before I had to go to work. Last summer was a good one because I didn't need the money."

He made inquiries at several homes and schools for retarded children, a field he was interested in because he has a brother who is retarded.

FINALLY he settled on Marklund, where he is the only man on the staff except for director Stan Haverkamp. This year he became a nurse's aide so he could draw a salary for the work.

"The work is hard and I'm sure I could get a job that would be easier and pay more," he admits, "but every day when I get in the car to go home I think of things that have happened during the day and feel good. That makes it worth it."

Haverkamp frankly admits he is amazed by the boy's dedication. "He wanted to volunteer last year and I wanted to also put him on the maintenance staff so I could pay him something. I had to fight with him to give him money," he said.

This year, Clausen is working for money, but, Haverkamp said, has cut back his working hours and his paycheck because "my family needs me."

"This kid is completely selfless," Haverkamp said. "I've never seen one like him."

CLAUSEN said he doesn't think he will make a career of working with the retarded, though he has thought about it. "My real interest is journalism," he said.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Sen. Thomas Eagleton called a charge by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson that Eagleton had been arrested for drunken and reckless driving a lie, and said he would remain on the Democratic presidential ticket with Sen. George McGovern. McGovern said he would not be stampeded into replacing his vice presidential running mate.

The Commerce Department said its leading economic indicators rose by nearly 2 per cent during the past two months, indicating the current economic expansion will continue strong for at least the next 18 months.

The White House announced that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York will place President Nixon's name in nomination for a second term at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach next month.

President Nixon said U.S. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim had been duped by Communist propaganda into criticizing the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam without raising one word of protest against North Vietnam's invasion of the South. It was the toughest administration criticism yet of Waldheim.

Actress Jane Fonda arrived in New York from Hanoi. Her press agent has scheduled a news conference for this morning.

The World

The U.S. urged immediate discussion of a cease-fire at the Paris peace talks as the key to peace in Indochina as well as arrangements for the release of American prisoners of war. The Communists rejected the call.

U. S. Challenger Bobby Fischer, playing before television cameras, won the eighth game of the world chess championship. The win put Fischer two points ahead of Boris Spassky. The score is 5 to 3.

The War

South Vietnamese paratroopers pulled out of Quang Tri city's walled Citadel, abandoning the fortress to Communists until marine replacements can move in. Forty miles to the south, Communist units overran two firebases, key links in the defense line protecting the former imperial capital of Hue.

The State

An attorney for Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's unelected delegation asked for an injunction to prevent a challenge delegation headed by Chicago Ald. William Singer from attending the Illinois Democratic Caucus Aug. 5.

Daniel Walker, Democratic candidate for governor, announced that Dr. John Mathis, who was defeated by Gov. Richard Ogilvie for the Republican nomination, would serve as chairman of the Independent Republican Citizens Committee to Elect Daniel Walker.

Mass Transit Systems Debated

City Hits 'Interference' With CTA

by ANNE SLAVICEK
Alternative plans for a mass transportation system in the Chicago Metropolitan area were debated yesterday before a subcommittee of the state commission for economic development.
The hearings were dampened shortly before noon when a representative of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley said the city opposes state interference with the Chicago Transit Authority (CTA) and other mass transportation within the metropolitan area.
The city's opposition brought additional importance to one of the three proposed legislative bills which would establish a suburban area transportation system excluding the City of Chicago.
The commission heard testimony from state and federal officials, commuter railroad companies, the City of Chicago and CTA, suburban bus firms, a coalition of suburban governments and the North-eastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC). Various citizens' groups, business firms and organizations of businessmen also testified before the subcommittee.

The subcommittee will make recommendations to the governor and the state legislature on plans for a unified mass transportation system in the Chicago metropolitan area.
State Rep. Paul Randolph, R-Chicago, who chaired the meeting, is the chief sponsor of one of the three bills proposing a solution to the mass transportation problem.
The majority of those who testified supported Randolph's bill for a Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System (CMATS).
The bill calls for one agency to supervise mass transportation within the six-county metropolitan area.
STATE REP. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and State Rep. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, testified on behalf of their two bills which are alternative solutions to the area's mass transit problems.
Schlickman's proposal would create a Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA) to expand the CTA into the suburban area. He called for use of NIPC as the planning agency for mass transportation.

Glass, whose bill would create the Suburban Mass Transportation Authority (SMTA), said he feels unification in the suburban area must be achieved before the suburbs can join with the CTA for an area-wide system.
Rep. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, speaker of the Illinois House, came out in support of the consolidation of all mass transit operations in the metropolitan area under a single authority. Blair declined to endorse any of the three existing bills, however.
Blair's testimony, along with comments from others, seemed to indicate that a consolidated bill incorporating the best features of all three proposals may be introduced when the legislature reconvenes.
Alan Boyd, president of the Illinois Central R.R., endorsed the CMATS proposal on behalf of all six commuter railroads serving the Chicago area.
Boyd said the railroads would not oppose changes in the CMATS plan, such as altering means to finance the agency.
E. F. BOSLEY, representing suburban bus firms, recommended utilizing the existing mass transit districts and reimbursing individual carriers for their losses. He said the bus firms "do not want to be forced out of private business."
George Karambles, CTA operational manager, expressed concern that none of the proposed legislation has provided an adequate means of financing an area mass transit system.
Howell J. Holloman, president of the Village of Lombard, said suburban communities on a subcommittee of the Council of Governments of Cook County are supporting the SMTA bill. He said without equality of representation for both the city and the suburbs in any mass transit governing agency, "there can be no successful marriage."

Pikarsky said all proposals to date would take control of the CTA and other mass transit agencies away from local citizens and place it with the state.
Mass transit "is a local and regional function and is not a prerogative of the state," he said. He called for federal and state revenue and matching funds as well as financial commitments from local government to finance mass transportation.
"Chicago is the only local unit of government that has accepted its financial responsibility for assistance to public transportation," he said.

Taxpayers May Get Bigger Child Care Break

Employed taxpayers with child care expenses may get a bigger tax break in 1972, according to Roger C. Beck, district director of Internal Revenue Service for the northern Illinois area.
The Revenue Act of 1971 has greatly liberalized the deduction for the care of children, disabled dependents and disabled spouses. Beginning in 1972, taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes of $18,000 or less may be able to deduct up to $400 per month for household and dependent care expenses.
The deduction is reduced 50 cents for each dollar of income more than $18,000. For example, a taxpayer with an adjusted gross income of $20,000 would be limited to $300 (the maximum annual deduction of $400 less one-half of $2,000).
To qualify, a taxpayer must be employed and provide more than half the cost of maintaining a household for a dependent child under 15, a disabled dependent of any age, or a disabled spouse, Beck added.
FOR THE FIRST TIME, household expenses incurred to permit the taxpayer to be gainfully employed may also be deducted. For example, amounts paid for the services of a maid, cook or other domestic help can qualify.
Expenses incurred outside the home for the care of a child under 15 (as, for example, in a day care center) may also qualify. However, expenses outside the home are limited to $200 per month for one child, $300 for two children or $400 for three or more children.
However, these expenses shall not include educational expenses incurred for a child in the first or higher grade.
If a deduction is claimed for the care of a disabled dependent, the deduction must be reduced by the amount by which the total of the dependent's adjusted gross income and any nontaxable disability payment he receives exceeds $750. In the case of a disabled spouse, the expenses must be reduced by nontaxable disability payments.
As under the old law, a deduction may not be taken for payments to anyone who could be your dependent.
Taxpayers must itemize deductions in order to claim child care expenses. As with all itemized deductions, good records must be kept and expenses documented.

New Hanrahan Trial Twist

Black Panther In Raid May Have Been Informer

CHICAGO (UPI) — An attorney defending police raiders hinted Thursday that one of the Black Panthers in the weapons raid case may have been a police informer.
Attorney John P. Coughlin alluded in court to reports that information may have been fed to police by Panther Louis Truelock, the only occupant of the raided apartment to have signed a statement admitting he fired shots at police.
Survivors of the pre-dawn Dec. 4, 1969 raid have charged that an informant tipped police to an arms cache in the West Side apartment, but this was the first time attorneys for police have acknowledged the possibility.
THE SUGGESTION added a new dimension to the trial of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan and 13 codefendants.
The defendants are charged with conspiracy to alter and conceal evidence about the raid in which Panther leaders Mark Clark and Fred Hampton were killed. Four of the seven other Panthers in the apartment were wounded.
Truelock was not injured in the raid.
The police informant angle was revealed in questioning by Coughlin of Francis Andrew, a member of the law firm that took statements from Truelock and at least three other survivors of the raid.

In those statements, which turned up in court for the first time last Friday, Tuesday, Truelock said he fired two shots at police raiders. The other Panthers, who unlike Truelock did not sign their statements, admitted having weapons in hand but denied firing shots.
COUGHLIN, representing the deputy police superintendent who led the raid, asked Andrew "have you ever been informed that Louis Truelock was suspected of being a stool pigeon for the Chicago police department in the Black Panther party?" Andrew admitted that he had heard that rumor.
Later Coughlin asked Andrew if at the time Truelock's statement was taken "had you been informed that Truelock was suspected of having tipped off police to weapons in the apartment?" Andrew replied that he had "heard discussions about that."
Andrew told Coughlin that he did not recall reading Truelock's statement admitting that he fired shots at police. But he told Coughlin that despite the statement he did not believe that police were fired on by the Panthers.
Asked by Coughlin if he, as a lawyer, saw any conflict between representing Truelock and other Panthers, Andrew replied: "Precisely, sir."

State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmotte, called for the apportionment of the entire state into regional transportation districts under one agency.
A statement made on behalf of Sen. Charles Percy called for enactment of the CMATS proposal.
Others to testify at the hearings included spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry., the League of Women Voters, the Save Our Suburbs Committee, Illinois State Chamber of Commerce and the United Transportation Union, and the Greater Lake County Mass Transit District.
Others represented the Greater Michigan Avenue Association, the Chicago Metropolitan Planning and Housing Council, the Illinois Department of Transportation, the U. S. Department of Transportation, the Ford Motor Co., and the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.
A REPRESENTATIVE of Mayor Daley yesterday sharply criticized suburban areas for not developing their own public transportation operations.
Milton Pikarsky, city commissioner of public works, termed proposed legislation a "takeover of the CTA."

Pikarsky spoke for the Commission on Economic Development.
He said merging the CTA and suburban transportation systems "would be like mixing apples and oranges."
The Daley spokesman said local citizens through use of home rule powers should create their own mass transportation authority to combine community efforts.

Officials Find No Easy Solutions

by MARY HUTCHINGS

Recurring flooding problems in at least three areas of the village will probably continue to occur if future rains are as heavy as those of the past one and a half months.

Three residents with particular problems have been told by builders and village officials that flooding is a "fact of life" when rains are excessive, and that where possible, something will be done to alleviate the situation.

A DRAINAGE ditch in back of her home at 235 Wakefield is the concern of Mrs. Florence Gesiakowski, who complains that a culvert is pointed in her direction rather than toward the creek.

THE CULVERT drains new homes on higher ground near her home, and the pressure during heavy rains causes a drain in her front yard to back up and flood the front yard because the side swall cannot carry water as it should.

"My property is being washed away," Mrs. Gesiakowski said, pointing to soil erosion and bare tree roots by the creek. She says it is impossible for her to cut the grass by the creek, especially on the 20-foot village easement banking the creek.

Village Eng. Joe Zgonina said the ditch was dredged, and about 12 truckloads of soil taken away. The soil could not be given to the homeowners, as requested by Mrs. Gesiakowski, because a dump truck would have to drive across her yard to do the work.

Zgonina said the public works department is planning to rent a grade-all machine which will reshape and clean all creeks in the village. "We'll spend what it takes," he said.

MRS. GESIAKOWSKI had asked that the culvert feeding the creek be pointed in another direction, but Zgonina said it is impossible to bend or change the flow of the water into the creek.

"The property has probably eroded around the culvert, and it looks as if it is pointed in her direction," Zgonina said, while promising to "take a look at it."

He also said the banks of the creek will be reshaped and stabilized which should alleviate flooding in the area, though the engineer cannot make any guarantees for exceptionally hard rains.

Mor-Well Builders were expected to complete a report this week on storm sewer extensions in Timbercrest. Residents have complained of standing water on Ashwood Drive which they say is the fault of Mor-Well. The company did dig a trench to drain the one-acre pond which has been three feet deep over the summer.

Residents have charged that Mor-Well broke drainage tiles during construction which caused the problem. Schaumburg's village manager, John Coste, said he had no knowledge of broken tiles, but called the area "a natural low that never does completely drain."

EARLIER THIS month, the village requested that Mor-Well finance a $3,500 storm sewer extension from Hazel and Beech drives to property bordering the subdivision which is owned by Paul Rosenwinkel, a local farmer.

Mor-Well's engineers have been investigating the situation in recent weeks, and according to Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) regulations, they must provide adequate storm drainage facilities.

A third situation is of special concern to Mrs. Karen Russell, 1411 Elmhurst, whose car flooded during the last heavy rains while parked on the street in front of her home. Her home is at the lowest point of the Sheffield Park East subdivision. She said the water was eight feet from her front door as well as standing in her back yard.

Gerry Harker from Levitt Builders said the situation should be greatly alleviated when the 1½ inches of surface asphalt is laid in early August.

"You can't build 350 homes and expect instant maturity and stability," he said. Most of the homes in the area are less than nine months old.

HE SAID the backyard of the home will be made to meet the plan specifications for grading and ditching which are adequate to the village's satisfaction, but that the flooding is only temporary, and caused by excessive rains on land where grass and topsoil are not stabilized and trees are young.

Topsoil washing into the drain has reportedly caused backup of the drain and flooding in the street as well as improper drainage of the Russells' backyard.

Since the street has not yet been accepted by the village, Zgonina said his office will supervise the work and will conduct the usual punch-list inspection before the street is accepted.

Hoffman Estates Weighs Alliance With Water Agency

Purchasing water instead of drilling for it may be in the future of Hoffman Estates.

At this week's village board meeting, trustees took note of an allocation by the Illinois Division of Water Resources Management of water to DAMP, an intergovernmental agency comprised of Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

It may be possible, suggested Mayor Frederick Downey, for Hoffman Estates to apply for and be granted either a share in the DAMP allocation or a similar allocation of its own. Or, he suggested, the village could purchase the water from DAMP, through an allocation approved by that agency.

George Longmeyer, village manager, is to invite DAMP representatives to meet with the board.

Village Public Works Supt. John Hossack pointed out a consultant's water study report suggested the village look into means of buying Lake Michigan water. Chicago will sell such water, but pipes it only to City of Chicago limits. The village would have to find a means of getting it to Hoffman Estates, perhaps through an arrangement with other villages along the route.

THE TRUSTEES have discussed in the past the possibility that water found underground, through the village-owned and operated well system, may eventually run out, especially since so many villages get their water from the same source. A purchase arrangement could either supplement or replace what may be a diminishing supply, officials have suggested.

Even should the purchased water be a complete replacement for wells, said Hossack, the village would need to maintain its storage facilities. Any break in the water mains between Chicago or another source and the village could leave Hoffman Estates dry unless it had adequate storage, he said.

4 Women Found Guilty Of Theft

Four Chicago women arrested last weekend on charges of petty theft and possession of stolen property were found guilty Wednesday in Cook County Circuit Court in Schaumburg.

A fifth person alleged to be involved in the incident, which occurred at Woodfield was not prosecuted.

Gloria Rodgers, 20, was sentenced to 60 days in the Cook County Jail and two years probation. The three other women, Lynell Dampier, Lee Ann Gates and Mary Hamilton, were given either probation or supervision by the court.

The four women were accused of stealing nearly $500 in clothing from Sears, Penney's and Madigan's at Woodfield.

Arm Police With Animal 'Stun Gun,' Resident Asks

A Schaumburg resident proposing legislation to control and regulate cats in the village also has proposed police be armed with a "stunning" gun for use in animal capture.

Appearing before the safety and health committee Wednesday, George Daugherty called for adoption of an ordinance making rabies inoculation mandatory for cats. The ordinance would also restrict the animals to owners' property.

Earlier this month Daugherty suggested the village board adopt a control ordinance similar to a law in effect in Evanston.

Safety and health committee members have referred Daugherty's suggestion to the Schaumburg Board of Health and are obtaining an opinion from Village Atty. Jack Siegel, who wrote the Evanston ordinance, concerning enforcement of the cat control.

Daugherty also feels that police, while acting as animal wardens, should be armed with a gun designed to render suspicious animals temporarily helpless with a nicotine tranquilizer.

In other business, the committee heard a report from Ed Scala, chairman of the health board, concerning a health fair planned for early November at Woodfield Mall.

SCALA SAID a number of agencies have responded to invitations and will display at the fair. Details will be reported later, Scala said.

Trustee Peter Justen, safety and health chairman, requested that police representatives provide a summary of juvenile problems for committee study next month.

The group discussed possible need for establishing a separate youth committee which could be involved in an outreach program.

Hoffman Estates Supports Licensing Center For Area

A proposed motor vehicle licensing facility in the Northwest suburbs won the support of the Hoffman Estates Village Board this week, although the board opposed what it termed the "ridiculous" allocation of $5 million for the building.

In its resolution of support, the board put a $1.5 million ceiling on the cost of the structure, property and furnishings, which trustees said is still $400,000 more than was spent on the newly opened village hall.

Several trustees suggested there are better uses for the money. Mrs. Virginia Hayter urged court reform, especially in juvenile court, and "bringing the courts to the people."

"They ought to take the $5 million and finish the roads so that the motor vehicles will have some place to drive," commented trustee Ed Hennessy.

"If this (the village) land and building and property and all the furnishings cost $1.1 million, I agree. Five million dollars (for a licensing center) is too much," he added.

Trustee William Cowin called the $5 million figure "ridiculous" and Trustee Bruce Lind said he could support the facility only with the $1.5 million limit.

SPEAKING FROM the audience, resident Henry Netter criticized the plan to build a licensing facility similar to the one on Elston Avenue, Chicago, where drivers license applicants are tested in an artificial traffic situation, a specially designed area off city streets.

Testing on "a golf course is terribly wrong. It doesn't prove a thing, any more than driving through the parking lot at Conant High School," said Netter.

Board opinion was evenly split on whether the facility should be supported, and if so, whether a ceiling amount should be set. Trustees Diane Jensen and Dyrle Rathman, saying they could not support a facility without knowing more details about it, voted no, as did Hennessy. Mayor Downey broke a tie vote by joining Lind, Mrs. Hayter, and Cowin in support of the resolution.

17 Firemen Pass Preliminary Training Exams

Seventeen firefighters from Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates were among those who have qualified for advanced training in the emergency medical training program being conducted by a number of area fire departments and Northwest Community Hospital.

The program will lead to the initiation of a highly sophisticated program for treating emergency situations through a communications system connecting fire departments with the hospital.

Schaumburg firemen who completed the 90-plus hours of training and several examinations include Martin Coniglio, Donald Kopeky, Art Stoike, James Sharf, James Naartz, Rollin Fitch, and John Dixon.

Terry O'Callahan, Dave Baird, Joe Nikrant, John Criel, Richard Knapik, Tom Ryan, Dick Weyler, Joe Miniciani, and Gary Miller were the firefighters from Hoffman Estates who also passed the requirements.

Dr. Stanley Zydlow, program director, said the actual use of the emergency medical facilities will not get under way until October. He said a review program will continue at the hospital to allow the men to learn new techniques and refresh their skills.

'Friends Of Library' Formed Here

Folk Fest Aug. 4 At Vogeley Park

Music fans will gather at a summer Folk Fest Aug. 4 at Vogeley Park in Hoffman Estates. Sponsored by the Young People's Movement of St. Hubert's Parish, the festival will feature the folk group, Betty Frank and Co.

Miss Frank has played at coffee houses, benefit concerts and weddings in the North Shore and Lake County areas.

The YPM is asking a donation of $1.00 for the festival, which will begin at 8:00 p.m. YPM sponsors picnics, liturgies and activities for high school students. Proceeds from the festival will aid in the continuation of these activities.

A donation also will be made to the Community Life Program of Schaumburg Township.

During the organizational meeting in the Schaumburg Township Library those present agreed expanding the membership and seeking sponsors, donors and working members would be an immediate goal.

The Friends of the Library began their work with a $183 treasury given to them by the informal friends group that has worked to benefit the library in the past.

Michael Madden, librarian, said the original friends group had never chartered but regularly ran fund-raising benefits that aided the library.

THE FRIENDS OF the Library group that formed Wednesday will also receive and encourage gifts, endowments and bequests to the library.

However, raising money will not be the organization's only goal. The purpose of the organization is to maintain an interest and focus public attention on libraries and stimulate the use of the library's resources and services.

The progress committee will focus attention by presenting cultural programs in the newly constructed theatre in the round within the new wing of the library.

Library board member Joe McAuliffe accepted chairmanship of the programs committee and announced its first offering would be the play "Duchess of Malfi" by John Webster.

McAuliffe described the presentation he will direct as "a big, bawdy, violent horror show. It's literature and it's alive and will captivate our audience," said McAuliffe.

McAULIFFE ADDED that the Duchess is cast with professionals as well as area residents and will be shown in the theatre Sept. 14, 15, 16, 22 and 23.

Some of the other future events the committee is planning are film festivals, adult education classes during the day, a Great Books program, book reviews, shut-in service and an art fair.

Other committees formed were the public relations committee chaired by Pat Hogan head of special services, and the membership committee chaired by Mrs. Ruth McAuliffe.

Officers of the Friends of the Library are: Robert Miller, president; McAuliffe, vice president; Joel Stempel, treasurer; and Miss Hogan secretary.

Directors are Mrs. Gail Stempel, Mrs. Debbie Miller, library trustee, and Pat Llerandi, head of adult services.

The organization will meet again at 1 p.m. Saturday Aug. 12, in the lower level of the library at 20 W. Library Lane, Schaumburg. Anyone interested in joining is urged to attend.

THE MEMBERS WILL also finalize membership dues for individual, organizational, contributing and life members.

Although the organization is soliciting cash donations its officers stress that working members are also being sought.

The group is putting together an information letter that will ask people to become friends of the library by donation and also explain that the library's services are free to all in the township.

Youth Worker Hired In Schaumburg Township

Schaumburg Township youths in need of counsel now have the services of Schaumburg Township Outreach worker John Mahon who was hired by the township board of auditors Wednesday.

Mahon, 23, of Chicago, plans to move to the area shortly. He was formerly employed by the U.S. Department of Justice Bureau of Prisons, community treatment center. He also did group counseling and legal aid work at the University of Illinois Circle Campus and Outreach work at the Humbolt Park Youth Center in Chicago.

He attained a bachelor of arts in administration of criminal justice at the University of Illinois and plans to return to Jane Adams School of Social Work this fall to study for a master's in social work.

MAHON'S JOB, said Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth (COY) officials, is "to be where the kids are, make contact with them and let them know he is available for counseling or help."

Mahon may be contacted personally at the Buttery, 105 S. Roselle Rd., or by calling 894-8132.

Mahon was hired for an $8,200 annual salary that will be up for review in six months. He will work with Larry Walker, Schaumburg Township Director of Youth Services.

Committee chairman, Joyce Kroll, told the auditors the committee selected Mahon over several other good applicants and said he will be an asset to the committee.

In her report to the board, Mrs. Kroll noted the committee is now conducting studies on the following future programs: A drop-in center; a hot line; teen employment; a shelter house; family counseling; big brother, big sister program; adult and teen education; and job training through experienced craftsmen in the area.

Cigarette Blamed For Fire In Auto

A cigarette was cited as the cause of a car fire early yesterday morning in Schaumburg.

Police said the front seat of a car driven by Guy Coffey, 51 N. Pleasant Ln., Schaumburg, caught fire near the intersection of Roselle Road and Maricopa Lane.

Equipment from the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District was called to the scene to extinguish the fire.

Tuesday, firemen responded to a call at 151 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates. There a flashback from a gas water heater set a pile of clothes on fire.

Firemen said the fire melted a copper valve on the water heater and released water extinguishing the fire.

A Carnival Will Fight Dystrophy

Games, prizes, and lots of food will be the main attractions at a Sunday and Monday neighborhood carnival against dystrophy.

Diana Mueller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas C. Mueller Jr., 186 S. Woodlawn St., Hoffman Estates will serve as ringmaster at the carnival at the family's home.

All proceeds will be contributed to the fight against Muscular Dystrophy and related diseases. Last year neighborhood carnivals held by children across the country raised over $755,657 for research and patient service programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

Three Firefighters Hired Full Time

Three former volunteer firefighters in the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District were hired recently as full-time firemen.

They are James Dugan, David Baird Jr. and James Clark. All were hired after a recent test conducted by the district. There are now 16 full-time firemen in the district.

All of the men will now begin an in-service training program, said Fire Chief Carl Selke.

Baird was one of 10 Hoffman Estates firefighters to pass the emergency medical technicians programs conducted by Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

3 University Officials Miss Disclosure Deadline

by IRA TEINOWITZ
Chamberlain-Lofus News Service
Special to the Herald

SPRINGFIELD — Three top university officials, all earning more than $40,000 a year, have failed to file financial statements required by state law, it was learned yesterday.

They are:

- David S. Derge, $50,000-a-year president of Southern Illinois University, Carbondale campus.
- Richard J. Nelson, $40,500-a-year president of Northern Illinois University at DeKalb.
- James B. Holderman, $45,000 executive director of the state Board of Higher Education.

All should have filed statements designed to disclose possible conflicts of interest by July 1.

Their failure to do so, according to the new state Constitution, "shall result in ineligibility for or forfeiture of state office."

State Auditor Michael J. Howlett, notified of their failure, yesterday stopped all checks to the three officials, pending receipt of an opinion from Atty. Gen. William J. Scott as to whether they still are state officials.

The constitution requires statements of economic interests from all state officials and candidates for state office. It also allows the General Assembly to extend the requirement to local officials.

LAST JANUARY, the Legislature implemented both provisions and required that the statements be filed by July 1. The state Supreme Court upheld the laws in a June hearing.

Financial statements have been filed by 3,620 state officials in the office of the secretary of state in Springfield since the laws were passed.

Thousands of others have filed statements in the offices of county clerks.

Yesterday's action by Howlett was the first taken by any official to prevent officials who have not filed from being paid.

"The state Constitution clearly says that anyone who does not file a statement of economic disclosure shall not be eligible for employment by the State of Illinois," Howlett said. "Based on that, anyone who does not file and is so certified to us by the secretary of state will have his paycheck withheld."

REP. GEORGE W. Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, author of the ethics legislation and Republican candidate for state comptroller, applauded Howlett's action. "It occurs to me that the average citizen gets caught and is given a traffic ticket, he pays his fine," said Lindberg. "Public officials who get caught should have to do the same."

McDonough County State's Atty. Henry D. Sintzenich had asked Scott for a similar ruling on whether local government officials who do not file can be paid or continue to serve.

A survey of statements on file showed that presidents of all other state colleges have complied with the law, as did all trustees for both the University of Illinois and SIU.

Holderman contended he had mailed a statement to Springfield and another to the clerk of DuPage County, where he is a member of the Elmhurst Board of Education. The county clerk, he said, has a statement on file and a duplicate will be filed in Springfield Monday.

Derge said he was planning to file a statement, but "it's just a little bit late. I don't find any difficulty with it because I don't have anything to disclose," he said.

Nelson could not be reached for comment.

MR. COMPTON AT YOUR SERVICE 24 HOURS

A ONE-MINUTE WALK up the ramp and across the stage in front of the judge's panel probably seemed like an eternity to the hundreds of nervous girls who auditioned yesterday for the August Back-to-School fashion show at Woodfield. A line outside the Schaumburg Room pictured here included 2,000 waiting mothers and children.

Models-To-Be Get Their Feet Wet

by MARY HUTCHINGS

All mothers, it seems, are potential stage mothers, and more than a thousand of them braved three-hour lines Thursday at tryouts for Woodfield's August back-to-school fashion show.

Youngsters aged 3 to 11 nervously crowded into the shopping center's Schaumburg Room while waiting to walk the ramp and do their pivot turns before the panel of judges.

All, however, had their mother's assurance that they could stand the test — after all, they were the most beautiful, poised and well-mannered children in Chicagoland.

"We're seeing a very high fashion show and everything that's current in young fashion," commentator Priscilla Henricks told the anxious audience as she encouraged shy toddlers and sometimes awkward pre-teens.

ALMOST ALL the contestants were girls, while the male contingent seemed decidedly unenthusiased as they paraded in suits and ties or Western sportswear — pleasing or displeasing their mothers.

In midis, knickers, long gowns, hot pants or slack suits, some of the children looked beyond their years. Miss Henricks joked that one sharply dressed boy "looks like the chairman of the board at age 7."

The littlest girls shyly strode the Miss America-like ramp, while the oldest spun through their turns on stage and then loped back to their seats laughing at themselves, but still hopeful of having the judges' points.

Mrs. Nancy Kozee of Mount Prospect brought 3-year-old Kelley to the tryouts because "it's good experience," she said. Appearing bewildered, Kelley nodded her head in agreement.

Palatine's Mrs. Cloone Larson accompanied her daughters Raina, 2½, and Tamia, 5, "because the girls enjoy modeling." Tamia began her career at age 20 months, and Mrs. Larson says she "wouldn't have the girls model if they didn't want to."

WHILE THE CONTESTANTS had their mothers' encouragement, their performance was always unpredictable. Model Judy Ceppi of Bloomingdale, who brought her daughters Christina, 5, and Marisa, 3½, to the audition, says that even though the girls have experience, "you're not always sure how they'll do. They don't always do what their mothers tell them."

Christina, who has modeled since she was 6 months old, rehearses at home, and to her mother's amazement, even told some friends this week to go home because she had to practice.

"A good model has self-confidence, she's a good actress," Christina's mother explained. "You have to act the part of every outfit you wear. You are what the clothes are."

Arlington Heights resident Gina Santicola, 11, said she would draw on her dancing and stage experience in the tryouts, and perhaps was more at ease than other contestants since she, too, has modeled before.

Eight-year-old JoAnn Morrison of Wheeling said she was afraid to audition but has no ambitions of becoming a model. "I want to be a movie star," she says.

TOP FASHION MODELS and experts Lillian Gholson, Mercedes Evans and Jamie Lynn smilingly encouraged field auditions yesterday for a fall fashion show at Woodfield.

With stars in their eyes, the girls came "to see what it's like," to "get discovered" or to begin the slow climb to a career in fashion.

SIX-YEAR-OLD Alisa Corsi is "big on living-room modeling," her mother said, "but in front of people it might be different." Alisa, however, is another old pro — a veteran of shows in Iron Mountain, Mich., before her family moved to Schaumburg.

Perhaps the most enthusiastic and articulate proponent of fashion modeling as a career was contestant Lisa Aronfeld of Chicago, who says she wants to "learn how to walk, and how to have a good figure" from modeling. The young ballet student also says she "loves clothes" and has been to "lots of fashion shows — three or four."

"I love everything about modeling. It's cool," Lisa says.

Also an experienced model, she reads Vogue magazine regularly and reports that her favorite designer is Christian Dior.

"Tiger" Thomas of Arlington Heights, one of the few boys in the throng waiting for an audition, said he was there partly because he wanted to be and partly because his mother wanted him to try out.

"It's not bad," he said, as he stood surrounded by a group of girls who definitely weren't the tomboy types — at least for the morning.

As another boy shuffled by the judges' table onstage, Miss Henricks summed up the feeling of the audience: "Thanks for being a good sport."

TWO OTHER BOYS in line didn't want to be identified for fear their friends would find out. "This is girls' stuff," they said with embarrassed laughs.

"Girls' stuff" or not, competition was like the "big time" yesterday, but only a few will be chosen — to appear in the fashion show Aug. 10 and 11 in the Grand Court of the shopping center.

Judges for the auditions include Lillian Gholson, director of Oak Park's Patricia Stevens School, and Mercedes Evans, a free-lance model who recently completed a term as president of the Mannequins Guild for Chicago's top fashion models.

Due to the unexpected numbers of prospective models, tryouts are being held again this morning for 3 to 12-year-olds from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on a first-come, first-served basis.

Officials Balk At Income Law

Progress towards ethics-in-government laws and conduct continues apace — a snail's pace.

In the past year, we have seen the addition of a federal law governing disclosure by candidates for U.S. offices of sources of campaign funds, and the tightening of state legislation on income disclosure for state officeholders.

But the public officials and candidates continue to balk at compliance with the spirit and the purpose of these laws.

The President praises the advance of the federal campaign disclosure law, and steadfastly refuses to discuss the source of some $10 million given his campaign fund before the day the law becomes — thus excusing himself from the law until the next deadline on Sept. 1.

One candidate after another, quizzed about financial matters, ducks behind the defense that his opponent has not volunteered such information, and therefore it is unnecessary for him to do so.

Meanwhile, those in office continue to manipulate their public privileges for political advantage.

The day's mail invariably brings handfuls of congressional mail, bearing the no-postage "frank" of federal officeholders and containing thinly veiled campaign propaganda. The use of the congressional franking privilege is defended by officeholders as a legitimate means of serving their constituents by keeping them informed and gathering their opinions through questionnaires.

But in private conversations, politicians frankly admit that conscientious use of the franking privilege is one aspect of "doing their homework," of keeping their name before the voters.

Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, whose congressional district encompasses the northwest side of Chicago and portions of the Northwest suburbs, recently used the franking privilege to distribute questionnaires to voters throughout the state. He is a candidate for the U.S. Senate, against Sen. Charles H. Percy.

This use of the franking privilege aroused the resentment of many voters outside the district in which he was elected.

Rep. Pucinski has been amply chastised by the press for this abuse, and we are willing to concede that it may have been merely a lapse in judgment which occasioned the statewide mailing.

The adverse reaction which he encountered, however, should indicate to officeholders and candidates alike that the people are demanding that more attention be paid to the spirit of the law.

Roman Pucinski

came effective. His example has been imitated by practically all federal candidates.

State and local candidates by the score found it possible to file so-called income disclosure statements to which the answer to every question was: "None." Some officials such as Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley epitomized the arrogance with which so many office holders greet ethics legislation by filing blank statements, containing nothing more than their signatures.

A congressional candidate, named to fill a vacancy on the November ballot, refrained from certifying his candidacy to the secretary of state until the first deadline for disclosing campaign contribuexample, ground temperature is often so high that seeds planted go into a state of dormancy and permit two crops a season instead of one.

Sound waves might also be used to make weeds germinate before a field is planted. They could then be destroyed by being plowed under and the desired crop sown in a weed-free field.

The scientists admit that broadcasting airport-level noise over the countryside is not an appealing prospect. Work is going forward to see if particular wavelengths or combinations of wavelengths can produce the same effects at lower decibel levels, and also to determine the minimum duration of noise needed.

If the questions are answered favorably, suggests Science News, the day may come when farmers set up loudspeakers to play noise at their crops even as they now play music in their barns to keep the cows contented.

Music To Grow By

It's a noisy jet that blows nobody any good.

Four scientists at the University of North Carolina in Greensboro have discovered that the kind of noise produced by a jetliner taking off causes turnip seeds to germinate faster than normally.

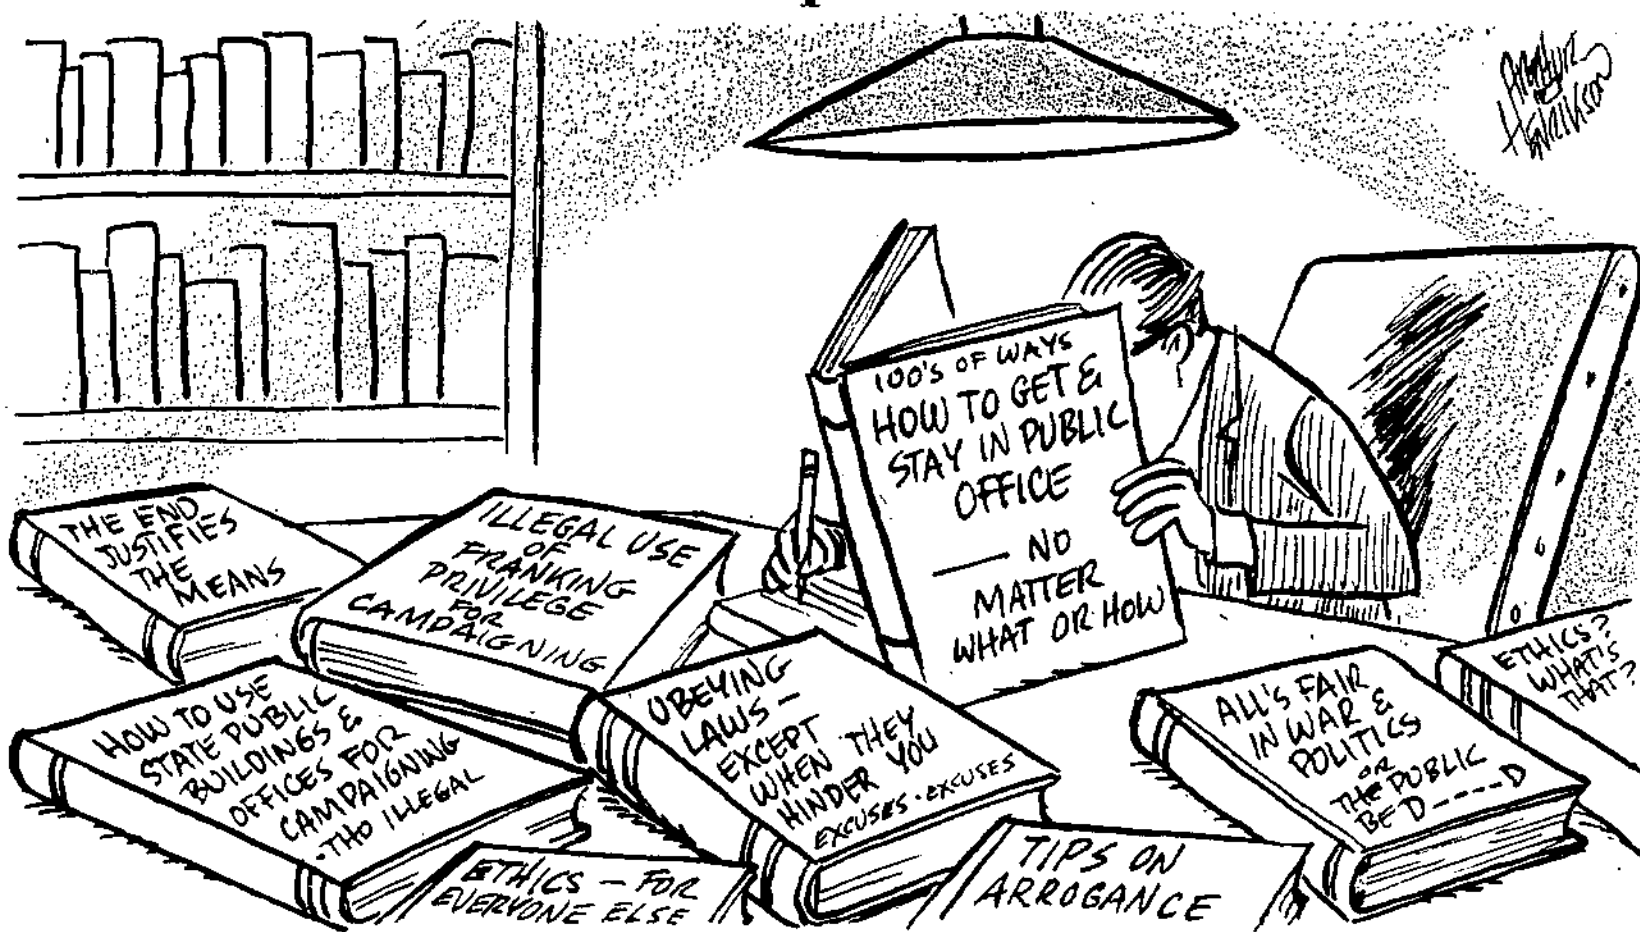

The researchers subjected both dry and wet turnip seeds to a level of noise equivalent to that of a 727 revving up 100 feet away on the runway. The noise had no effect on dry seeds, reports Science News. But wet seeds germinated in about 10 per cent less time and had about a 100 per cent higher germination rate than seeds in a quiet environment.

One explanation is that the sound waves break down the exterior coating of a seed in some way that lets water and oxygen enter more easily. Another theory is that the waves affect the interiors of cells within the seed.

The research opens up at least two interesting possibilities.

Bruce Blossat's Column

Nixon's Strong In The South

Alabama Gov. George Wallace's emerging decision not to run this year as a third party presidential candidate seems likely to give President Nixon all 11 "old south" states and nearly half the electoral votes he needs for re-election.

The word "emerging" is used because a judgment is forming not from open Wallace statements but from utterances by aides, seasoned Wallace-watchers, and at least one of his physicians.

The doctor's word that the governor's nonspinal wounds have weakened him more than earlier realized, is getting around. Less appreciated is Wallace's evident mental depression.

Alabama newsmen who had a group visit with him at Miami Beach have not said much about it. But they found him in a state of melancholy. He seemed almost disinterested in current politics. He would give one-line answers to questions and then fall silent and look down at the floor.

Once or twice people around Wallace have hinted that a third party effort might be good therapy for him. But his downcast mood and weakened condition appear to work against the idea.

If he is out of it this time, what then?

The best information is that he will not endorse the Democratic nominee, Sen. George McGovern, and will not encourage any of his followers to take that course. But he won't endorse Nixon, either. He will play what seems a plausible role, that of a disabled man who is necessarily sidelined and understandably quiet.

This stance will do him no appreciable harm if he recovers sufficiently to make another presidential bid in 1976 within the Democratic fold. His party credentials will be intact.

In the confusion of the Democratic convention's closing hours, the cameras may have caught only briefly; if at all, a sign raised in the Alabama delegation which said: "Wallace will fix in '76."

That, then, is the likely focus. But the irony in this for 1972 is that Wallace, lying quiet within the party fold, may do the presidential ticket more harm than if he campaigned independently.

I've made my first preliminary check in the South. The hard prospect is that Nixon, at this stage, stands to win the 11 old south states with their total of 130 electoral votes and get a long leg up on the 270 required for election.

Nixon won five of those states—Virginia, Tennessee, the two Carolinas and Florida—in 1968. He lost Texas to Sen. Hubert Humphrey by a single percentage point. And in Georgia, Louisiana and Arkansas he ran ahead of Humphrey while trailing Wallace. Only in Alabama and Mississippi did Nixon place third.

Alabama sources tell me the guessing there today is that Nixon would beat McGovern by at least two to one.

To gauge the significance of a southern sweep for Nixon, you need only make the further realistic calculation that he may bag another 71 electoral votes by blanking McGovern in the 13 Mountain and Plains states and getting just Oregon and Alaska in the Pacific tier. Conservatively, give the President just 42 in four of the nine middle west states, leaving out the really big ones. That puts him 27 short of election, without counting any large states but Texas and Florida.

So the southern thing is dynamite for McGovern. He may work around George Meany and other disgruntled labor bosses and touch the union rank and file in the north. But, blacks and some youth aside, the rank and file is the core of his southern opposition.

Fence Post Letters To The Editor

T. Roosevelt's 'Action' Needed

I would personally like to congratulate Melinda Vaughn on her very fine letter concerning that "circus of graft" we call politics, which was printed in Friday's Herald.

Miss Vaughn obviously has to be one of the most perceptive young ladies to be presently attending high school. I myself am a high school student, and I know that for anyone in our current grade level to be so perceptive and possess a mind so able to cut through the superficial and slanted views concerning politics, and yet still be able to draw conclusions and clearly present her own opinions, is extremely rare among even college level students.

She very obviously has a rare gift which very few of us these days can claim to have, and that is to unemotionally and straight-forwardly tell other people exactly what they see and sense, despite the padded and overly biased information all of us are exposed to in every day of our lives.

Miss Vaughn also, for those of you with any type of background knowledge in history, correctly stated that Theodore Roosevelt was the last president (who also by the way had such a gift) who wasn't out for money and/or fame. Instead, he was a man of action and of little idle talk. It was he who once stated: "I took the Canal (the Panama), and let the Congress debate." It was with such leadership and audacity that this nation began its great rise to a world power. But after his term had ended there were some people who said that such leadership was dangerous to world relations and security. And there are still some fools who believe that that is true, even to this day. Well, it is for those of

Referendum Support Is Praised

The Concerned Citizens Committee of the recent Hoffman Estates Park District Referendum wishes to extend our many thanks to the Hoffman Herald staff for the excellent newspaper coverage given before and after this referendum.

We wish to give particular recognition to your reporter, Steve Brown, who attended so many meetings in order to give your subscribers a complete unbiased story that enabled our citizens to understand both sides of each issue.

Without doubt both issues would have been decisively defeated had it not been for a concerned reporter dedicated to presenting the readers with a complete story for the Hoffman Estates Park District and Concerned Citizens Committee. We are grateful to have The Herald and you who feel as such, that I find it necessary to remind you, that since Theodore Roosevelt's term had ended in 1909, there has passed some 63 years, and 11 presidents who believed as you do. All of them were full of more empty talk and promises, than of decisive action. And over this span of 63 years, there still is to this day, no sign of a total peace anywhere in the world. . . . Do you still feel anymore secure in this world today, with this kind of policy in action? I think not.

'If The Situation Appears Serious'

Bakalis Will Intervene In Disputes

School boards and teachers' groups unable to settle contract disputes before school opens this fall are likely to get some help from state School Supt. Michael Bakalis — whether they want it or not.

Bakalis recently announced formal procedures he will follow this fall in dealing with unsettled teacher contract disputes.

The procedures include an offer of voluntary mediation or fact-finding and also the possibility that Bakalis will step in "if the situation appears serious" even if the parties to a dispute refuse the voluntary services.

In addition, Bakalis will supply information to school districts involved in negotiations about finances, labor relations or anything else.

"Last year there were 33 or 40 situations in which the superintendent was involved, either privately or publicly," Mike Braver, public relations officer for Bakalis, said. "These procedures are nothing new, but this is the first time we have formalized them."

LAST YEAR, Bakalis personally intervened in a bitter teachers' strike and lockout in Decatur. After efforts to mediate the dispute, Bakalis got a court order forcing the schools to reopen and asked a court to impose a settlement. The case has been appealed.

Braver said the question of Bakalis' jurisdiction in such disputes will eventually be settled by the Illinois Supreme Court, but until then, he said, "If there is a really serious disruption of the education process, we believe that we not only have the authority but the right to settle the situation."

Braver said the belief is supported by a portion of the Illinois School Code that says the state superintendent can hear and resolve disputes.

He added that the state office does not believe there will be a repetition of the Decatur situation anywhere in Illinois this year. "We hope we don't have to use any of these procedures," he said.

Students Get A Chance To Do Research

BEAVERTON, Ore. (UPI) — The average scholarship consists of a stipend and a pat on the back.

Recipients of the Summer Science Scholarships receive not only $600, but also valuable work experience on scientific projects at the Oregon Regional Primate Research Center.

The scholarship program is three years old and this summer is aiding 11 students, mainly from Portland-area high schools. The first scholarship was awarded in 1969 by the Beaverton Women's Club.

The students started their summer jobs June 14 this year, and will continue to work through the summer.

DR. EDWARD S. West, chairman of the Summer Science Scholarship committee, and assistant to the director of the center, said, "The object of the program is to take highly selective and brilliant students and expose them to scientific research so they can have some background to help them choose their life's work."

"It's so much better to participate in scientific research rather than just read about it," he said.

Applications from students in area high schools are received by the scholarship committee, and scholastic ratings, teacher recommendations, college entrance examination scores and an interview are part of the selection process, West said.

Once a student has been selected, the primate center has research scientists who have agreed to take on the students and review the applications. West said the scientists then choose five students they would like to have work with them — and, if possible, that is where the students are placed.

"If we have someone coming in who has experience working with computers, we can put them to work with our computer program," West said.

AN EXTENSIVE computer system for storing medical and genetic information on the animals at the center is part of the research center's highly technical medical and social research.

Students interested in chemistry normally work with biochemists and those interested in pathology often work in the surgery room.

Life Off-Stage A Little Lonely For Lamplighters

by GENIE CAMPBELL

To people dining out at the Top of the Towers, the life style of the Lamplighters, the featured entertainers in the elegant penthouse restaurant of the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, would appear certainly both devil-may-care and glamorous.

Just consider their working conditions . . . presenting shows in a plush dining room harboring a cosmopolitan clientele; setting up residence right in the hotel; and being entitled to use all the recreational facilities including the indoor swimming pool, game room and golf course too.

The race track, less than a five-minute walk from the entrance of the hotel offers still another opportunity for diversion.

HOW MANY PEOPLE haven't secretly wished at one time or another to be able to live it up royally in a large hotel and partake of all the advantages and special services that go along with that bustling kind of life?

But that's only how it appears looking on from the outside as, comforted by good food and conversation, guests watch the Lamplighters bounce out on stage for their first nightly show.

Quite the contrary, hotel life is quite staid and uneventful if you are an actual member of the sextet whose ages range from 20 to 26. Since they opened in the Towers last March, the young vocalists will admit that working the hours when most people their age are out socializing and having fun can make for a rather lonely existence off-stage.

"We don't have a chance to meet many young people," they all agreed during a rap session recently following one of their performances. "Most of the socializing we do is together."

PERIODICALLY AFTER a week night show, when it's still early enough to enter the night life scene, the six will pile into one car and head down to Chicago where unobtrusively they meld with the boisterous crowds.

Together they will also occasionally receive invitations to dine in private homes as the guests of fans who continually return to the Top of the Towers to watch and hear them sing.

The New Lamplighters' wholesome, clean-cut image is inviting to the middle-aged adult world that prefers shining faces over long-haired rock musicians.

They patronize the Top of the Towers because they like the kids and because the gourmet prices are within their budget. (The menu is a little too steep for a lot of young adults.)

THE LAMPLIGHTERS include Donna Lynn Sakry, Tom Netherton, Sue Spading, Lloyd Pedersen, Beverly Rasmussen and John Hoagland.

Bev and John are man and wife. While they first met in high school, their relationship was cemented by their mutual work within the Lamplighter group.

SUE SPADING and Donna Lynn Sakry try on jewelry in the hotel gift shop. Before she started singing, Sue was in many local theater productions and also studied drama at the University of Minnesota. Donna comes from a musical family and at an early age began playing piano and guitar. While in high school and college at St. Cloud State, she sang in local clubs.

All but one are natives of Minnesota, home territory for the Lamplighter act that has been serving as a career booster for young entertainers now for 18 years.

The exception is Lloyd Pedersen, who hails from Chicago and is a graduate of Northwestern University.

Yet while the Lamplighters may lament a bit over their semi-isolated hotel life, they are first and foremost ambitious singers and consider it a lucky omen to be in their present positions at the Towers.

"IT'S A NICE way to find out where it's at," remarked Sue. "It will be a stepping stone for most of us or a dead end," she added.

"There are just so many talented kids," said Bev, emphasizing how difficult it is to break out on one's own power. "In fact too many. You've really got to work to get ahead."

All of them hope that their experience as Lamplighters will at least allow them to get a foot through the show biz door.

Changing their act periodically under the direction of producer Bruce Neilson, who also handles another Lamplighter group out of Minneapolis, the group of singers seldom become bored with any one show. Last month they opened with a new revue consisting of all country and western tunes. It replaced the contemporary selections the group had been presenting.

"BUT YOU NEVER get tired of going on if the audience is good," was one comment. And with racing season in full motion, the Lamplighters agree that things are a bit more exciting now up in the Towers.

"But only the winners keep coming back."

The Lamplighters are free to spend the day as they wish . . . unless they are getting ready to stage a new medley of tunes and then for several weeks preceding opening night, they are in rehearsal five to six hours together in addition to their nightly performances. That can make for a long, tiring day.

But otherwise if not sleeping in . . . "the temptation to slumber until early afternoon is a great one and an easy rut to fall into" . . . the sextet is up and about the hotel taking advantage of the facilities.

"WE HAVE OUR own little community," said Donna. (Three hotel rooms are set aside at the end of one hallway for them.) "We've been moved to different floors, but we've never had anything but a blue room," she laughed.

And having cars at the hotel allows each of them to shop and run errands or just investigate new restaurants. Eating at the hotel every night can become monotonous and expensive.

"Actually you learn to do a lot of variations in the popcorn popper," said Sue whose main course some evenings is a warmed can of ravioli.

WEATHER PERMITTING, John Hoaglund, leader of the New Lamplighters, is up every morning trying to improve his golf. John, a tenor, started as a singer with a rock group and toured with them for over a year working Las Vegas and New York and also many industrial shows.

NATIVE CHICAGOAN Lloyd Pedersen watches Sue Spading aim for the pocket. Lloyd is a graduate of Northwestern University. He has sung as a baritone soloist with Wayne King on several tours.

area and at the Playboy Club in Kansas City. Tom began singing while in the service. He appeared in two television specials before joining the Lamplighters.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

If one were to name the favorite color for collectors, it would have to be blue, for it seems that anything in blue sells better than its counterpart in other colors. The Danish Christmas plates are blue, and so are the many imitator plates which have appeared in recent years. Blue Willow is perennially popular, as are historical blue Staffordshire, Japanese blue Imari, Canton, Delft, Meissen Onion and the subject of today's column, flow blue.

Flow blue is not the name of a certain maker, nor the product of any one country, although the English type is best known. The name comes from the fact that the deep cobalt blue color has bled through, or "flowed" through the body of the china during firing, and has often blurred and smudged on the face, making it difficult to distinguish the pattern. Luckily, most flow blue is well marked on the reverse, and it is possible (although expensive) to accumulate a complete set in your favorite pattern.

THE MOST PRODUCTIVE years for this china were 1830 to 1900. Early examples usually have an Oriental design, with little or no gilt trim. Cups are likely to be handleless, and saucers deep. The two examples shown are from the early period, dating about 1840. The pattern name is Scinde, made by J. and G. Alcock. Another similar Scinde pattern was made by Thomas Walker about the same time. Both companies were English. Scinde, pronounced "Cindey," which was an early name for "China," is one of the most desirable and expensive patterns. A coffee pot, such as the one shown, in good condition would be worth over $100.

Duplicate names are common in flow blue. Patterns were sometimes registered, but no one was prevented from using the same name for a different pattern.

The Book Stall

by United Press International
"THE GENERAL WAS A SPY."
 BY HEINZ HOEHNE AND HERMANN ZOLLING
"THE SERVICE."
 BY REINHARD GEHLEN
 (Edward McCann & Geoghegan and World respectively, ($10 each).

Two recently published books present sharply divergent views of West Germany's recently retired Lt. Gen. Reinhard Gehlen, one of the top spymasters of the 20th century.

"The General Was a Spy," by Heinz Hoehne and Hermann Zolling, derives from an essentially hostile series printed by the West German magazine Der Spiegel. "The Service" is presented as Gehlen's own memoirs.

As an officer of the German general staff during World War II, Gehlen developed an efficient network of spies in Russia and eastern Europe. After the war, he offered his organization and files first to the CIA and later to the Bonn government. He was the chief of West Germany's Federal Intelligence Service (BND) from 1956 to 1968.

During the first decade of the Cold War, Gehlen's agency was one of the West's best informed sources about events and intentions behind the Iron Curtain. Communist infiltration and mellowing Western attitudes reduced its efficiency in that area, but it expanded into other fields.

One of the BND's last great coups under Gehlen was its prediction, accurate to the day and almost to the hour, of the outbreak of the 1967 Middle East war.

Hoehne and Zolling concede Gehlen's strengths, but are pitiless about what they consider his weaknesses. In particular, they accuse him of using the BND for internal political espionage.

The Service denies this, and argues in general that Gehlen's administration was the best that was possible in what must tern. This can be quite unsettling when ordering a piece by mail, and finding it doesn't match at all. I soon learned to give not only the pattern name, but manufacturer as well.

THE OLDER FLOW blue is apt to be of the heavy ironstone quality, while the later may be of porcelain, semi-porcelain or common pottery. It is well to consider the type of china when pricing a piece, for the easily chipped pottery should be less. Since this was household ware for so many years, the attrition of hard use has made it difficult to find pieces in good condition. Brown stains may sometimes be removed with a bath in chlorine bleach. Beware of chips which have been colored with blue paint in an attempt to conceal them, but if you are seeking only cabinet pieces and don't intend to use them, chips or cracks aren't so important.

Flow blue, once the stepsister to the fine historical blue wares, little documented and considered a lowly subject, has finally come into its own. Much of it is now well over a century old and has acquired the respectability of antique status.

FLOW BLUE was one of my first antiques when I purchased an entire set in a second-hand store back in the good old days of collecting. The set cost less than one large piece would today. I am always on the lookout for handleless cups (made with no handles,) a tea pot, large pitcher and better butter dish than the one I have.

If you have a question on your antiques, please write Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, in care of Paddock Publications, Suburban Living, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Those of general interest will be answered in the column, and all will receive a reply if you enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

BUTTERFLIES ARE FREE

Playback

by Tom Von Malder

Two brilliant statements on life in America have just been released. They are David Ackles' "American Gothic" (Elektra 75032) and Randy Newman's "Sail Away" (Reprise MS 2064).

In many ways the two men and their work are quite similar. Both are highly literate and often amusing in their writing. Both also have been around for years with little public recognition.

Ackles' album covers the broad spectrum of everyday life in a way that few other albums ever have. The tales are simply told but are so true that one often finds himself nodding in agreement.

THE TITLE track tells of small town marital unfaithfulness. Another tells of a "One Night Stand" and love is the theme of a beautiful ballad, "Love's Enough." "Midnight Carousel" is every restless young girl's dream come true.

Other themes he touches on are divorce, war, pollution and over-urbanization, and the American Indian's plight. (The last is in the remarkable "Blues For Billy Whitecloud," a song that would justify getting this album by itself.)

The album is a compression into 11 well done songs of all the day-to-day livings, yearnings and hopes of Americans. It is the type of album that sticks with you even after only one hearing.

BUT MEMORABLE as the words are, it is Ackles' music that astonishes. It is a synthesis of so many styles of music that it can leave you breathless.

Listen to the album. Catch the traces of Stravinsky, Aaron Copeland, Rodgers and Hammerstein, Kurt Weill, Gershwin and Gilbert and Sullivan. Hear country sounds, ragtime, gospel, boogie-woogie and uses of minor keys. Plus a 10-minute symphonic poem.

All this and more in a stunning return for Ackles who has spent the last two years in England collecting his thoughts. Ackles' arrangements of the songs are also impressive, as is Bernie Taupin's producing debut.

Newman attacks a song with more wit than Ackles. He'll make his points through humor — whether it is the improbable sales pitch of the title song (made by a slave to some Africans) or by letting God muse why man still loves Him.

AS A PERFORMER, Newman has

written a number of big songs for other people, including Harry Nilsson and Three Dog Night. But as usual, a writer singing his own songs can get much more of the original feeling into them. Newman can get various points across just by changing his vocal approach to a song.

Other noteworthy songs in the album include "Dayton, Ohio — 1903" which is sung with just the right amount of boredom to get the thought across — it was boring in those days. "Old Man" contains some real pathos, while "Simon Smith and the Amazing Dancing Bear" is a carefree delight.

Both Ackles and Newman should be "discovered" this year as major talents, even though some people have been aware of it for years. Any success they do receive will be deserved.

Usually a group will not mess around with a successful formula for making records. But Wishbone Ash is different. They have made changes and they are for the better.

VOTED BEST new group of 1971 by readers of "Melody Maker" and "Sounds," Wishbone Ash is a good band and "Argus" (Decca DL 7-5347) is their best yet.

The guitar-domination of their two earlier albums has been dropped in favor of strengthening the vocals. It works fine, especially in the folk-like "Leaf and Stream" and the first section of "Time Was" (which then takes off as a hard rocker). But their distinctive double lead guitar harmony is still an integral force behind their success.

A MEMBER OF the Arlington Heights Art Guild, Elaine Olsen, looks over some of her own work that she will be exhibiting in the Arlington Market Art Fair being held Sunday, Aug. 6. More than 100 artists will be displaying their art work.

Needlepoint Breaks Out Of Old Style

by E. MICHAEL MYERS

HOUSTON (UPI) —Roosevelt Grier, the beefy former tackle for the Los Angeles Rams, would look and feel silly stitching a needlework of a lady bug. So would millions of football widows and imaginative businessmen.

Mikel Shulman believes so. He wants to free an art he believes is restricted by the designs elderly ladies enjoyed 100 years ago.

"I have introduced more technical things," the New York City and Miami needlepoint designer says. "Here is an art form that has been oblivious to the 20th century. Grandma did them one way — but women today aren't the same."

"They aren't so uncreative they have to do things done 100 years ago, like lady bugs."

THEY LIVE IN the 20th century and their imagination should express it, the 33-year-old artist said. Needlepoint can break out of its centuries-old style. Shulman believes sports offers many opportunities for development.

"It does not seem 'feminine' this way," he said. "Guys don't want to do flowers. They want to relax. So they can do sports in needlepoint. There is generally a stigma attached to guys who do needlepoint — but Rosy Grier does it."

Sketching sports scenes and designing an "action" canvas is a large part of Shulman's businesses. Several years ago he did a needlepoint design for a friend and realized the creative possibilities of the field. Shulman developed the art form into a profitable needlepoint canvas business in Farmingdale, N. Y. Today the father of three young boys regularly travels the country, designing individual works and specializing in sports works.

SHULMAN DESIGNED A canvas for the Super Bowl, canvasses for the winners of the U. S. Open and now a "sporting teams of Texas" series. The former public relations executive sketched scenes of pitcher Don Wilson of the Houston Astros, a scene from a Houston Oilers football game and of Rudy Tomjanovich of the Houston Oilers.

"Imaginative people are looking for things to relate to, something artistic," Shulman said of his work. "For the male football fan it can be a scene that shows aggression, a play action. For the woman it must be modern."

"This art shows women they need not be limited by antiquity," he said. "It can be kicky and modern."

Art Guild Sponsors Fair Aug. 6

Artists from four states will participate in an art show Aug. 6 being co-sponsored by the Arlington Heights Art Guild and the Arlington Market Merchants Association.

Art work will be exhibited along the sidewalk of the Arlington Market Shopping Center, Kensington Road and Dryden Place in Arlington Heights. It will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 6 p.m.

Some 100 artists will be competing for a total of $500 in prize money being awarded in three categories: oil and acrylic, watercolor and sculpture and mixed media.

The show is being judged by artists Ed Cathony and Estelle Fedelle.

Those attending the fair will be eligible for a drawing to take place at 5 p.m. The winner may pick out any painting he or she likes priced $50 or less. The person whose name is drawn must be present at the time of the drawing.

Chairman of the Arlington Market Art Fair is Mrs. Joan Ziegler.

Des Plaines Youth Wins Masque And Staff Award

Donald J. Reilly of Des Plaines received the 1972 $500 Masque and Staff Scholarship Award.

The theater group based in Elk Grove Village annually presents the scholarship to a graduate of Elk Grove High School who has demonstrated excellence in school activities related to theater.

Donald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Reilly of 884 Horne Terr.

The award was presented by outgoing president Bob Johnson and his wife, Shirley, who together formed the theatrical organization 13 years ago.

Ranked 26th in a graduating class of 600, Reilly was active in school productions. He served as a member of the stage crew on six plays including "Come Blow Your Horn," "My Three Angels" and "South Pacific." He was stage manager for "Don't Drink the Water," "Once Upon a Mattress" and "A Streetcar Named Desire" and set designer for "Streetcar" and "South Pacific."

A MEMBER OF the International Thespian Society, Reilly was also president of the Drama Club and one of three students nominated to Le Theatre Technique.

Reilly was also a member of the National Honor Society and played in the high school's Jazz Band.

Outside school, the Elk Grove High School graduate has been an organist at St. Zachary's Church in Des Plaines since 1968.

Reilly, who is the second eldest in a family of six children, will use the scholarship money to help defray tuition at Loyola University which he will be attending this fall. His career choice is orthodontistry.

Other finalists in the scholarship award were James Abb, Sylvia Steward and Eddie Eldren, all of Elk Grove Village.

Finalists were chosen for personal interviews with the Masque and Staff Scholarship Committee from applications completed by students in the high school's drama department.

Don Johns loves to make pots.

"I enjoy the freedom of clay and its versatility. It is loose and free," he said.

Johns is currently exhibiting his work in the summer craft show at Countryside Art Center in Arlington Heights. Also on exhibit through the end of this month are textiles by Richard Daehnert, Stana Coleman and Jane Redman, glass by Kent Ipsen, pottery by Gregor Giesman and Mike Zilka and leather by Larry Down.

Don Johns divides his time equally between slab-built and wheel-thrown pots. Though no set theme is carried throughout his work, his pots are most distinctive. He might use printer's type to stamp in letters and numbers on his pots, or apply small clay faces or silk-screen on decorations. On one piece is a silkscreened tonestone motif from a photograph taken at the Field Museum.

JOHNS IS MOVING away from museum shows, though he has won prizes in national exhibitions for both his pottery and his glass, a secondary interest of his. "I do not agree with what is being chosen. I find a sincere lack of design," he said. "Being different is not the same thing as design."

"Many craftsmen today do not know their material," he continued. "I have seen cracked and glued pieces exhibited."

An art instructor at Elgin Larkin High School, Johns is spending the summer traveling to art fairs, studying at Northern Illinois University but mostly, he said, "making pots."

The Barrington Players Guild, now entering its tenth season, will be performing "The Man Who Came To Dinner" at Barrington High School Aug. 4, 5, 11 and 12.

Written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, "The Man Who Came To Dinner" revolves around a famous celebrity, Sheridan Whiteside, who finds himself forced to take up temporary residence in the home of the Stanleys, after having injured himself on the ice outside their front door. The Stanleys find their lives completely disrupted by the strange entourage of people and animals that seem to follow Whiteside wherever he goes.

BOB Musical Show Next In Hoffman Concert Series

Next Thursday, Best Off Broadway Players will present a musical variety show as part of the summer concert series being offered by the Hoffman Estates Park District.

The entertainment will be held in the Vogeley Barn located just west of the intersection of Golf and Higgins Roads.

The hour and a half program that will begin at 8 p.m., is open to the public free of charge.

Selections from such popular musicals as "Camelot," "Annie Get Your Gun," "Call Me Madam" and "Funny Girl," will be sung by BOB members Charmaine Sayre, Karen Mason and Marie Petersen, all of Arlington Heights; Venus and Evangeline Miller of Prospect Heights; Gil Pearson of Villa Park; and Allen Johnson of Hoffman Estates.

MATT PENN of Palatine and Linda Ferguson of Hoffman Estates will present a comedy sketch that will particularly appeal to the younger members of the audience.

JO ANNE WORLEY, a star of Rowan & Martin's "Laugh-In," has been signed to appear in the comedy-farce, "GOODBYE, CHARLIE," at ARLINGTON PARK THEATRE. Jo Anne will open Thursday, Aug. 31, and play through Sept. 24.

The comedy will follow "THE ONLY GAME IN TOWN," which opens next Thursday and stars PETER MARSHALL, LOIS NETTLETON and Chicago's RAY RAYNER.

"Goodbye, Charlie," written by George Axelrod, deals with a novel premise... the feminine reincarnation of the deceased Charlie and the obvious problems of adjusting to a female personality after having lived a Casanova life style in the previous life. The production will also star television actor ROGER PERRY. It is being directed by Assad Kelada.

Peter Marshall

GLENN MILLER'S BAND will be appearing for one night only, Aug. 16, at THE LANCER STEAK HOUSE, 50 E. Algonquin Road in Schaumburg.

TAMI NOVAK, whose musical talents range from rock to ballads, opens next Wednesday in the WINDJAMMER LOUNGE of the MARRIOTT MOTOR HOTEL, 8335 W. Higgins Road in Chicago. She will perform twice nightly, 10 o'clock and midnight, Wednesday through Sunday through Oct. 1.

MARTHA RAYE will star in John Patrick's comedy, "EVERYBODY LOVES OPAL," at PHEASANT RUN PLAYHOUSE Aug. 15 through Sept. 24. This is Miss Raye's first appearance at the St. Charles dinner-theater.

The current production, "WHO WAS THAT LADY I SAW YOU WITH?" starring BOB CRANE, runs through Aug. 13.

SERGIO MENDES & BRASH, '77 and LOU RAWLS are coming to the MILL RUN THEATRE for a six-day engagement beginning next Tuesday.

"THE LOST PRINCE," a play written by J. J. Butler, is being presented at the COUNTRY CLUB CHILDREN'S THEATRE for a six-week engagement starting this weekend.

Performances are being held on Saturday and Sundays, 2 p.m.

According to Butler who also is directing "The Lost Prince," the play revolves around two dolls who come to life at night and go off into the forest to seek adventure. As the escapade continues, the two dolls come across a lost prince suffering from amnesia.

Fall Art Fair At Woodfield

Chicago area artists will have the opportunity to exhibit their work in the malls and grand court of Woodfield Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. The enclosed multi-level shopping center is located at the intersection of Golf Road and Route 53 in Schaumburg.

The show will be limited to painting and sculpture. Application blanks are available from the Woodfield Merchants Association, P.O. Box 308, Prospect Heights, Ill. 60070. Deadline is Aug. 25. For jurying, five slides or photos of the artist's work should accompany the application.

Paintings will be exhibited on four by eight foot art boards. Sculptors will provide their own display stands which should be of professional quality.

Judging will take place the morning of Sept. 30. Awards will be presented in five categories: oil, watercolor, acrylics, sculpture and mixed media.

TAG GAMES: OLD AND NEW

By Marilyn Hallman

Tag is an old time favorite for the back yard. But have you tried these tag games?

Wood Tag: "It" chases the other players, trying to tag them. They are safe only when they are touching a fence, a tree, or something else which is wood. During one game, a player may touch wood no more than three times. First player tagged becomes the new "it."

Stoop Tag: A player is safe from being tagged only when he squats on the ground. He can do this only three times during any game.

Shadow Tag: Instead of tagging the players, "it" tries to touch their shadows.

Donkey Tag: Players form a long line with their arms around the waist of the child in front of them. "It" tries to tag the "donkey's tail" — the last person in line. The donkey tries to prevent this by moving around quickly. If the "donkey tail" is tagged, he becomes "it," and the old "it" goes to the head end of the donkey.

Cross Tag: "It" calls the name of the player he wants to chase. If another player runs between "it" and the person he is chasing, "it" must then chase that runner instead. Players may keep crossing his path until one is tagged.

Festival Theatre Announces Playbill For Coming Season

Schaumburg Festival Theatre recently announced the plays to be staged during its 1972-73 season.

The first theatrical offering will be "David and Lisa." It is being directed by Raoul Johnson with production dates of Aug. 19, 20, 26 and 27.

Other plays that will be presented later this season are "A Thurbur Carnival," "Dark of the Moon" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

Four local directors submitted a total of 25 plays for consideration by the theater guild's executive board. The final selection was based on the board's desire to provide a balanced program of drama and comedies that will appeal to audiences of all ages.

SEASON PASSES are now available for the five productions at a 20 per cent discount. All season pass holders will be listed in the playbills and receive free tickets to the Young People's Show in December. Adult passes at $8 and student passes at $5 may be purchased through the ticket chairman, Sandra Reimann, 862-1894.

Schaumburg Festival Theatre operates year round and, in addition to staging major productions, sponsors a playwriting contest and youth art festival. Festival Theatre also has an active talent bank, touring company and teenage workshop. Membership is open to residents of all areas. Information about the organization is available through 894-2380.

Canadian Problem

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) —American entertainers are finding it increasingly difficult to get engagements in Canada. A spokesman for the Country Music Association blames this on red tape involved in getting permission for Canadian performers to work in the United States. As a result, he said, the Canadian government has decided to limit U. S. performers in Canada.

California Girl Is June Bride Of Glenn Dieball

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Dieball

Glenn Harold Dieball, son of the Melvin Lasekes of 868 Capri Drive, Palatine, took Mildred Ellen Biggerstaff as his bride June 17 in the First United Methodist Church of Riverside, Calif. The bride is the daughter of T. Sgt. and Mrs. Guy D. Biggerstaff of Riverside.

Glenn, a graduate of Arlington High School, is now in the U. S. Air Force. He came home from DaNang, Vietnam, for the wedding but has since returned to the same base.

HIS BRIDE attended Riverside City College and works at the local public library.

Her maid of honor was Charlene Swen of Phoenix, Ariz., and bridesmaids were Darlene Kreamier, Doris MacFarlane and Toni DiDominicus, all of Riverside. Robin DiDominicus, 6, was flower girl. She and Toni are the bride's cousins.

Chuck Nolting of Arlington Heights was best man. Ushers included Ken Biggerstaff, the bride's brother, and Mildred's cousins, Ron and Nicky DiDominicus.

The wedding reception was held on the patio of the church. The couple honeymooned in San Diego.

David Granzins Take A Camping Honeymoon

A month-long camping trip is about to end for newlyweds Virginia Ann and David Glenn Granzin. The couple were married July 1 in Rochester, N. Y., where both are working, and then left on an outdoor honeymoon that took them to the Rocky Mountains, the Grand Tetons, Yellowstone and Glacier National Parks.

Virginia is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kelly of Syracuse, N. Y. She is teaching in Rochester. David, son of Mrs. Esther Granzin of Arlington Heights and the late Glenn Granzin, works there for Eastman Kodak Co.

Their 11 a.m. vows were solemnized in St. Mark's Church, with a reception following at Heritage House for 120 guests.

THE BRIDE chose a long white organza gown with embroidery accents in pink. With it she wore a large white picture hat with a shirred organza brim and a long pink veil flowing from the back. She carried a single white rose with baby's breath and greens.

Virginia had just one attendant, her sister Mrs. John McGreat of Whitesboro, N. Y., who wore a two-toned dress designed with a deep pink bodice and floor-length floral skirt. She carried one deep pink rose combined with baby's breath and greens.

The bride's nephew, 6-year-old Daniel McGreat, was ring bearer.

Newlyweds Build A Home

Not only are Linda C. Biebel of Mount Prospect and John R. McCabe of Chicago newly married but they are awaiting moving day into a new home in Palatine. The couple exchanged vows July 1 in St. Cecilia Church, Mount Prospect.

Until their home is ready for occupancy, Linda and John are living with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Biebel, 1823 Willow, Mount Prospect. John is the son of the Earl McCabes of Chicago.

The Biebel family formerly lived in Des Plaines, where Linda attended St. Patrick Academy. She earned a degree in education at Northern Illinois University in 1971 and has been teaching in the Barrington school district. Her husband studied at Wright Junior College and is with Carpet Mates, Chicago.

AS SHE ENTERED the sanctuary, the bride wore an ivory organza gown lavishly trimmed in beaded swiss lace. Appliques of the lace dotted the bodice with its long sheer sleeves and formed a graceful pattern on the front of the A-line skirt and chapel train. Linda chose a Camclot headpiece of lace and a triple-tier elbow-length veiling. Her bouquet was of ivory daisies, stephanotis and natural baby's breath.

Peggy Brockman of Mount Prospect was Linda's maid of honor, wearing a navy blue Empire dress with gold trim. The bodice of navy blue knit was complemented by a skirt or ribbon seersucker striped in gold, green, orange, yellow and lavender, with a wide ruffle at the bottom.

Mr. and Mrs. John McCabe

Peggy carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations and deep blue straw flowers surrounded by camille leaves and tied with gold streamers.

THERE WERE three bridesmaids, all attired identically to the maid of honor. They were Mrs. Sheri McCabe, Itasca, the groom's sister-in-law, and two of the bride's friends, Barb Furlong and Corinne Ufferman of Chicago.

Phillip McCabe was his brother's best man and another brother, Donald of Itasca, ushered along with the bride's brother Michael, Glendale Heights, and Jerry Watson, Chicago.

Linda's cousins, Lisa and Lance Joaquin of Palatine, were also in the wedding party. Lisa, 11, was flower girl and Lance, 12, ring bearer.

A reception at Casa Royale in Des Plaines feted the newlyweds, after which they left for a week's honeymoon in Las Vegas.

Sharon Koehn Now Mrs. Art Ragland

Two Palatine residents were united in a candlelight double ring ceremony July 1 at Jerusalem Lutheran Church in Morton Grove.

Sharon Koehn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Koehn, became the bride of Arthur Ragland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Ragland Jr.

Sharon's gown, made by her mother, sister and herself, was an organza over taffeta that featured a scoop neckline and full skirt. The bodice of the Empire dress, the long sheer sleeves and the chapel-length train were all embroidered with Venetian lace. The bride's chapel-length veil was held in place by a Camclot headpiece of matching lace.

SHE CARRIED a cascade of white phalaenopsis, yellow roses and orange baby's breath. "Something old" worn by the bride was a gold baby ring fastened to a chain around her neck. It belongs to her grandmother.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Judith Koehn. Bridesmaids were Peggy Rice of Palatine, Alison Morin, a cousin from Bay City, Mich., and Mary Ragland, the groom's sister.

The attendants wore bright yellow chiffon over taffeta gowns fashioned with scoop necklines and long sheer sleeves. The cuffs and Empire waistlines were trimmed in orange and green floral trim. Each girl wore in her hair a bow made out of the same fabric of the dresses. They carried floral balls of carnations, abbey roses and baby's breath.

LARRY SHEAFFER, a friend of Arthur's from Aurora, was best man. Ken Gue of Schaumburg, Scott Jensen of Palatine and the bride's brother Larry were ushers.

A dinner reception following the ceremony was held in the Grand Ballroom of

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ragland

Howard Johnson's.

The couple will be moving to Oak Park in September and Joan will attend the University of Illinois Circle Campus. She is currently employed by Palatine Park District.

Her husband is with Aldens, Inc. in Chicago.

Mrs. David G. Granzin

DAVID CHOSE a friend, William Altier of Plymouth, Minn., as best man and asked Lt. William Granzin, his brother, of Tacoma, Wash.; Charles Kroon, Rochester; and Robert Kelly, the bride's brother, to usher.

Virginia attended college at State University, Brockport, N. Y., and David at Valparaiso (Ind.) University.

Kathy McAllister's engagement to Hubbard L. Helm, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Holm, 508 W. Lounquist Pkwy., Mount Prospect, is announced by her parents, the R. W. McAllisters of Burlington, Iowa.

Kathy just graduated from the University of Iowa where she was a member of Chi Omega Sorority. Her fiancé, a '67 graduate of Forest View High School, attended Humboldt State College in Arcata, Calif., and will receive a degree from Iowa in December. He is affiliated with Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity.

They have not set a wedding date.

Lynne Broberg

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Broberg, 260 Woodland Drive, Mount Prospect, announce their daughter Lynne's engagement to Rick Swetman, son of the Leroy Swetmans of 7 E. Pickwick, Arlington Heights.

Lynne graduated from Maine West High School, Des Plaines, attended Trinity College, Deerfield, and is working with Campus Life clubs at Maine East and Maine South High Schools. Rick graduated from Forest View High and is a cadet at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y.

They will be married after his graduation.

Mary Virginia Dilger

Mary Virginia Dilger and her fiancé, Patrick Edward Bradley, are planning an Oct. 14 wedding, according to an announcement by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Dilger, 511 Devonshire Lane, Hoffman Estates.

She and Pat, son of the Edward H. Bradleys of 1245 S. Hickory, Arlington Heights, work for Motorola in Schaumburg. She is a secretary.

Mary Virginia attended the Academy of the Immaculate Conception in Ferdinand, Ind. Pat is a graduate of Notre Dame High School and Marquette University.

Judy Willcox

The engagement of Judy Willcox to Daniel R. Linsley, son of the Robert D. Linsleys of Milwaukee, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William V. Willcox, 625 S. Highland Ave., Arlington Heights. The wedding is set for August of '73.

The couple are juniors at Valparaiso (Ind.) University. Judy, an Arlington High School graduate, is a member of Phi Beta Chi Sorority and Dan of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

Patricia O'Neal

Patricia Ellen O'Neal of Arlington Heights and Robert Young of Palatine, are engaged and planning a November wedding. Patricia is the daughter of the Walton O. O'Neals of 923 N. Fernandez. Her fiancé's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Young, 1515 King George Court.

The young couple graduated from their local high schools, and Bob has attended Ohio State University and the University of Illinois Circle Campus.

David Hedlund Goes To Sweden To Take Bride

Mr. and Mrs. David Hedlund

David C. Hedlund's Swedish pen-pal became his wife June 17 in a ceremony in Lundsbrunn, Sweden. The bride is Eva Brith K. Larsson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oskar Larsson of Tibro, Sweden. The groom's parents are the Fred Hedlunds of 508 N. Emerson, Mount Prospect.

The couple began corresponding in 1965 as a result of the Hedlunds' travels to their native Sweden. The romance blossomed as David visited Eva Brith in Sweden and she visited here.

The new Mrs. Hedlund's sister, Anita Larsson, was her matron of honor, and best man was James McVicker of Arlington Heights. Ushers were Ingar-Lill Janzon and Hakan Sterner of Tibro. The groom's cousins, Ronny and Peter Woulet, 9 and 6, of Tibro, were also part of the wedding procession. The boys led the couple to the altar and threw rose petals at them as they left the church.

The bride was formerly employed by the Handelsbanken (bank) of Tibro. The groom, a graduate of Prospect High School, attended Wright Junior College, Chicago, and the Navy's Nuclear Power and Electrical Technical schools. He also served in Vietnam.

David now works for Securitrone Corp. in Palatine. Since their wedding and a two-week honeymoon in Sweden, the newlyweds are living in Arlington Heights.

A Very Personal Wedding Service

An informal, outdoor wedding in which the bride and groom designed and made their unusual attire and arranged the festivities in their own personal way took place July 1 in Inverness.

Students at the University of Illinois, Kate Bloodgood and Greg Kramer chose the garden of the bride's family home for their two o'clock wedding celebration.

Former Women Marines Form Area Chapter

Margo Hancock of Mount Prospect has been named vice president of a newly formed unit of the Women Marines Association. Thirty former women marines recently gathered at Glenview Naval Air Station to organize the Osborne Chicago Area Chapter.

Mrs. Bernadette Kruszynski, wife of a Chicago policeman, is president.

The chapter, 30th in the nationwide Association, honors the late Blanche C. Osborne, a Chicagoan who was the third woman to join the Marine Corps in World War I. During World War II she wrote a newspaper column, "Soldier's Friend," in the Chicago American, now Chicago Today.

All former women marines are welcome into membership. Margo Hancock may be contacted locally at 509 Holly Ave., Mount Prospect, for further information.

The Association's convention this year will be held Aug. 15-19 in Honolulu.

Newcomers To Bake Lobsters 'n Steak

Couples from the Palatine Newcomers Club are invited to a summer social evening Saturday, Aug. 12, at the home of the James Livingstons, 1100 Pepper Tree Drive.

A "Lobster and Steak Bake" will feature clams and live lobsters flown in from Maine. Also on the menu will be wine, baked potato, salad and dessert. Cost is $13 per couple.

Deadline for reservations is Tuesday, Aug. 1, with Mrs. John Horrisroe, 358-7509.

The reception started first, under a large striped tent decked with white, blue and yellow balloons and streamers.

After all the guests assembled, they formed a large circle on the lawn, and the couple emerged from the woods to walk into the circle for the actual ceremony. Kate and Greg exchanged vows they wrote themselves in front of the Rev. Robert Koewing. They had no attendants.

During the service, Greg's brother Chip and his instrumental group played appropriate guitar music. Afterwards the circle of guests closed in on the newlyweds to express best wishes and happiness.

KATE IS THE daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Owen Bloodgood of Inverness. Greg's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Charles Kramer of Oak Park.

The two families have been linked in friendship for three generations since Kate's and Greg's paternal grandfathers were Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity brothers and roommates at the University of Illinois.

For her wedding the bride designed her dress in pastel shades of pink, yellow, blue and green. The bodice was of pink dotted swiss and had yellow and white embroidered puffed sleeves. The skirt was three-tiered in checked gingham, one tier in pink, one blue and one green. Each tier was edged with hot pink grosgrain ribbon.

The bride wore no veil and carried no flowers, but she did braid small multicolored carnations into her hair.

GREG'S WEDDING attire was colorful, a pair of blue and red trousers topped by a bright yellow shirt with green collar. He made the outfit himself.

After the nuptials, at which 100 guests were present, the couple departed on a two-week camping trip to New York State.

They are now back in Champaign, where Kate is a student at the U of I and her husband is working for the American Oil Chemists Society.

AREA DELEGATES to the recent Alpha Omicron Pi Region IV meeting at the University of Illinois included Debra Sales, Rolling Meadows, collegiate chapter president at Northern Illinois University; Mrs. W. R. Motweiler, Mount Prospect, executive vice president; Mrs. Daniel Pelletiere Jr., Palatine, president of Northwest Suburban Alumnae; and Mrs. Jack Clark Jr., Arlington Heights, alumnae representative of Northwestern's collegiate chapter.

Dear Dorothy: Because I've learned how important it is to keep warranties when buying most everything these days, I keep them all in one drawer. With them is a notebook on which I mark the date of purchase of each item, then add any service calls to the data. It's silly to try to remember all these details and putting them down in black and white helps future transactions. — Jenny S.

Jaycee-ettes Plan Regional Meeting

Schaumburg Jaycee-ettes will be hosting an all-day North Region meeting Sunday at Itasca Holiday Inn. The agenda includes an officers' training session, forum on scrapbooks and a project seminar.

The scrapbook contest winner for 1971-72 will also be announced.

Thirty Jaycee wives' chapters have been invited to the meeting. It begins at 11 a.m. and continues to 5 p.m.

Dear Dorothy: Would you mind putting something in your column about never putting anything in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator or freezer unless properly wrapped in either foil or moisture-vaporproof paper? Gambling Losses Pushed Him To An 'Outfit' Loan, Then To The FBI

(Second in a Series.)
by MORT GOLDEN
As Told to Ira Berkow

On the morning of June 6, 1965, I woke up on a cot in a strange room. There was a marker on my chest. It read that I owed $50,000 from gambling losses from the night before. My signature was on it. A man was sitting nearby. He said I owed him the money. I didn't remember him, and I remembered only part of the night before.

I had gone with a friend to a big house somewhere in Indiana, just outside of Chicago. It was a gambling house, filled with crap tables and card tables. My friend said it was a syndicate gambling joint. I didn't care. I went readily. I had to go somewhere because I had just suffered what was then the most depressing, the most agonizing period of my life.

Two weeks before, my son David was born. The doctor told me that my son was fighting for his life. He had an incurable, deadly disease. Miracles happen. David hung onto life. After two weeks, the doctor said that he would live but that he would possibly be blind for the rest of his life.

That was an awful blow. In the last two weeks I had hardly slept more than a couple of hours in a night. I remember stumbling from the hospital. I drove to a neighborhood restaurant in a fog of pity, self-pity, pity for my wife, pity for poor David. It sounds funny now, but I was drowning my sorrow in a bowl of chicken noodle soup when I saw this friend. He suggested the crap game. I was glad to be with someone. I was glad to be going somewhere — away.

I BEGAN to shoot craps. Not only was I losing myself in the game, but I was losing my money too. It was something like $300. That was a lot to me at the time. I was 26 then, and had gambled very little in my life — horses some, gin rummy some, not much else. I was an average, middle-class Jewish business machines salesman. No gambler.

What happened that night? I don't know. Charles Siragusa, director of the Illinois Crime Commission and a man I came to deal with closely and at length, later suggested that I might have been drugged. Maybe. I'll probably never know.

What I do know was that I had an enormously heavy debt to pay. And I paid it within 10 days. I borrowed from everyone I knew, including business associates. No questions were asked and I got the money quite easily.

I never had had financial problems before. My problems came in paying those people back. I began to float checks; that is, borrowing from Peter to pay Paul. The trick is to keep the money circulating.

But there came a day, a few months after that disastrous night in Indiana, when either I came up with $3,000 by the next morning or my name and reputation in business would be ruined.

I WENT to another friend and told him my situation. I know he knew Mafia people. He tried to talk me out of going to them for a loan. I said I had no choice, I was desperate. Mafia loan sharks do serve a purpose. They are there when a man who needs money has exhausted banks, friends — all other "legitimate" possibilities to obtain loans.

You must go to them. They don't come to you and say, "Hey, Buddy, need a loan?"

After several phone calls, and dead-end appointments, and after much waiting — the Outfit checks their victims out thoroughly — we met two guys in a coffee shop. One was called "Radio." They asked me how much I needed and what for, and when could I pay it back. They said they'd have a guy meet me later that night after it was cleared. The guy never showed. I went home. At about 3 in the morning I got a call. It was from Dick Card, a former Chicago cop who was now a high Mafia loan shark man.

"Where were you?" he said, in his gruffest voice.

"Where was I? I waited for hours."

He apologized, said there must have been a mix-up. As I found out later, they were just testing me, wanting to know how I would react. He said to meet him the next night. I did some fancy footwork to delay my creditors for one more day, and met Card the next night in the same restaurant.

DICK CARD is about 6-3, weighs about 240 pounds, dark-complexioned and looks tough as hell. He was inconspicuously dressed in a red knit shirt and black golf slacks.

We went to a nearby park, with "Radio" and his partner. As we walked there, I got a shiver of fright. Was this my last walk? Would I wind up dead in a car trunk? I had heard and read about the Mafia.

It was black in the park, except for a dim street lamp. I could barely make out Card's face. The terms, he told me, were for me to pay $600 interest on a $3,000 loan, at $50 a week minimum. He told me that if I kept my end of the deal that there would be no trouble.

"And sometimes kids get sick or something happens and you have to miss a payment, that's O.K.," he said. "We're human guys, not the criminals the paper prints us up to be. As long as you treat us legitimate you got nothing to be scared of."

THEN HE took out a roll of bills from his back pocket. He gave it to me. I put it in my pocket.

"No," he said. "Count it."

I did. It was all there.

"You got a way home? You want us to escort you?" he asked. "It's your money now. If some character jumps you and takes it, it's your responsibility."

I thanked him, but said that I had a car and didn't foresee any trouble getting home.

My first loan was paid back on time. I made more loans when more checks that I had written had to be paid. And interest began to grow and grow. I began to gamble a lot. I went to Las Vegas, to Los Angeles, to Denver. My life was in a tailspin. It was an unbelievable two years. Finally, there was nothing left for me to do. I called the FBI.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Could you help me? Five years ago when I was expecting, my obstetrician told me not to consume salt or sugar because my body retained fluid which resulted in too much of a weight gain. Since that time I have used a salt substitute and liquid sugar substitute. Nevertheless, I've gained 20 excess pounds of weight.

Now I've read the label on both those products and both of them contain sodium. I thought this was the reason you couldn't use salt. What good does it do to use a substitute if it contains sodium too?

How big a chance would I be taking if I gave up salt altogether? There have been several members of my family who have had goiters, and what I want to know is, is there any other way I can get iodine if I don't use salt?

Dear Reader — The 20 extra pounds you've gotten have probably been from eating too many calories and not from using either salt or sugar substitutes. You are right, however, that it's the sodium in the salt that's associated with fluid retention. There's very little reason for having a salt substitute which contains lots of sodium.

There probably isn't enough sodium in the artificial sweetener that you use to make that much difference. Neither of these preparations would have iodine in them anyway, so the likelihood is that you're not getting any iodine from the salt substitute you are using.

In any case, you have a good point. One of the major sources for iodine in most of the diet is iodized salt, and it's a good idea for people in most parts of the world to use iodized salt to prevent goiters.

Because of your family history, I think you might choose to see your doctor, and if he agrees with your not using salt, he might choose to give you some medicine with some iodine in it that you could take regularly. This is often done in the treatment of goiters that are caused by iodine deficiencies. He might also want to look into your thyroid status to see if it has anything to do with that extra 20 pounds of weight you've gained. Seafood often contains appreciable amounts of iodine and that's one dietary source. Many city water supplies contain iodine.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Do you believe in hypnosis for losing weight?

Dear Reader — Yes, if it is combined with suggestions for a sensible, well-balanced diet. It would be very important that the hypnotic suggestion not be tied to some sort of crash or fad diet, which might be injurious to the health. There are a lot of good things that can be accomplished with hypnosis. In this instance, if it works for an individual, it would work by reinforcing the person's desire not to eat excessive calories.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Some years ago the late Walter Malow reported on how he was being victimized by the jack of clubs. Here we find California expert Jim Kauder reporting on how the same card mistreated him.

Jim's two-diamond call was one of those weak two bids after which the partnership proceeded to a good diamond game.

West opened the ace of spades and continued with the deuce. East won the trick with the queen and shifted to a trump. Jim won in his own hand: ruffed his last spade in dummy; led and ruffed a heart with both opponents playing low; entered dummy with a trump; cashed the ace of clubs; ruffed another heart; drew East's last trump and stopped to count.

West had discarded the jack of spades and jack of hearts on the last two trump leads. Obviously his last four cards were three clubs and the ace of hearts. East had to be holding two hearts, the king of spades and one club.

The odds in favor of finding the jack of clubs in the West hand were three to one so Jim made the expert's play of leading his 10 of clubs and letting it ride. East cashed a surprise trick with his singleton jack and the expert had paid the penalty of knowing too much.

11 Park Districts Bid For Olympics

This week's rain hasn't dampened the hopes of 11 park districts that have been vigorously preparing for the 6th Annual Paddock Olympics Tuesday and Wednesday at Conant High School.

Most of the entries of Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove, Hanover Park, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Salt Creek, Schaumburg and Wheeling have been conducting Olympic trials in their own districts for selection of prime contenders in next week's World Series of Track.

At this writing, host Schaumburg Park District was applying the finishing touches to its staff that will actually conduct the proceedings and to a 4 x 8-foot scoreboard that will keep the numbers game up to date and for everyone to see.

Boys and girls between the ages of 8-13 as of Tuesday are eligible for the 10 events offered by the Olympics. Individual competition in standing long jump, 50 and 100-yard dashes, jump rope, softball throw, kickball, tennis singles and basketball free-throw shooting are sure to challenge the contestants.

Teams will be allowed to compete against one another in the events of shuttle relays and tug-of-war in search of the immense traveling trophy that will be presented to the winning park district at the conclusion of Wednesday's program.

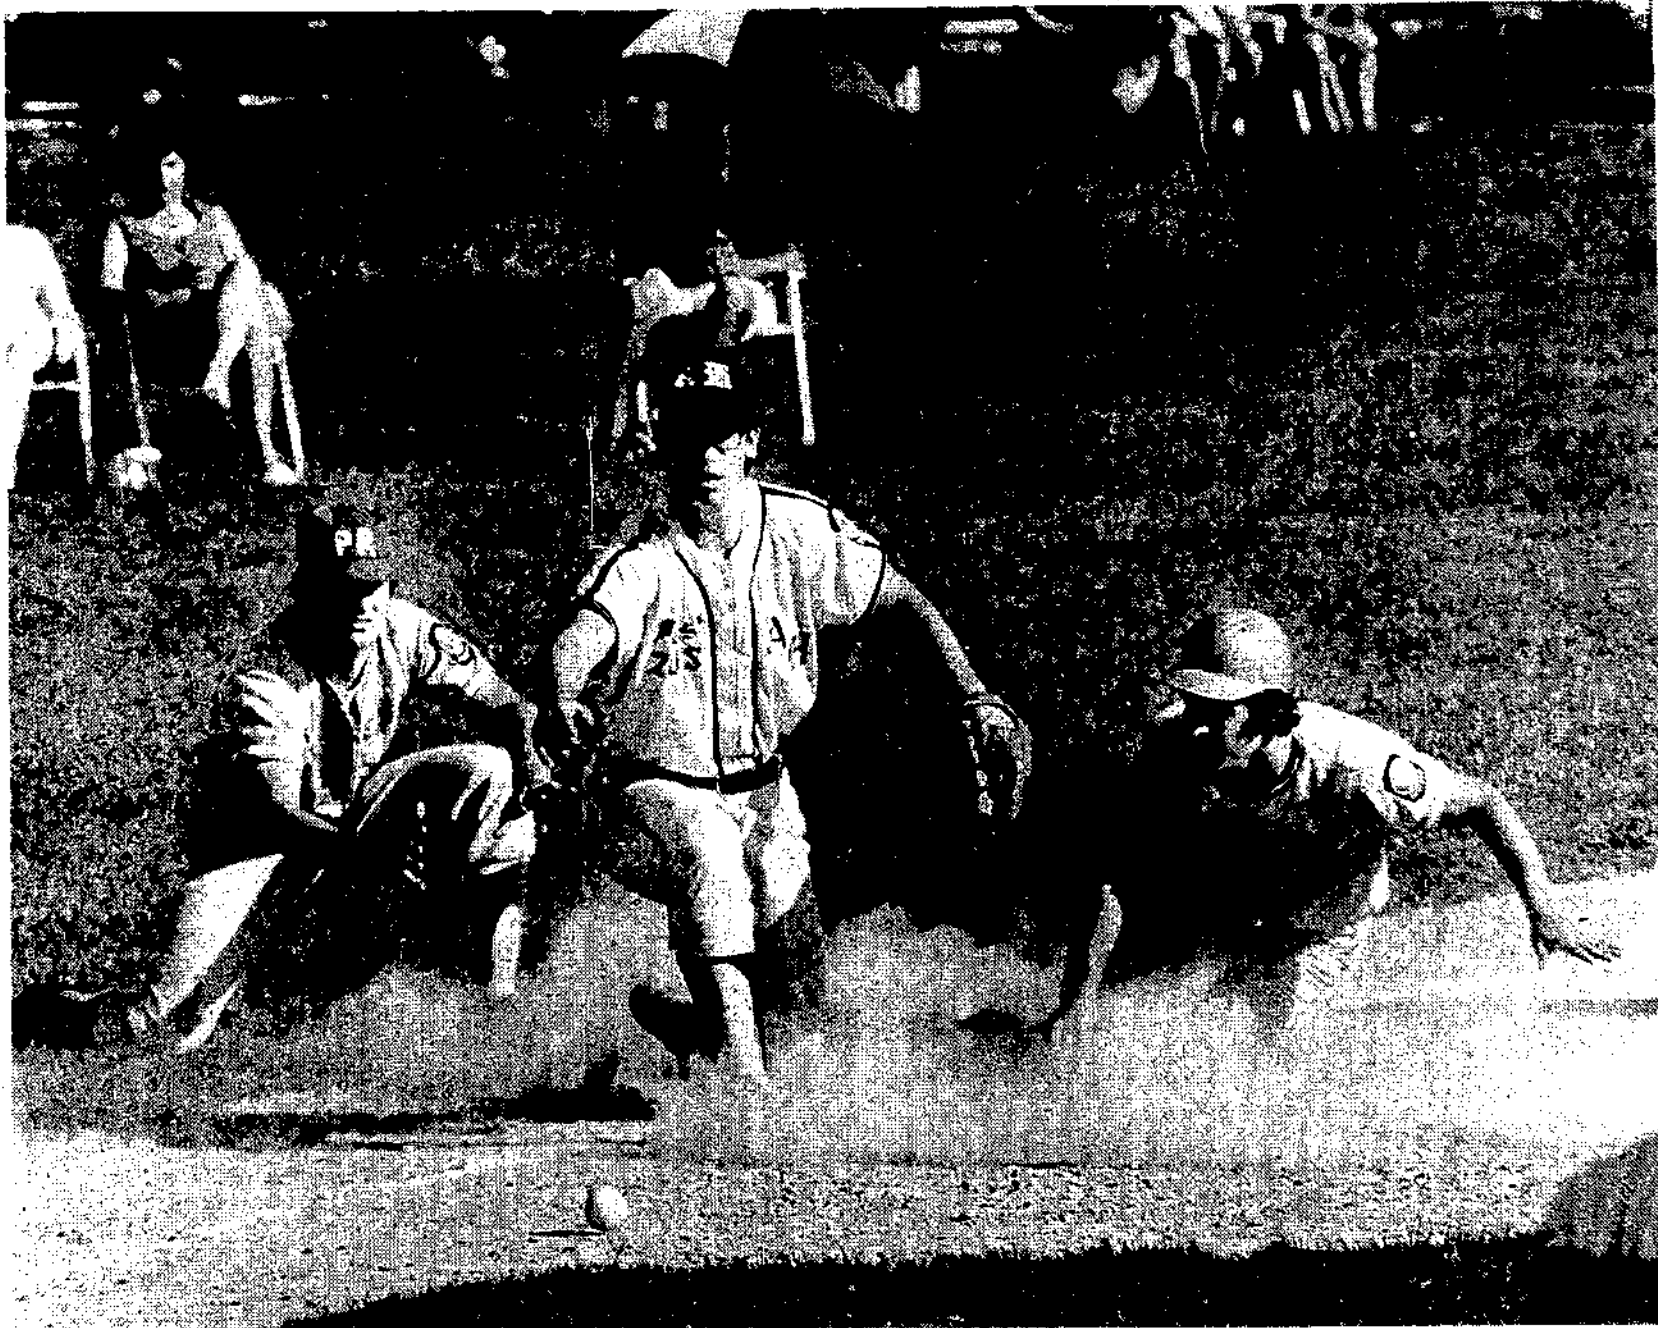

In addition, every participant in the 6th Annual Paddock Olympics will receive a patch while the first five positions in each individual event and top three in the team competition will be rewarded with ribbons.

Points will be distributed on a 6-4-3-2-1 basis for individual events and 10-8-6 for team competition. Each park district must enter at least six of 10 events while no individual may compete in more than two individual events and one team event.

Another responsibility of the participating park districts is to supply each candidate with event cards that include the name of the park district, the event, their name and age. Birth certificates requested for individuals that may not look their age.

TUESDAY
8:00-9:30 — Park Districts arrive and find place in stands.
9:30 — Opening Ceremonies.

Kickin' It Around

BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

Bob Frisk is on vacation. His 'Kickin' It Around' Column Will Resume Upon His Return.

Little League Baseball—Good, Bad

NEW YORK (UPI)—Little League — good or bad?

The question has been tackled by psychologists, doctors, parents, friends and enemies of players. Depending on the aim one takes, the answer is either — "good" or "bad."

Psychologists don't like Moms and Dads who push their kids to tears before, during or after a game. The game's supposed to be fun.

Physicians often don't like the stresses put on developing bones — especially those involved in the pitching of a curve ball.

Parents usually are wild about the game, especially seeing their son win out over some other couple's child.

Leaders of women's liberation hate the all-male aspect of Little League — a practice to abhor until the stereotyping of sex roles ends.

Dr. Wesley W. Hall, who practiced medicine in Reno, Nev., for 25 years, has been a part-time high school and college team physician for most of his professional career, is one sports enthusiast who doesn't count Little League out. The president of the American Medical Association, Hall has served as Boxing and Wrestling Commissioner in Nevada. He is interested in some changes to make sports safe-not just Little League.

"I love to see youngsters play baseball," Hall said. "It's good for them — if their coaches are wise people, and the mothers and fathers don't push too hard.

"But I think coaches should know that when they allow or encourage 10- and 11-year-olds to throw curve balls, they're running the risk of giving that youngster a sore elbow for the rest of his life."

At Little League age, the bones aren't developed yet. To accommodate the growth of the long bones the ends are attached to the shaft by cartilage which with maturity will disappear as the end becomes permanently attached.

But the motion used to toss a curve is a twisting one and that, in combination with the leverage action of the elbow, can spell future trouble for the young pitcher whose bone-ends are not anchored permanently.

"For a period," Dr. Hall said, "I was taking care of the Reno Silver Sox. That's class A professional ball. Three boys came in. All had elbow trouble and all three had played Little League ball."

"I asked them out of every 10 balls that you pitched when you were in Little League, how many were curves? Nine out of 10. Now that's too much of a strain on a mature pitcher's arm, let alone on a kid's. No wonder all three had elbow problems."

Pint-sized football, meanwhile, draws six notices from Hall.

"A Little League football circuit was started in Reno not too long ago," he said. "The first year there were three fractured legs. Those kids simply aren't fast, they're not shifty and they get hit. And at their age their homes are still pretty tender."

Hall contends that boys nine years old are too young to suit up.

What about high school football? Listen to the doctor.

"When my boy started to play football in high school he had a 16 inch neck. By the time he was a senior, after a few years of blocking with his headgear, his neck had gone to 18 inches."

"Now I'm not about to criticize the way kids are taught to block, but if they didn't wear such godawful hard helmets there wouldn't be as many ruptured spleens and bruised kidneys in football. Those helmets are just like battering rams.

"When I was in my last year of medical school, we did a series of urinalysis on football players. Seventy per cent of them had microscopic blood in their urine, some had enough to color it."

"Sure the body is resilient and kidneys heal, but what concerns me is the total effect after a few years of the kidneys being bruised regularly."

Hall would like to see the soft plastic helmet become a standard part of the football uniform. The new helmet protects the cranium but is not a potentially aiming guided missile.

The doctor also has no forgiveness in him for the coach who will endanger the health of a player by sending him back into a game after he is knocked out.

Brain damage doesn't show up immediately on an electroencephalogram, but takes up to three days before it can be detected. In the meantime, if a player is sent back with even slight tearing of the brain tissue, his reaction time and reflexes will have been slowed just enough so that he is open to still more injuries. Violent jarring in itself might be enough to cause further tearing of the brain.

"It's a game," Dr. Hall said, "Don't endanger a boy's life."

'Nice Curve.' 'Huh? That Was My Knuckle!'

Legion Tourney Switch—Now Single Elimination

Gene Sackett, chairman of Ninth District baseball, has announced a severe reorganization of the league tournament to select a representative to the Cook County playoffs.

The tournament was originally designed as a four-day double-elimination affair, but the incessant rain Wednesday and part of Thursday has forced Sackett to revamp the tourney into a three-day single-elimination setup. Instead of playing 10 or 11 games (depending on whether or not a team which reaches the finals is undefeated) the Ninth District will now play only six or seven games.

Contacted Thursday, Sackett said, "I've been up since 6 a.m. this morning trying to figure out what to do. The weather is killing us and there is just no other choice. We can't be pulling kids out of work to play during the day and it is no good to play Sunday morning. Besides, I've been to all the fields and they are 2½ inches deep in mud. And they're not drying a bit."

Asked if the single-elimination tournament was legal, Sackett replied, "All we have to do is determine a winner from this league in any way we want to. Other leagues don't even hold tournaments. We're the only one in the state that does. "It's too bad it has to be this way but it can't be helped. If people don't like it, tough."

The new Ninth District tournament will begin today at 5 p.m. with Des Plaines taking on Norwood Park at Forest View High School and Palatine playing Schiller Park at Recreation Park.

The winner of the Palatine-Schiller Park contest will advance to a 1 p.m. Saturday game with Park Ridge. The victor in the Des Plaines-Norwood Park encounter will take on Logan Square at 4 p.m. Both games will be held at Recreation Park.

The two winners of the two Saturday games will then meet at 1 p.m. Sunday at Recreation Park and will play a best-of-three series for the right to represent the Ninth District in the Cook County playoffs. Two games will be played Sunday. If a champion is not determined at that time, the final game will be held Monday.

TOURNAMENT SCHEDULE (Single-elimination tournament)

Games Friday
Game 1 — Des Plaines vs. Norwood Park. 5 p.m. at Forest View Game 2 — Palatine vs. Schiller Park. 5 p.m. at Rec. Park.

Games Saturday
Game 3 — Park Ridge vs. Winner of Game 2. 1 p.m. at Rec. Park Game 4 — Logan Square vs. Winner of Game 1. 4 p.m. at Rec. Park

Games Sunday
Games 5 & 6 — Winners of Games 3 and 4 will play best-of-three series for title. 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. at Rec. Park.

Game Monday
Game 7 — Third game of championship series. 5 p.m. at Rec. Park (if necessary)

THE DAMAGE HAD BEEN DONE when Park Ridge's Steve Sarcia tagged out Randy Jaspersen Saturday in the All-Star game Saturday. A ball four passed ball set up two scoring opportunities after two were out. Jaspersen tried to sneak to second during the commotion at home plate but was cut down. This Des Plaines-player and his All-Star teammates went on to win easily, 11-3. (Photo by Jim Frost)

Record Field For Paddock Tourney

The all-time largest field will be on the tees at Golden Acres Country Club next month for the 23rd annual Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap Golf Tournament.

Leading the list of 34 teams is the host course with eight foursomes. The 34 entrants is three more than competed last year at Buffalo Grove Golf Club. Those teams leading their leagues by Saturday will play in the tourney. This year's tourney will be played on Sunday, Aug. 20 on two of Golden Acres' three nine-hole courses. This layout has hosted two other tourneys in the past.

The following leagues have entered the tourney: Arlington Country Club — Arlington Elks Club, Desota, Inc., Ekco Products, Inc. and Friday Nighters

Mount Prospect Country Club — Monday, Tuesday and Friday leagues
Rob Roy Country Club — Tuesday Nighters, St. James, Fastex, Universal Oil and St. Alphonsus

Golden Acres Country Club — City Products, Chemplex, Twinbrook YMCA, Parker-Hannifin, Hoffman Estates Men and three leagues from Western Electric

Buffalo Grove Golf Club — Sala Lee and Buffalo Grove Men

Old Orchard Country Club — Scratch League, Proflexray, St. Colette's, NSMA and Arlington VFW

Palatine Hills Golf Club — American Can Co., Union Oil Monday and Tuesday leagues

Thunderbird Country Club — Arlington Twilighters and Countryside YMC.

Bartlett Hills Country Club — Bartlett Hills Men's League

White Pines Golf Club — Tioga VFW

All of the teams that represent these leagues will be vying for these prizes:

- Large traveling team trophy
- 4 silver Revete bowls for first place
- 4 trophies for second and a like number for third
- 8 golf passes for fourth
- Dozen top quality golf balls for low net and a like quantity for low gross
- $100 cash award for a hole-in-one

As soon as the first-place team is determined, secretaries are urged to get the entry blank with accompanying check in the mail promptly. This will greatly aid the tourney committee in setting up the tourney.

Right hand drive sweeping fenders fold in windscreen, cut down doors and 19 inch wire wheels. Room enough for two. And fun enough to breed a generation of sports car enthusiasts. That was the MG TC. Behind its wheel thousands of Americans first discovered the joy of downshifting through a curve and the quickness of sports car handling. Today that car has evolved to the MGB. Still pure sports car. Still most at home on twisting ribbons of almost forgotten scenic route where cars go to be driven, not scorched off the line in a brute display of acceleration. As Motor Trend reported in October '71— 'You can find them any day on any piece of twisting pike... leaving the bigger now' cars in their wake.'

Yet today's MGB is equally at home on six lane expressway. With direct rack and pinion steering, 10.5 inch front disc brakes, race seasoned suspension, 4 speed close ratio gearbox and a high performance 1798 c.c. overhead valve engine — all the world is its road. Even in the fiercely competitive world of racing, MGB excels in its class. It's the reigning SCCA National Champion in E Production. MGB also sports reclining bucket seats, full carpeting, leather wrapped steering wheel, a cooler and full sports car instrumentation including tachometer and trip odometer. What about you? Do you want to discover or re-discover the sheer joy of sports motoring? If so, see you at Koske.

MARK'S MISTAKE. A Mark Leonhard fastball sails past first base giving Steve Bobowski a free ticket to second Monday night. Logan Square's Bobowski had chopped the ball down the third base line and Leonhard had to hurry his throw to first baseman Dave Giles. Arlington's Leonhard made sure Bobowski was left stranded on base, however, by one-hitting the Lions, 9-0.

SENIOR DIVISION
STANDINGS — R & K Construction 6-0, Graebel American Movers 3-3, First Bank & Trust 2-2, Rich Port Realty 2-3, Carpenter Computer Service 0-5.
R & K Construction 600 001 4-5-1
Rich Port Realty 082 110 0-4-5
Mark Maurizio got the victory over Bill Krohn. R & K came from behind in the seventh to win their seventh straight. John Brown and Mike Fanelia each drove in two runs. Fanelia bringing in the winner. Pat McNeerney made a fine catch to end the game.

Grabel 210 000 0-3-4
R & K Construction 290 021 x-5-4
The winners again came from behind for their eighth victory in a row. Dave Kunzweiler pitched four innings of shutout relief for the win. Chris Bone tripled for Graebel.

Rich Port Realtors 301 102 0-7-15
Carpenter Computer 110 000 2-1-9
Grover Allen smashed a triple and Bruce Delfonso a double. Bill Odell got the triumph, helped by two Rich Port double plays.

TOURNAMENT TEAM
Des Plaines 610 000-7-6-2
Palatine North 115 001 —3-10-3
The tournament team advanced to the District 14 semi-final game with a thrilling, come-from-behind victory. Palatine North had to wipe out a six-run deficit in the first inning. Rick Flynn blasted a home run and Jack Ward a double. Matt Miller turned in a shutout pitching performance after relieving in the third for the victory.

BLUE DIVISION
The Arlington Heights Elks, coached by Dick Goller, won the division championship. They won both halves and had a record of 18-2.
Rotary 311 020-7-8
Pak National Bank 000 200-2-2
Jack Butler pitched a two-hitter for the triumph. Vince Maher belted a home run and double for Rotary. Jeff Sheppard was three for three including a double. Ken Krawzak homered for the losers.

Rotary 000 105-6-5-1
Kiwanis 380 300-5-7-1
Jack Butler cracked a double with the bases loaded for the winners and Jim Creighton doubled for Kiwanis.

RED DIVISION
STANDINGS (second-half final) — Latof Motors 5-2, Nelson Realty 5-2, Dart Inc. 5-2, Fox Insurance 3-1, Democratic Party 2-5, Arlington Realty 1-8.
(All three teams tied for first place will play off to determine who will meet Fox Insurance, winner of the first half).

Dart Freight 000 200-2-2-3
Nelson Realty 005 200-7-7-2
Bob Curylo pitched a two-hitter, striking out 13, and provided himself with a working margin by blasting a grand-slam home run. The win put Nelson in a three-way tie for first place. Tom O'Driscoll collected three hits for the winners.

Nelson Realty 329 14-19-19-1
Arlington Realty 152 04-12-11-9
Bob Winstead had three hits and Dan Bone two including a triple for Nelson Realty. Chris Brown also had two hits driving in three runs. Dave Handel and Dewey Murdock each collected three hits for the losers.

FUTURE STARS
STANDINGS (second-half final) — Blue 5-0, Green 5-3, Gold 4-4, Red 3-5, Orange 0-8.

Championship Game

Blue 300 001-4-7-4

Gold 000 000-0-1-0

The Blues allowed the Golds only one hit in winning the title and their 14th game in a row. Jeff Abrahamson and Jim Rance each pitched three sterling innings. Rance also blasted a home run, Eric Jeffries a triple and Terry Donahue three singles. Mitch Sheppard turned in two sparkling defensive plays.

Blue 301 000-4-11-2

Rance and Abrahamson again pitched half a game apiece in a sparkling pitching combine. Rance doubled, Jeffries tripled and Brent Wheat singled twice. This was the Blues' 13th straight for the second-round title.

Orange 000 02-2-3-4

Red 320 70-17-7-2

Tommy Portera hurled a one-hitter and struck out eight before Mike Gerdes earned a save. Gerdes smashed a triple and double for five runs batted in and Tim Lee cracked a two-bagger and drove in a pair.

Olympic Feats Of 1912

(One of a series on extraordinary happenings in each of the 16 modern Olympic Games.)

STOCKHOLM, 1912 — The sad, tragic figure of the fifth Olympic Games was America's all-around athlete, Jim Thorpe, who scored overwhelming victories in the Pentathlon and Decathlon.

But he was to hold his Olympic gold medals for less than a year. On February 6, 1913, it was revealed that Thorpe had once accepted money for playing in minor league baseball.

Three other American athletes had trouble at the Olympics. D. Kahanamoku, K. Huszagh and P. McGilivray qualified easily in the second rounds of the 100-meter freestyle swimming championship at Stockholm on Sunday morning, July 7, 1912.

Then, with the assurance of officials that they had already qualified for the Olympic final the following morning, they cheerfully left the swimming stadium. But the same officials later decided that semi-finals would be held and they duly ran them off.

Not unexpectedly, this caused trouble when the three Americans arrived for the final the following morning and discovered that they had been eliminated — by default.

However a compromise was reached. The three Americans would swim in a special 100-meter race and provided they surpassed the time of the slowest qualifier in the semi-finals proper, they would be in the final.

Both Kahanamoku and Huszagh managed to do this and indeed, the former, in a blaze of temper, covered the course in a new world and Olympic record of 24.4 seconds. Duke Kahanamoku went on to take the gold medal and Huszagh the bronze.

Irving-Lake Team Vying In Sectionals

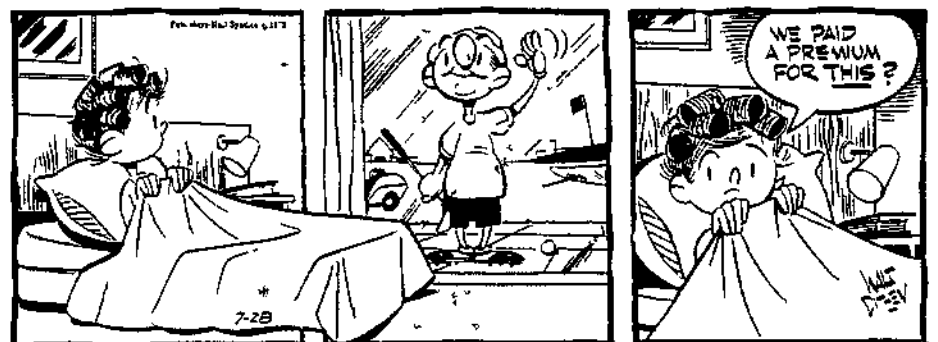

The Irving-Lake Senior Babe Ruth League all-star team, composed of the best Babe Ruth players from Schaumburg, Streamwood, Hoffman Estates, Bartlett and Hanover Park, is currently engaged in the Ohio Valley Sectional Tournament where the winner will advance to the national finals in Monroeville, North Carolina.

Irving-Lake won its District by winning three out of four in Joliet, then won the Illinois State title with four straight wins at Champaign. The team is now playing in Alpena, Mich., in the Sectional tournament.

Lou Bocci, coach of the Irving-Lake squad, has said he feels his team's chances to advance to the national championships are good. The nationals will be staged August 10-17.

Babe Ruth baseball celebrates its 20th anniversary this year. The Senior League, of which Irving-Lake is a part, is designed for boys 16-18 years of age.

O'Hare Bank Features Model Of Olympic Arena

Featured during July and August in the O'Hare Bank Lobby is a nine-foot scale model of the Olympiapark München, site of the 1972 Olympic Games in Munich, Germany.

The model depicts the 80,000-capacity Olympic Stadium, where the opening ceremonies for the games will be held on Aug. 26. Of special interest is the 9,000-seat Swimming Stadium where the winners of the Olympic Diving Trials, held in Park Ridge, will compete for the gold, silver and bronze medals.

Also featured in the model is the Olympic Village, which will house the 10,000 athletes from around the world. The 960-foot television tower contains a revolving restaurant and will be the originating point of live coverage of the games here in Chicago.

The model is described in three languages — German, French, and English, and is featured for public viewing through the cooperation of Lufthansa Airlines.

How You Can Check Car's Cool System

According to J. L. Yung, Ford Customer Service Division's Chicago district manager, a "do-it-yourself" check of your car's engine cooling system and air conditioner can help you avoid a costly breakdown or a spoiled vacation trip in the hot summer weeks ahead.

The Ford executive recommends the following cooling system check:

HOSES—Squeeze radiator and heater hoses for soft or brittle spots that indicate a need for replacement. White or rust-colored stains near hose clamps or elsewhere on the hose usually point to a loose connection or leak.

BELTS—Inspect fan and other drive belts for wear and tension. Belts that are worn, frayed or damaged should be replaced. Belts should give less than an inch under pressure from your thumb. If you're in doubt, ask your dealership's service department to check the belt with a tension gauge.

RADIATOR—Examine the surface of your car's radiator for dents or damage that might require repair. Also, make certain the radiator pressure cap locks firmly in place. If the spring on the pressure cap seems loose or weak, the cap may have to be replaced. (Use extreme caution whenever attempting to remove a pressure cap while the engine is still hot.)

COOLANT—The anti-freeze and water solution in your radiator should reach to within an inch of the radiator's filler neck or to the cold fill mark on the side of the radiator. If coolant is dirty or rusty, the system should be flushed and refilled with a fresh solution. If the system requires frequent amounts of additional water, a more thorough check by a service technician is advisable.

Air conditioning problems are more difficult to pinpoint, the Ford expert noted. However, a noticeable drop in cooling efficiency or a growling noise when the air conditioner is first turned on are two common signs that professional service may be needed.

Although nearly 30 million air-conditioned cars will be on the road by the end of 1972, few car owners realize that auto air conditioners should be checked by a trained mechanic at least once a year. Items that require attention include the air conditioner's compressor drive belt, refrigerant level, and attaching bolts and brackets.

Piepenbrink Gains Tourney Nod

The team entry from the Arlington VFW, Monday night golf league at Old Orchard Country Club for the Paddock Golf Tournament has been determined.

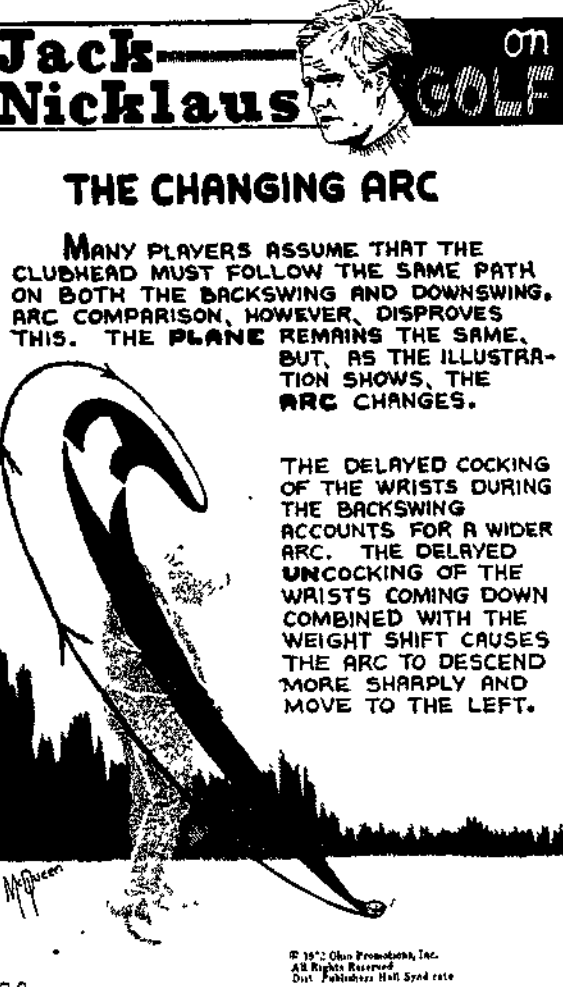

Piepenbrink Movers, leading the league most of the year, defeated Kolman Plumbing to earn a spot in the tournament. Congratulations to George Baranowski, Tom Fegan, Bill Behrens, Rick Weber and the sponsor Ed Piepenbrink.

Scott Tree and Landscaping made a good run at the leaders but fell short and remains in the No. 2 slot, followed by Felke Insurance and Active Heating, third and fourth respectively. The big winner was L'Nor Cleaners with a 24-0 win to jump up from 10th to sixth place.

Darryl Burkett once again took the gross honors with a fine 37 and Earl Johnson captured low net with his round of 40-9-31.

THE CHANGING ARC

MANY PLAYERS ASSUME THAT THE CLUBHEAD MUST FOLLOW THE SAME PATH ON BOTH THE BACKSWING AND DOWNSWING. ARC COMPARISON, HOWEVER, DISPROVES THIS. THE PLANE REMAINS THE SAME, BUT, AS THE ILLUSTRATION SHOWS, THE ARC CHANGES.

THE DELAYED COCKING OF THE WRISTS DURING THE BACKSWING ACCOUNTS FOR A WIDER ARC. THE DELAYED UNCOCKING OF THE WRISTS COMING DOWN COMBINED WITH THE WEIGHT SHIFT CAUSES THE ARC TO DESCEND MORE SHARPLY AND MOVE TO THE LEFT.

Meadows Pony League Series Slated

The Cardinals of the Pony Division in the Rolling Meadows Baseball league go into the World Series tonight with an 18-2 record, the best ever posted in the 14-year history of the league.

The Redbirds, managed by Tom Dunlavy, ended their season Tuesday night by defeating the Cubs 9-1 with Joe Nunez chalking up his fourth win.

The Redbirds No. 1 starting pitcher, John Igrasek, was nothing short of fantastic this season. Igrasek ended the regular season with 11 wins and one loss, pitching 73 innings, allowing 29 hits, striking out 141 while walking only 10 and allowing only five earned runs during the season.

Igrasek hurled two no-hitters. The fast balling pitcher hurled his second no-hitter in his last outing, striking out 18 batters. Igrasek's first no-hitter came in mid-season when he struck out 15 batters.

The Cardinals take a team batting percentage of .302 into the best-of-three game series against the Twins, who posted a 13-6 record while capturing the American division title.

TURNOUT DISAPPOINTING

Dear Paddock:
I was one of the few who turned out for the (Ninth District) Legion all-star baseball game last Saturday at Recreation Park and I was certainly disappointed in the small crowd.

Legion baseball is excellent for this age group (under 19 years of age) and the competition in this area has been close and exciting all season. The all-star game is the biggest attraction in the league all year until the tournaments. Why don't people realize this and want to see the best local baseball, only a short drive from their homes?

The crowd was much bigger at last year's game at St. Viator, although Recreation Park is a better place to watch a game with far more seats. The all-stars put on quite a show of hitting and pitching in this year's game and many local boys were outstanding. Too bad there were not more people to see it and support the fine Legion baseball program.

A Concerned Dad
LEO FAN IS SORRY...

Dear Sirs:
So Leo (Durocher) is finally gone. I suppose all of you writers are happy, because you and reporters from other papers have been saying "Leo must go" for a long time.

But how fast people forget. The Cubs were a doormat when Durocher arrived and he built them up into a contender in one year. Would Cub fans rather the team stayed in or near last place instead of the exciting teams of recent years?

I can just hear the argument — Leo did not win a pennant with good material. But there are many other reasons for this besides the manager, who always takes all the blame. Sometimes people are too demanding. Let's wait and see if the Cubs do any better without Leo (I doubt it) before we applaud his being fired.

Julie Christman

... SOX ROOTER IS, TOO

Dear Herald:
I am sorry to see that Leo Durocher was fired — not because I am a fan of Leo or the Cubs, but for the opposite reason. I am a White Sox fan and have no love for the Cubs. I was always secure in knowing they would never go anywhere with Durocher as long as P. K. Wrigley was dumb enough to keep him, because Leo caused nothing but resentment and dissension. Now, with him gone, I am afraid the Cubs might start playing ball and get back in the race. But probably not, because they don't have anywhere

ALL-STAR ANALYSIS

Dear Sirs:
Well, I guess the (major-league) all-star baseball game showed us all which one of our Chicago teams still comes through with better clutch performances. White Sox fans have been crowing all season that their team is taking over the city just because they have a better record than the Cubs at the moment. But there is a long way yet to go.

We all saw the "great" Wilbur Wood let down the entire American League by letting the Nationals use it in the ninth inning, with none other than Billy Williams — the most underrated star in baseball — starting the rally with a solid single on the very first pitch. We also saw "slugger" Richie Allen fail to hit the ball out of the infield in four times at bat.

Look for more of the same in the second half when the Cubs charge toward first place and the Sox sink toward the second division.

By the way, when I reminded a Sox fan about the all-star game, he used the excuse that Allen hits well in daylight and is not a nighttime player. I had to disagree. Allen is a great night player — at the race tracks!

STAR PICKS UNFAIR

Dear Sports Staff:
After studying the major-league baseball all-star rosters and statistics, I can see why there have been so many complaints from fans and players.

Some of the top National Leaguers who were left off by Manager Danny Murtough were Manny Mota with a .333 batting average and Bobby Tolan with 299 and 52 runs batted in. Billy Williams with a .342 average (over .400 for the last month) and 23 home runs was not voted in by the fans but was a last-minute addition. So was Fergie Jenkins with 12 wins not to mention five 20-win seasons in a row.

Willie Mays made the team with a .237 average. I admit that Mays is one of the greats of the game, but that's all in the past. I thought the 1972 all-star game was supposed to be for 1972 all-stars, not those from past years.

Also, two great relief pitchers did not make it — Sparky Lyle of the Yankees and Dave Giusti of the Pirates (14 saves and 1.91 earned-run average).

The voting privilege should be taken away from the fans and given back to the players and coaches. They know who is best and the fans obviously do not.

A Volkswagen Makes For A Strange Football

Football in July? Yes, and it will be happening at the Waukegan Speedway Sunday night, July 30, on the specially prepared infield. . . . and just so the stock car fans aren't disappointed . . . the players will use automobiles and the "football" will be a Volkswagen!

"Stock car football" will be played for the first time in the Midwest at the Waukegan Speedway Sunday night, July 30, with the 4000-pound Buicks, Cadillacs and Chryslers tackling the Volkswagen football and trying to shove it over the opponents' goal line.

This special event . . . at no increase in admission cost . . . will be the first in a series with the winning team collecting $50 for their efforts and the losers going home with steaming radiators, buckled enders and flat tires.

Promoter Gordon Sill of the Waukegan Speedway will be marking off the infield area at the Speedway and the opposing teams will meet in two 10-minute halves seeing who can score the most points.

When the opening whistle blows . . . the question will be . . . Will the (Volkswagen) football go north, south, east, west or straight up when the cars charge it? The fans on hand July 30 will find out.

The Waukegan Speedway is located one-quarter mile east of Route 41 on Washington Street near Waukegan. Late model sportsman stock cars race there every Saturday and Sunday night with bonus street car races and special events. Time trials start at 7:45 with the first race at 8:00 p.m. both nights.

Busy Raceway Week Ahead; Monza Classic Set Sunday

One of the busiest weeks of the season is scheduled at Raceway Park, 130th and Ashland Ave. in Blue Island, climaxed with the annual Monza Classic Sunday night.

Late Model stocks and Super Six cars share the racing programs on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights, with 30-lap features for Late Models and 20-lap events for the hard driving Super Sixes. Six 10-lap heat races, three in each division, plus a six-lap Trophy dash round out the cards.

In addition to the regular stock car racing program Friday night, an extra added attraction will be the return appearance of the Mustang Hell Drivers, who will present their "World Series of Thrills" just before the start of the night's racing, beginning at 8 o'clock. The Hell Drivers, in new 1972 Mustang cars, offer precision driving, with intricate maneuvers performed over and between rampways. One of their top

MAJOR LEAGUE
Standings — Dodgers 10-3, Cardinals 10-3, Twins 9-5, Cubs 7-6, Yankees 6-8, Tigers 5-7, Braves 4-9, White Sox 0-12.
Dodgers 10-3 100 600-13
Yankees 6-8 100 600-13
Joe Velisek threw a shutout as Marty Gelsler and Mark Rolando both homered. Chris Sharp added a double.

SENIOR DIVISION 7-10 7-10-11
Chargers 100 600-13
The Vikings remained undefeated with this shutout win which was ended by darkness after five. Bob Bury tossed a complete game and Bucky Black doubled for the Vikings.

Falcons 100 600-13
The Falcons won by forfeit.

Cubs 100 600-13

INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE
Standings — Cubs 11-2, Angels 8-2, Royals 7-5, Astros 4-8, Expos 2-9, Orioles 2-9.
Cubs 11-2 100 600-13
Scott Andrews went three-for-three and tripled and John McInnis doubled to pace the Royals. Steve Page got the win.

Cougars 100 600-13
The Cougars won in the seventh as Walt Radubowski got one of his two hits. Tom Behnke slashed three hits and Doug Blake homered for the Cougars. Scott Andrews got three hits and Tom Griesley two for the losers.

Astros 100 600-13
Winning pitcher Danny Porowski was one of three Expos to homer. Dan Reynolds and Ed O'Brien also did it. Gregg Coe homered and singled twice and Perry Mendenhall and Jimmy Norkus both had two doubles for the Astros.

Cougars 100 600-13
Doug Blake was the winning pitcher and got three hits. Tom Behnke belted two homers and David Floberg one, and both had four hits. For the Angels, Jeff Carlson tripled and doubled. Scott Santl doubled and singled and Danny Shepard doubled twice.

MINOR LEAGUE
Standings — Phillies 11-0, Athletics 9-3, Orioles 8-2, Greyhounds 6-8, Pirates 6-7, Huskies 4-7, Reds 4-8, Indians 1-9.
Phillies 11-0 100 600-13
A six-run third was enough for the Giants. Ron Schumacker and Tom Huene doubled and Mike Behnke picked up the win.

Indians 100 600-13
Joe Knight tossed a one-hitter as the Greyhounds rolled. Muth Darnus doubled to lead the Greyhound attack.

Greyhounds 100 600-13

Pirates 100 600-13
The Reds used two big innings to post the victory. Steve Carver doubled, doubled and tripled. Steve Woldkin and Jeff Klop both homered for the losers.

Sox Defeat Brewers

In Major League Series

In the Hoffman Estates Major League World Series, the Sox defeated the Brewers 5-4 in extra innings to take the Series two games to one in the best-of-three set.

After five innings of the final game, the score was knotted at 2-2. It remained that way into the 10th when the Sox scored three times in the top of the inning to take a commanding 5-2 lead and then watched a Brewer rally fall short as the Sox won 5-4.

Scott Elskar was the winning pitcher over Dan Hayes. Paul Smith slugged a home run for the Sox and Ricky Broadus doubled twice for the Brewers.

The series opened with the Sox taking a 6-0 shutout victory. Paul Smith allowed only two hits and struck out 11 Brewers. South helped himself with three hits in that game and Jeff Johnson contributed a double. Fernando Carvaballo doubled for the Brewers.

The Brewers came back to even the series at 1-1 by downing the Sox 3-4 in the second game. Dan Neyerth picked up the win over Jeff Johnson.

Racers Have Star Classic

Santa Fe Speedway presents its second annual All-Star Classic this Saturday night with the All-Star Queen and her court honoring the winner of the special 100-lap feature race on the half-mile clay oval. More than 30 of Chicagoland's top clay oval pilots are expected to compete in the area's longest single race thus far in the 1972 season racing season — a fifty-mile event. Starting time is 8:30 p.m. with time trials set for 7:30 p.m.

Santa Fe Speedway will also host a complete 12-event stock car program on Sunday night with 25-lappers for late model and sportsman drivers on the quarter-mile track. Starting time for the Sunday night show is 8 p.m. with time trials preceding the opening race by one hour.

Favored in the All-Star Classic is point leader Dick Nelson of Chicago. Nelson, winner of eight features already this year, pilots a 1972 Chevelle. Other top drivers include hard-charging Al Johnson from Justice, Jim O'Connor of Kaukaee, Wayne Etzel of Bourbonnais and Danny Albrecht of Palos Park.

Santa Fe Speedway's All-Star Classic will be presided over by Football Queen Patricia Helfricks of Northbrook. Miss Helfricks is a 20-year-old University of Illinois junior. Her court consists of Mimi Lee from Hazelcrest and Cynthia Camm from Calumet City.

Also vying for top driving honors and the "side benefits" of queenly attention will be some 30 sportsman drivers competing in a 30-lap race on Santa Fe's All-Star night. Favorite to capture the 30-lapper is Bobby Mann of LaGrange. Other top sportsmen include Art Fehrman from LaGrange, Phil LeGrand of LaGrange, Bill Knippenberg of Darien, Steve Mason from Chicago and Pat McCarty of LaGrange.

Santa Fe Speedway hosts stock car shows each Saturday and Sunday night. The southwest side clay oval also presents exclusive American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned events every Wednesday night climaxed by the nationally significant Short-Track Grand National Championship on Friday night, Aug. 11.

Santa Fe Speedway is located at 91st and Wolf Road.

Martin Fires Ace

Buffalo Grove Golf Club again lived up to its growing distinction as a haven for holes-in-one when Richard J. Martin of Arlington Heights registered the fifth ace at the course during this summer alone.

Martin's hole-in-one came last week on the 14th hole, a 160-yarder, on which he used a six-iron.

Muhammad Ali—Tower Of Babble?

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

LAS VEGAS, Nev. —(NEA)—And now the meandering caravan of Ali Babble, having played Las Vegas with the expected results, has moved on to Dublin, Ireland, where one Al (Blue) Lewis is the setup.

Then it's on to New York and aging Floyd Patterson; to Mexico City against some nondescript Mexican; with Bob Foster at the end of the trail in Las Vegas or Houston or Albuquerque.

It gives you an idea what boxing's all about these days. It's a traveling carnival. And Ali Babble is both the skill and the guy in the tent who defies the local talent to stay in the ring with him the last distance.

The most impressive of Blue Lewis's credentials seems to be that he spent a stretch in the pen. Patterson is the aging psychic recluse whose talents are spent. The Mexican no one ever heard of. And Foster is a skinny guy who can't fight effectively over 170 pounds, a bullpup hammer alongside a heavyweight sledge hammer.

Jerry Quarry, just disposed of, is a punched-up target who can't get his head out of the way. George Chuvalo before him was even worse.

This is the type of competition which Ali Babble flaunts as his testing ground for a re-match with Joe Frazier — while ridiculing Frazier's exercises against nothings like Terry Daniels and Ron Stander.

Ali's edge is that he has a sharper tongue and it produces greater paydays. From the Quarry put-down, he got 35 percent of a closed circuit event which grossed $2 million and pulled down $400,000 at the gate, exceeding his half-million guarantee.

Before he could even thumb the money, he was already preparing the Irish for his invasion.

"I'm a greatly developed, artistic, scientific professional," he crowed in one big gulp. "I'm back. I'm ready to go 15. I'm better now than the first time I fought Liston."

Then to make sure the cascade of words didn't drown out the impact of the product, he cautioned, "Don't you listen to my mouth and let it overshadow my ability."

Frankly, the mouth is what makes him different and entertaining. A press interview with Ali Babble is a verbal sparring session. The bitterness has begun to seep out of him now that he's an old man of 30. He can kid himself and he can sit good naturedly next to Blue Lewis and extol him as "a big, black man who can punch — you've got to watch him."

In some ways it's a lot more fun than what we've been seeing in the ring because there's cruelty in the way Ali demeans an outclassed opponent, taunting him with gestures and words, lampooning the other man's best efforts, reducing the competition of a boxing match to a charade.

He'd be a lot more impressive if he'd just go about his business and quickly and professionally dispose of his game, overmatched punching bags.

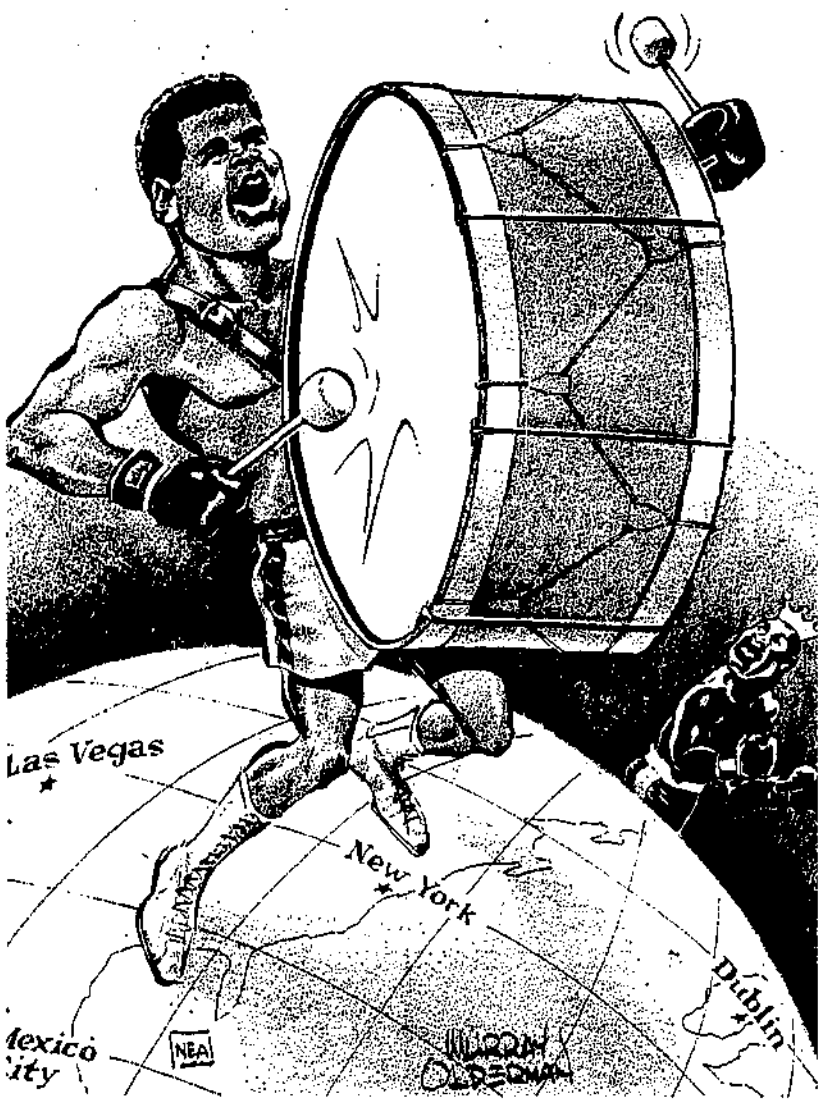

Ironically, the arrogant postures in the ring are just what turn on Ali's adherents the most. It's really a sociological lesson to watch the crowd at one of his fights. Those for him most fanatically are the under-30s — both black and white — and they respond with almost a frenzy to his Ali shuffle and other extroversions. It's one big emotional jag, and Ali Babble plays it like a violin with staccato passages.

He's their symbol for defying the establishment, and Ali manages to put every opponent in the latter camp. His histrionics are also a psychological ploy to unnerve the other guy in the ring so just before the Quarry fight began he was in a violent debate with George Foreman.

Part of that was to condition Foreman for a future meeting. George is now the only legitimate contender around for both Ali and Frazier. He's also one of the two fighters least likely to be psyched out by Ali. The other is Frazier.

That's why neither qualifies for Ali Babble's monthly caravan. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

MOST PEOPLE BUY IT BECAUSE IT'S A VOLVO FIRST. AND A STATION WAGON SECOND.

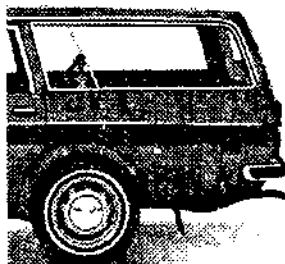

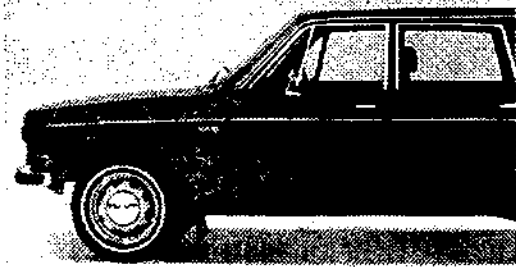

To spend good money for a station wagon while ignoring the car that pulls it around is to put the cart before the horse.

Our Volvo 145 customers see things in their logical order of importance.

First, a Volvo has adjustable bucket seats for any body up to 6'6"; four-wheel power disc brakes; six cuts of protection against rust; eight steel pillars to surround five human passengers.

Second, with the back seat down and the tailgate closed, our wagon will hold a 74" sofa. Or enough luggage for Swedes who travel more than any other Europeans.

So if you need a wagon, see us. We'll show you a Volvo.

Auto Club Midgets Coming

Santa Fe Speedway hosts its third United States Auto Club midget program this Friday night with more than 70 of the nation's top USAC midget chauffeurs expected to vie for 18 starting spots in the fifty-lap feature. The exclusive Chicagoland USAC card begins at 8:30 p.m. with time trials starting at 7:30 p.m.

Present national point leader Bill Englehart of Madison, Wisconsin, leads the star-studded midget field. Seven of the top ten USAC midget pilots will be entered in the seven-event card.

The field will include such stellar USAC midget drivers as Larry Rice, Linden, Ind.; Duane Carter Jr., Huntington Beach, Calif.; Dave Strickland,

Along with the 50-lapper on the quarter-mile clay oval, the program will also have four heats, a trophy dash and a 12-lap semi.

Santa Fe Speedway will also host a USAC midget program on Aug. 25. Chicagoland's busiest and most innovative racing oval presents exclusive American Motorcycle Association-sanctioned events every Wednesday night and hard-charging stock car shows each Saturday and Sunday night. The Speedway is located at 91st and Wolf Road.

QB Club Elects Officers

The Lake County Rifles Semi-Professional Football Team's Quarterback Club has announced the election of new officers for the upcoming season.

The new president is Roger Sheahan of Highland Park. Vice-president is Ray O'Brien of Libertyville. The new secretary is Ron Wozny from Grayslake and the treasurer is Steve Kendall from Park City.

The Quarterback Club is now engaged in the sale of program ads for the Lake County Rifles Football Inc. The sale of season tickets is also being handled by the Quarterback Club.

At the third annual banquet the Quarterback Club presented two $400 scholarships and presented 36 students with trophy awards. Over 200 people attended the banquet.

Squirrel Season To Open

The dates for the squirrel hunting season have been announced by the Illinois Department of Conservation. The southern zone dates are from sunrise Aug. 1 to sunset Nov. 15 while northern zone hunters may take squirrels from Sept. 1 to Nov. 15. All dates are inclusive and hunting hours will run from sunrise to sunset each day. U. S. Route 36 will separate the northern and southern zones. Hunters may take five squirrels a day and retain 10 after opening day.

Bowling Camp Planned

Bowlway Lanes, 310 Villa Rd., Elgin, has formulated plans for a two-week Bowling Day Camp. The program is aimed at those bowling enthusiasts interested in learning or improving their techniques.

The program will run four days a week (Tuesday through Friday) from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. The mornings will be devoted exclusively to individualized instruction by an ABC certified instructor and the afternoons will be used for competition and the chance to apply what is learned during the morning sessions.

The Day Camp runs for two weeks with two sessions planned for the summer. The first session begins Aug. 1 and the second begins Aug. 15. Transportation information is available from Bowlway.

Big Ten Luncheon Slated

Northwestern University and the University of Illinois will be well-represented at the first annual Big Ten Football Kickoff Luncheon at Chicago's Palmer House on Friday, Aug. 4.

Northwestern head coach Alex Agase will be accompanied by defensive tackle Jim Anderson, center Dave Dybas and split end Jim Lash. Illinois head mentor Bob Blackman will attend the conference.

Man Of Many Talents

Lucas Not Just Pro Cager

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

FOSTER CITY, CALIF. — (NEA) — Jerry Lucas will in short order become the tallest magician on record.

Back in Middletown, Ohio, Jerry was a shy kid who spurted inordinately to the height of six feet eight inches at the age of 14, and stopped abruptly.

There he met Hawkeye Harvey, who was in the trucking business. Hawkeye was an amateur magician who flipped card tricks. Jerry was an attentive audience, and when he got out of high school Hawkeye was ready to show him the invisible deck trick. Jerry pulls it off.

He extends an invisible deck. You draw an imaginary card from it. "Put it back," orders Jerry, stretching out the pantomime. "Upside down." You then tell him what the make-believe card is. Jerry pulls a real deck from his inside coat pocket and spread it out, face up. Only one card is reversed. That's the card you named. It never fails.

Of course, Jerry's magical talents were always dwarfed by his ability as a basketball player — from the best high school player in the nation, to the best collegian in the nation (at Ohio State), to a pro career approaching its 10th year and in its most rewarding phase.

He was traded to the New York Knicks a year ago, and through an injury to Willis Reed was thrust into the vital pivot role on a team which reached the NBA championship finals.

"New York is the best place in the world to play basketball," he says. "The fans are the most sophisticated. It's fun to play in front of a crowd like that. The way the Knicks play basketball is the way it should be played. I had always wanted to play center in the NBA, but I was never thought of as a center because I'm 6-8."

New York also gave him exposure — two appearances on the Johnny Carson show, where the other facets of Jerry, his interest in magic and memory tricks, were revealed.

"They were my hobby for 20 years," he says. "But for 10 of those years not a soul knew about it. I was very withdrawn and shy."

One night at a party in college the kids were watching television, and Professor Backwards was on, spelling words in reverse.

"I can do better than that," Jerry announced solemnly. Give him a word or name and he would put its component letters in alphabetical order as fast as the person could say the word. For example: "example" is "aelmnp."

Jerry also used to sit in the back of the family car on trips and count the painted dividing stripes on highways. Kansas, he says, is the most economical state. It has 108 broken stripes per mile. The norm is 132. California splatters the most, 208 stripes per mile.

He started memorizing phone books to while away dead time on pro basketball road trips. He almost had the San Mateo, Calif., phone book memorized when he was traded to the Knicks. Now he has memorized the first column on each of the first 500 pages of the Manhattan (New York) phone book. He is in the process of memorizing "The Godfather," which he read on a road trip.

Jerry also claims a couple of records

Tickets are being sold at $10 apiece, the price including a copy of the silver anniversary edition of the Big Ten record book. The program will feature a showing of the 1971 Big Ten football highlights film entitled "Big Ten — Big Time."

Oakton Arena Hosts Hockey

The Oakton Arena at 2800 Oakton St. in Park Ridge is currently hosting all-star college hockey on the weekends. Players from such schools as Harvard, Loyola, Lake Forest, Dartmouth, Northwestern, Pennsylvania and Ohio University are featured.

Upcoming games are slated for Saturday, July 29 at 8 p.m.; Saturday, Aug. 5 at 8 p.m.; Saturday, Aug. 12 at 8 p.m.; Saturday Aug. 19 at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m.; and Sunday, Aug. 20 at 2 and 4 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults and .50 for students.

Bulls Sign Two Draft Picks

Jerry Pender, the Chicago Bulls' seventh-round draft pick, and Ron Manning, a supplemental pick, have both signed with the club, according to general manager Pat Williams.

Pender, a 6-2 guard from Fresno State, was voted the school's Athlete of the Year last season. He finished his college career with a 21-point average and was the team's top scorer. Pender placed sixth on the school's all-time scoring list with 1,132 points. Pender was elected the Most Valuable Player and was the team's leading free throw shooter.

Manning, a 6-7 forward from Manhattan College, has been tabbed as a tough player with a lot of desire and Williams said, "He could be easily a sleeper and surprise a great many people."

The Bulls have now signed nine rookies to contracts.

Parachute Meet Scheduled

Thirty countries have confirmed their participation in the 11th World Parachuting Championships Aug. 5-20 in Tahlequah, Okla. Ten more nations are expected to join the ranks before the opening of the championships.

The two-week biannual competition will feature over 300 competitors making over 6,000 jumps in three events which, when combined, will determine the world champions of sport parachuting on the individual level and as national teams.

Czechoslovakia is the current defending champion in both men's and women's events.

ISU Features Cage Camp

With more than 400 youngsters already enrolled, applications for Will Robinson's Illinois State University Basketball Camp should be filed soon. Date of the resident camp is from July 30-Aug. 5. It is limited to pre-high school boys.

Professional stars Mel Daniels of the Indiana Pacers, Spencer Haywood of the Seattle SuperSonics, Ralph Simpson of the Denver Rockets and Jerry Sloan of the Chicago Bulls will assist the Illinois State coaching staff. Resident campers will have a full day and evening of events beginning with Sunday evening registration and continuing until Saturday.

Registration fee is $10 for the resident camp. A $40 non-refundable deposit is required. Applications are being handled by Gene Smithson at Horton Field House, Illinois State University, Normal, Ill., 61761.

Kersting Wins Golf Tourney Bid

Any doubts about Kersting Garden Center representing the Tuesday Division of the Mt. Prospect Twilight Golf League in the Paddock Publication Tournament were laid to rest Tuesday night as the Gardeners outmaneuvered Geo. L. Busse & Co. 6-4 and hit the July 29 deadline with 5½ points to spare.

Kersting's closest challenger, Kirchhoff Insurance, sadly failed in the clutch, losing decisively 3½-6½ to Morton Pontiac. The loss not only knocked Kirchhoff out of a chance at the tournament but also dropped them down to third place, fractionally behind Mt. Prospect State Bank who whipped Busse-Biermann Hardware 8-2 and leapfrogged three notches to wind up in second.

Kruse's Tavern, last week's heroes, meanwhile lost to last place Illinois Range 6-4 which knocked the Schlitzers back to fourth place.

In the other matches Licht's Paint Store downed Annen and Busse Realtors 6½-3½, while Ed and Gil's Barber Shop and Louie's scratched away to a 5-5 tie.

Low shooter for the evening was Jim Driscoll of Geo. L. Busse & Co. who carded a 37 over the first nine.

Low net honors went to alternate Bill Scott with an unreal 48 gross and 26 net.

Birdies were reported by E. Spletzer and R. Becker on No. 1, L. Hauskey and W. White on the fifth, B. Skibbe on No. 10, J. Rice at the 11th and 13th, W. Lyman on No. 13, and P. Peterson at Nos. 14 and 17.

Jerry Lucas: World's Tallest Magician

which aren't in the Guinness Book of Records. At the age of 16, in Middletown, he once caddied the same twosome for 144 holes of golf in a single day. Every hole was putted out. Jerry carried a full bag of clubs, from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m. The eight full rounds amounted to 35 miles of walking. He went the last four rounds barefoot.

"I also hold the milk guzzling championship of the world," he claims. "Guinness says the record is 9 seconds for guzzling a quart of milk. When I was a kid, I started out guzzling and got it down to 6 seconds."

But his passion is magic. He's seriously projecting it as a lifetime vocation when his basketball is finished. He's 32 and there isn't much longer to go to support lovely Treva and their two children.

"This is what I want to do," he says. "No one has taken magic and used it to educate youngsters. My approach is mental, not physical tricks. I've researched the field by reading many books. I've spent the past year creating new things. I'm on the verge of a major breakthrough in magic."

In the playing stage is a regular TV series which he would host.

"I could take card tricks," he says, "and teach kids the mathematical concepts involved while entertaining them. I do it with my own son, Jeff, who's 7. He already spells alphabetically — those words he can spell."

How about the stage presence of this onetime gangly, shy Ohioan?

"Oh, that's fine. I'm a ham. We're an unusual family. My great-grandfather Eli Lucas from Kentucky had 36 children."

Magic. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

MULTI-FACETED Jerry Lucas doesn't have any trouble finding things to do when he is not playing pro basketball. The New York Knicks' 6-8 center is an accomplished magician specializing in memory and card tricks, and is planning a new television magic show for children. And he also tried his fins at snorkeling recently.

3 Teams Share 'Y' Lead

Kre-Ken Patterns saw its slim lead melt into nothing last week in the second night of action for the YMCA Twilight Golf League's second half of the season. The Wednesday league was rained out this week.

Last week's leader was tied by two other teams — B&H Blueprints and Arlington Toyota — with eight points each.

Hal Petersen had the hottest putter of the night with birdies on No. 5 and 6. Bruce Berlee turned the trick at No. 10 and Rog Lietzau did the same at 12.

Ron Brink captured low gross honors with a 39. Mike Gotham was right behind with a 41. Three golfers — Petersen, Art King and Len Franklin — finished with 42s.

Howard Rover shared the low net honors with Chas Everett with 32s. Petersen just missed with a 33.

Phil Jarmack presently leads with the best won-lost record of the season — .857. Brink is just off the pace with an .850.

The auto-makers haven't done it. So we did.

They still haven't unveiled the rustproof car.

And they probably never will. Because real rustproofing just can't be handled on an assembly line. And undercoating and ordinary rust-proofing don't help either.

But at Ziebart, we use a patented spray tool to get inside your car's body. Inside, where rust starts. We cover every square inch of rust-prone metal with our unique sealant. To make your car absolutely rustproof. Up to 35% more soundproof. And worth more money when you trade it in.

The Ziebart process is so foolproof, in fact, that we'll guarantee your new car against rust for 5 years or 50,000 miles.

There's only one Ziebart process. And only one place to get it. Through an authorized Ziebart dealer. The one nearest you is listed on the back.

VEGETABLE GARDENS are in the prime time of yielding bountiful fruit now. Tomatoes, peas and corn will soon be ripe enough for even the choosiest gardener and oh, so delicious for even the most fastidious diner. Soon all those tedious gardening efforts will be worth your while.

Everyone worries about reclaiming the environment, but what can the concerned individual do? In "Gardening For Food," which Charles Scribner's Sons published on July 20, ($7.95), W. G. Smith provides one solution — a return to the food growing methods of our grandparents.

"Gardening For Food" offers both a strong argument for cultivating your own food and an original approach on how to do it. W. G. Smith states that unless we turn away from the use of chemical insecticides we are headed for serious trouble. Anyone with an earth patch, even only a window box, can grow food by joining in what the author calls "survival gardening." One of the most important aspects of survival gardening is the "channeling" method which Smith advocates for growing all the nutritionally necessary food in a very limited area. By using channels on his land, the home gardener can get more food, fewer weeds, fewer calluses, and clean access to any part of the plot in any kind of weather.

Illustrated with diagrams and planting plans, "Gardening For Food" gives full cultivation directions for over fifty vegetables and herbs, as well as fruit trees, bushes and vines. The book also includes accurate charts of nutritional requirements, the nutritional components of garden foods, and lists of the climatic norms and extremes for the U.S. and Canada.

One chapter deals with pruning and training fruit trees in ornamental shapes, illustrated with diagrams. Another chapter discusses pruning and training berries.

It is interesting to note that although author Smith emphasizes organic gardening he is not opposed to using hand-fuls of commercial fertilizers when it is needed. "For those who find purely organic supplementation too costly or tedious, the chemical or more properly named, the commercial fertilizer is the answer," writes Smith.

"Be reassured by the fact that these products are made by man in just about the same way as by nature. What has to be remembered is that although commercial fertilizers are just as safe to use as the organic, and are often more readily available to the plant, you would be ill-advised to rely exclusively upon them because, in doing so, you would be depriving the soil of the essential conditioning advantages that accompany organic fertilizing.

"A good general rule is recycle organic material to the limit of your convenience. If this results in normal plant growth, then you are home free. If not — and this is more than likely — then have no qualms about taking up the slack with commercial fertilizer."

Born in England, W. G. Smith is a retired businessman living in Victoria, British Columbia.

Good Landscaping Creates Privacy, Beauty, Livability

Whether you have only small garden space or the sweeping expanse of a suburban home, you can create real livability with good landscaping.

Plan early. Consider activities most rewarding to you and your family. If the area is large, section it off into a play or recreation area for children or adults. Plan a relaxing or entertaining area, too. In a small yard, use every inch of available space to create single activity area that can double as space for garden cookouts or cocktail parties and the scene of evening relaxation.

First consideration in landscaping is privacy. In a large yard, trees and high shrubs or hedges are most desirable. You may want an attractive fence as a backdrop. Climbing roses, morning glories or sweet peas will add color to a wall or fence. Flowering shrubs, such as rhododendron or forsythia, provide an excellent transition between the height of a fence and the ground.

To partition areas effectively, use small trees or shrubs to create irregular, flowing lines; they're more interesting than straight.

Flower beds should be planned the same way. Use bright-colored flowers as focal points in various spots. Let rows bend and weave with landscaping lines.

To get maximum use from a tiny garden, consider a brick or stone patio. You can plant small shrubs, rose bushes and flowers in beds around the edges of the patio. Leave the major part of the space free for parties, barbecues, sunbathing, lounging.

Every hour and dollar invested in developing your outdoor living area will produce thousands of hours of pleasure for you, for your family and friends.

Help Available

Many of the new, improved garden vegetable varieties and hybrids, were not available five, three, or even one year ago.

And home gardeners often have trouble keeping up with all the new developments. It's easy to become confused by the multitude of choices, all colorfully pictured and glowingly described in plant and seed catalogs. For example, more than 200 tomato varieties can be readily purchased and most catalogs list 20 to 30 choices. Thus, a gardener may simply settle for an "old favorite" and miss the advantages of improved varieties.

To help the home gardener, your county Extension office has a supply of up-to-date University of Illinois circulars, vegetable guides, and variety trial reports. Your adviser also has information for commercial plant growers to guide them in growing the plants that alert home gardeners will ask for.

University of Illinois Extension Circular 882, "Illinois Vegetable Garden Guide" lists the best varieties for Illinois gardens. Get your copy from your county Extension office or write to the University of Illinois Publications Office, 123 Mumford Hall, Urbana, Illinois 61801.

Summer Care Of Animals

Properly prepared soil, adequate moisture, wise use of fertilizer and frequent shallow cultivation (or a mulch) are essential in getting the most from your annual flowers. To ensure continuing flowering and good plan form during the entire growing season consider these additional suggestions from the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service's Extension Adviser, W. E. Schmidt.

For prettier annuals remove old flower heads frequently. This is necessary for good reblooming of some annuals and is especially important with snapdragons, pansies, zinnias, cosmos and tall-growing marigolds.

In other cases removing old flower stems is an endless and unnecessary job because satisfactory flowering will continue anyway. Examples are petunias, annual phlox, verbena, moss roses and dianthus.

Gardening experience will tell you when to remove old flower heads to get prolonged blooming. It's often wise to prune back long, ungainly stems of such annuals as Petunia, verbena, coleus, pansy, bells of Ireland, wax begonia, alysium and ageratum. This helps keep the plants compact and presentable.

Petunias that become sprawling and stringy in midsummer can be cut back gradually. A few stems every few days to promote new growth at the base of the clumps. The result will be new, vigorous shoots and more compact growth. It's a quick way to rejuvenate the plants.

Some gardeners cut back their petunias all at once — just before going on vacation for example. Luxuriant new growth will occur within a few weeks and lush flowering follows.

For best performance, flowering annuals need about an inch of moisture a week. When rainfall fails to approach that amount, consider supplementary watering. Light sprinkling usually does more harm than good. The correct approach is to moisten the soil down through the root zone, using a sprinkler that applies water uniformly and in small droplets won't unduly puddle and compact the soil.

What time of day to water is not critical, but you should stop early enough to let foliage dry before nightfall. Otherwise, foliar diseases are encouraged.

Save a bundle during your Chalet Fords "Speak Easy Clearance Sale."

Gran Torino is the year's best mid-size value. It's more car than you'd expect, for less than you'd expect to pay.

All year Pinto has been priced lower than the three leading imports. Now it's clearance-priced.

Maverick is simple to operate, simple to own at a price most people can handle.

Want an economy car to carry more? Need a wagon that costs less? Our new Pinto Wagon gives you both.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE - Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

If at all possible could you tell me where I can write to Maureen McCormick of THE BRADY BUNCH? When is her birthday?

H.A.

Maureen McCormick

Write wholesome beauty c/o ABC-TV 1330 Avenue of the Americas New York, N.Y. 10019. She is the youngest child and only daughter (3 brothers) of Richard and Irene McCormick. Her birthday is August 2, 1956.

Maureen has been the voice of over 25 games or toys. Since being cast as Marcia, she has cut her first album and been cover girl on "16". Among her hobbies are singing, ice skating, swimming, dancing, and playing the guitar.

I would like to know everything you can tell me about Sonny and Cher. What is their telephone number? Where can I write to be sure that they get their letters? Why are they always having reruns?

C.D.

The jolt of their disaster at Newport convinced the Bonos to launch their career in new directions. Their show is considered to be the hottest variety show of the year. After starting as a summer replacement they feel very fortunate to have been given a full hour of prime time for their own show.

The home of the young couple is a 28 room mansion

They even have a body guard.

Off the air the Bonos are very private people. They don't drink or smoke and spend most of their free time at home with their daughter Chastity. As they put it "We're so square, we're sickening. We always believed in morals, standards and rules and tried to live up to them. We've mellowed and are wiser." Write them c/o DeCarlo Enterprises, 8560 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Sorry no phone numbers.

Could you please print a picture of James Farentino and tell me where I could write to him? Please tell me anything you can about him?

N.A.

James Farentino

James overcame fantastic odds when he auditioned for a starring role in "The Pad". He won over 3,000 aspirants. During the last 10 years, he has had guest starring roles in virtually all of the major TV shows on both coasts.

In addition to his starring role in THE BOLD ONES, he is especially proud of the TV version of "Death of a Salesman" in which he appeared as Hap, and the first four-hour motion picture for TV, "Vanished".

He has made several appearances with his wife, Michele Lee. They make their home in Westwood, Calif. with their son, David Michael. Write to James c/o NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Can you print the address of the singer Helen Reddy?

J.M.

Australian-born Helen Reddy launched her professional career touring the Australian Outback at 15. She subsequently headlined her own twice-weekly show on the Australian Broadcasting Commission. Currently she is appearing in top supper clubs across the nation (U.S.) Her record hits include "I Don't Know How to Love Him" and "Crazy Love." An album entitled "Helen Reddy" has recently been released.

Write to the pretty gal with the beautiful voice c/o NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

I would like to know where I can write to Larry Hovis. When is his birthday?

Larry Hovis

You may write to the zanie of LAUGH-IN c/o NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020. At the time, Larry joined LAUGH-IN's cast, he was already a regular on HOGAN'S HEROS. Double duty proved to be too taxing, but now that Hogan has ended, Hovis is back on LAUGH-IN. Ah yes, back to the question...Larry celebrates his birthday on Feb. 20.

J.D.

Dean Martin

In 1941 Dean decided to quit his job and become a singer. That was in Steubenville, Ohio, where he was born (in 1917) and raised. He had pumped gas, boxed, but mainly he had earned a living by being a stickman and dealer in gambling clubs. His real name is Dino Crocetti.

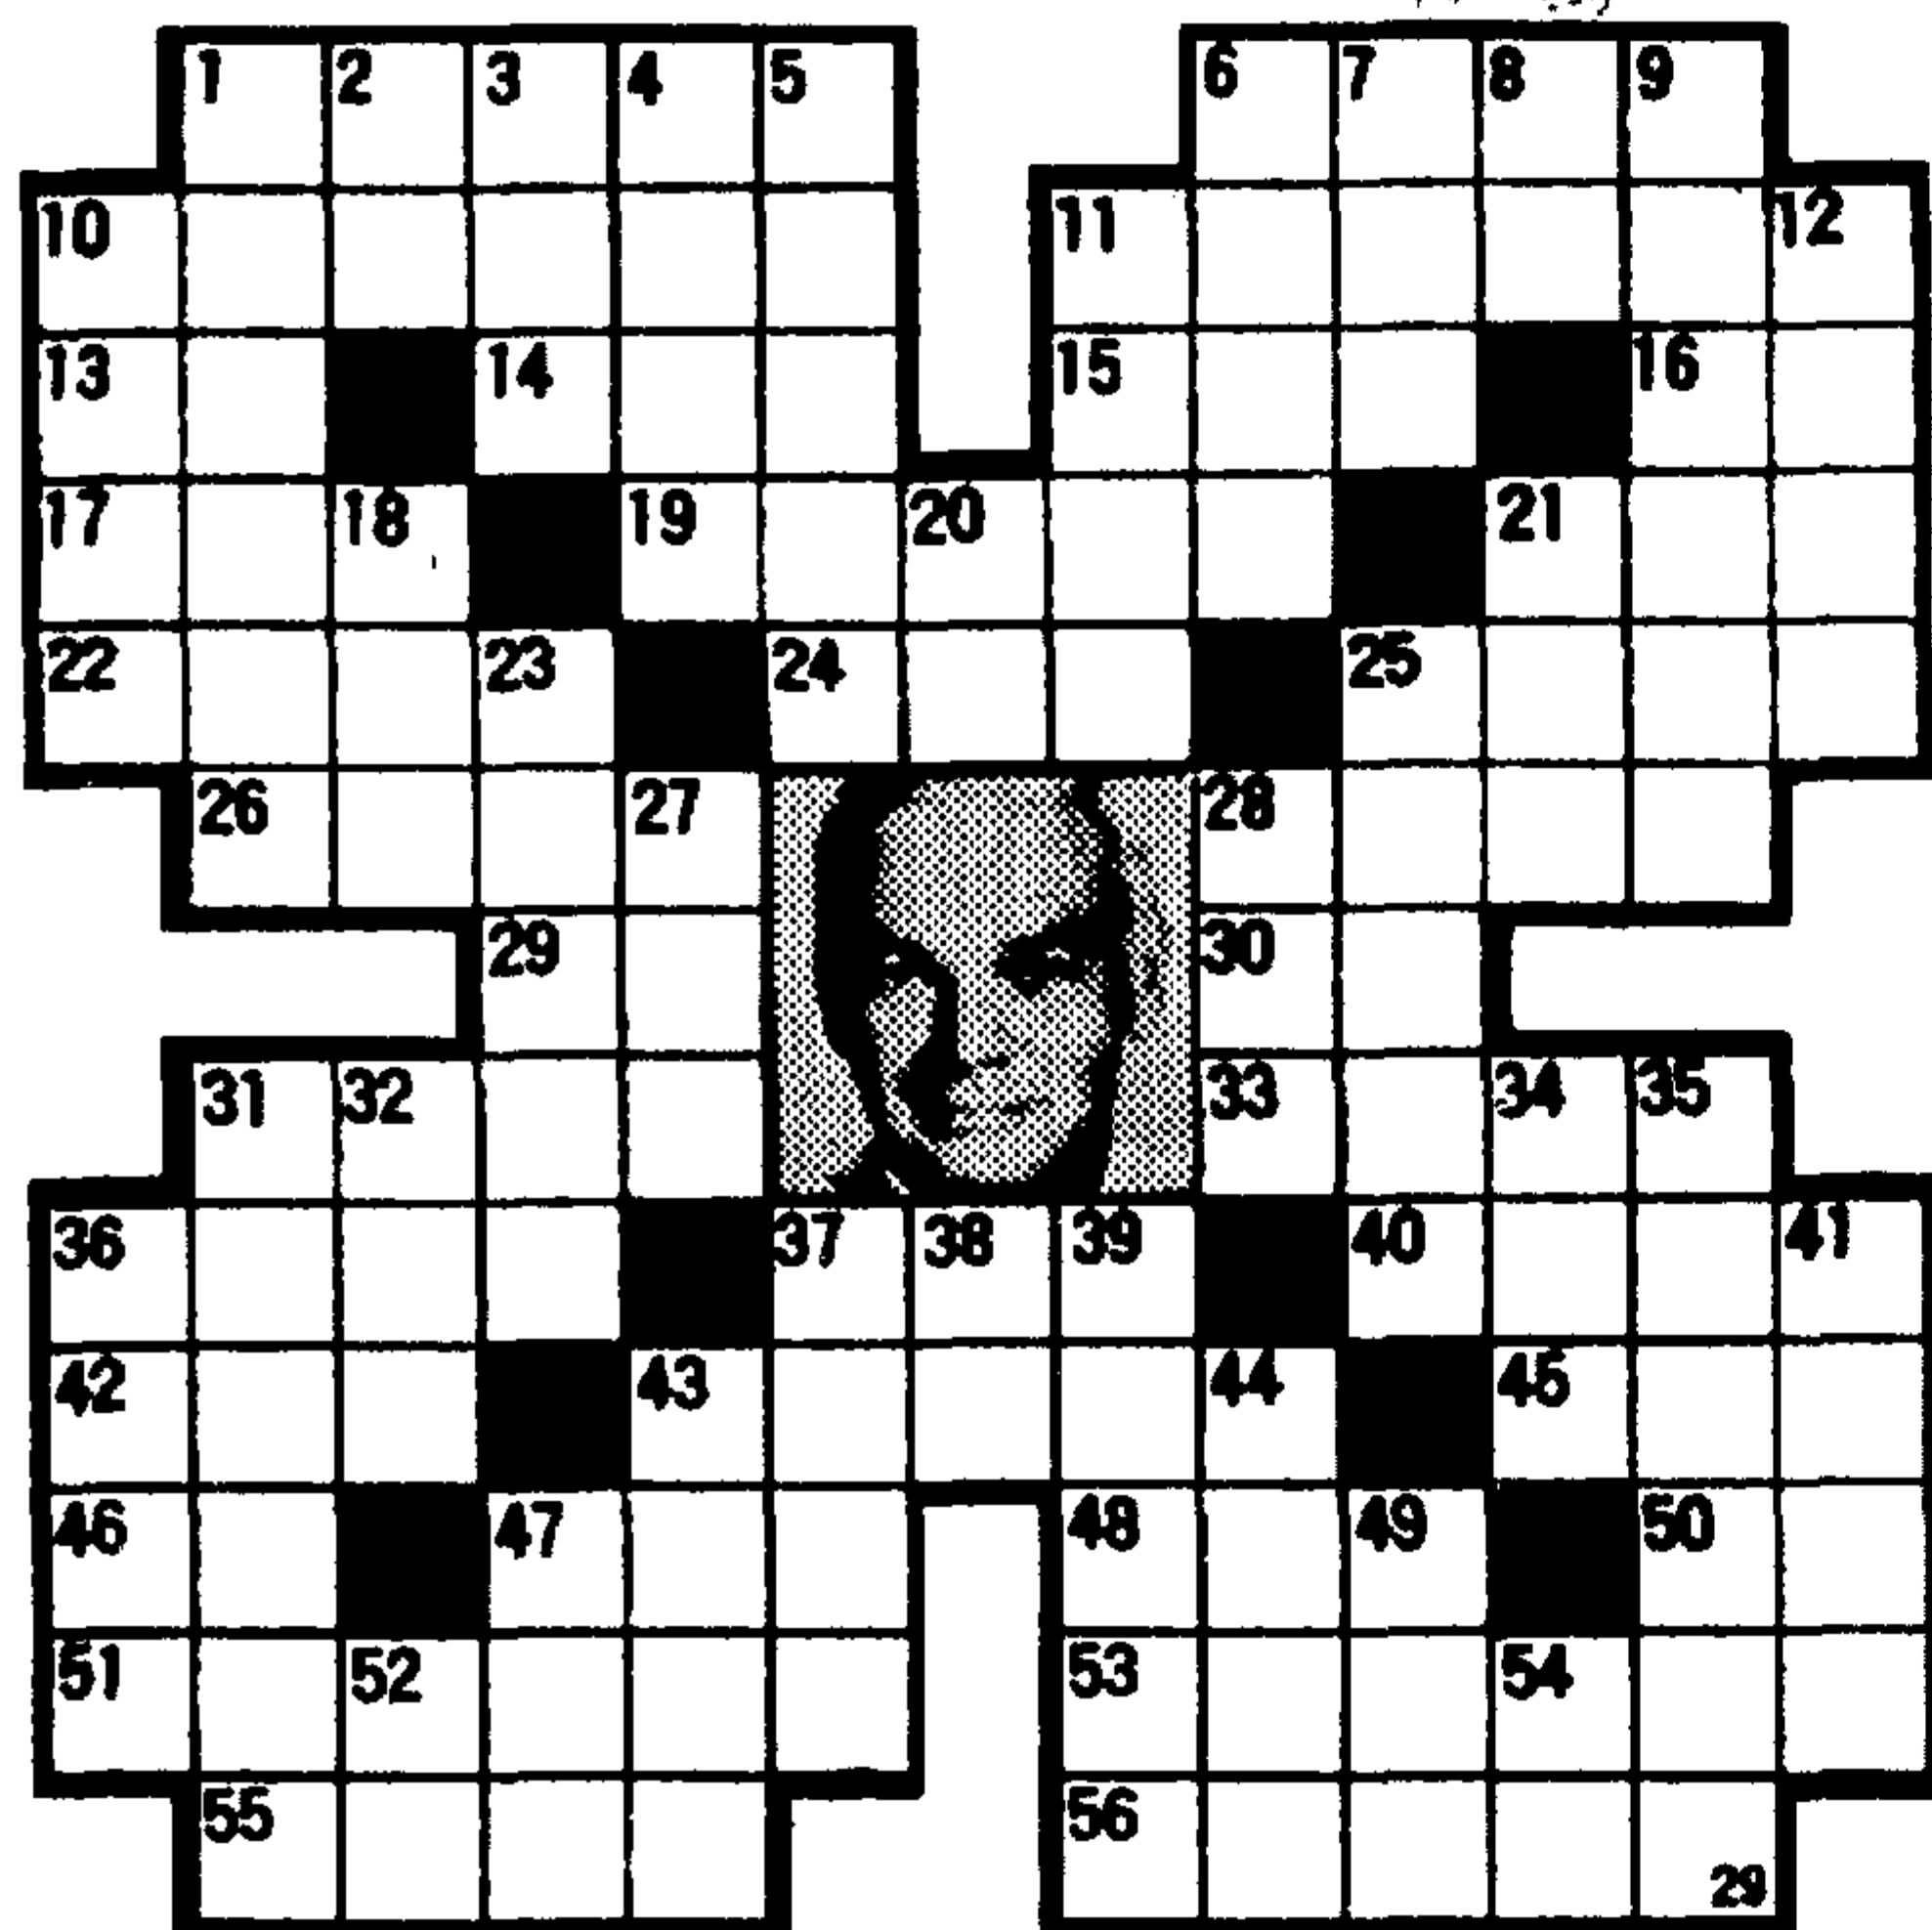

In 1956, Martin severed the ten-year partnership with Jerry Lewis. Since then, he had a few lean years, but now, as we all know, he is most successful. You may write to the creator of the Ding-a-Lings c/o NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10020.

Are Elizabeth and Robert Montgomery related? How old are they?

P.W.

They most certainly are related. At one time Elizabeth called Robert, "Daddy". Perhaps now she calls him just Dad or Father. Get the picture? Robert is 29 years older than is Elizabeth. He was born in 1904. That makes her 39. Can you figure his age?

Summer stint for Steinberg

Like other performers tagged for a summer replacement series, comic David Steinberg is hoping that his short five-week stint will lead to even bigger and better things in the future. On our cover, young comedian Steinberg surrounds himself with pomposites, promising his show will be "outrageous, innovative comedy." The David Steinberg Show is replacing the Carol Burnett Show for five weeks, on Wednesday nights on the CBS Television Network.

CBS's Friday Night Movies

Forrest Tucker, Joanna Pettet and Edgar Bergen star

Forrest Tucker, Joanna Pettet and Edgar Bergen are among the stars of three original comedies to be presented on "The New CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, July 28 on the CBS Television Network.

In "Bobby Jo and the Big Apple Good Time Band," Tucker plays the manager of a touring band whose naive girl singer (Season Hubley) writes a hit song and embroils the group in unexpected legal difficulties. Paul Junger was the producer, and Hal Cooper directed from a script by Bernard Slade.

In "My Sister Hank," Jodie Foster plays the title role of a young tomboy who keeps up a hectic pace that taxes her grandfather (Edgar Bergen), her parents (Jack Ging and Pippa Scott) and her beautiful older sister (Janit Balwin). Upset when she's turned down for the little league, she puts a hex on her best friend Arthur (Todd Bass), who makes the team. Norman Tokar was the producer-director and Ben Starr wrote the script.

In "Miss Stewart, Sir," Joanna Pettet stars as the first woman faculty member of a boys' school. When she learns that individual house masters also coach football for their teams, problems arise. Peter Tewksbury produced and directed from a script by A.J. Carothers.

Bears rookies debut

College All-Stars try to deflate the world-champion
Dallas Cowboys tonight

The 39th annual College All-Star game, featuring the NFL World Champion Dallas Cowboys, led by quarterback Roger Staubach, and the nation's leading college All-Stars, will be telecast live from Chicago's Soldier Field on WGN Television, Friday, July 28, beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Veteran sportscaster Chris Schenkel will call the play-by-play action, with Howard Cosell and Bud Wilkinson handling the color and analysis, respectively.

The Chicago Bears' first-draft pick, Lionel Antoine of Southern Illinois, is on the All-Star roster for this year's match, and is expected to use his 6'6" and 255-pound frame to give Bears' fans a preview of his strength at the offensive tackle position.

Last year's thriller saw the Baltimore Colts edging the All-Stars by a score of 24-17.

Uncle Milty blends special

Milton Berle invented the variety show format on television more than 20 years ago. His latest, "The Milton Berle Show," which will be colorecast on Channel 9 Saturday, July 29th at 8 p.m., is a product of that format using the formula "big, fast, funny and musical."

Musically, there's pianist Roger Williams who plays "Cumana" and "The Ballad of the Piano."

THE YOUNG Americans, almost 40 strong, inject the "big" into things with powerful renditions of "76 Trombones," an "Oklahoma" medley, "Easy," and "People."

The pace is fast but not as quick as The Little Step Brothers, who, like their namesakes, acrobatically tap dance at Mach speeds, including the "Challenge."

Then there's "Uncle Milty" himself who blends the "funny" into it all.

FOR OPENERS, Berle appears as Charlie Chaplin, Sophie Tucker and Helen Morgan during Williams' "The Ballad of the Piano." Then, with The Young Americans accompanying him, Berle proceeds to comedic opera for his version of classics, i.e., "Aida" and "Pagliacci."

Live broadcast, via satellite, of the 21st annual competition, featuring the selection and crowning of Miss Universe 1972 from among 70 candidates representing countries in North America, South America, Asia, Africa and Europe. Singer Helen O'Connell will be hostess, and television personality Bob Barker will be master of ceremonies. The Lettermen, vocal trio, will be special guest entertainers. At press time, a controversy appeared which may alter the crowning ceremonies. Reigning Miss Universe, Georgina Rizk of Lebanon—scheduled to crown her new successor—said she would not appear in Puerto Rico because of the recent killing of 16 Puerto Ricans at an airport in Tel Aviv. The accused terrorists were trained in Lebanon, and Miss Rizk is fearful of possible retaliation against her. The show originates from the Cerromar Beach Hotel in Dorado, Puerto Rico.

A post-view of the All-Star game from one who knows

Harry Coyle has directed coverage of 21 All-Star baseball games, and has seen them from all angles, from flickering black and white to instant replay in magnificent color.

Yet the veteran of NBC Sports claims he is not a fan. He can't afford to be. And what goes for him goes double for his cameramen.

ACCORDING to Coyle, a cameraman who is a fan during working hours can be as embarrassing as a bartender with a yen for the merchandise.

"IT happened in one of the first All-Star games I directed," the veteran recalled. "There's this ball hit toward the stands. It was obvious it was going to make it into the seats for a home run. Suddenly, all I got on the screen was a beautiful patch of grass. Instead of following the path of the ball the cameraman became a fan. He deserted the camera and tried to catch the ball."

Coyle admits there is little chance of that happening now. In the first place, cameramen are more sophisticated now than they were some 20 years ago. Secondly, camera positions no longer are found in the stands nestled among the paying customers.

premieres tonight on CBS

As far as we know neither big John Wayne nor the little baby duck will appear on the new summer series. The John Byner Comedy Hour beginning August 1. But, Byner does such a great impression of both of them that you may think that you saw them before the five week series runs out. Byner does great impressions, comedy, sings, and plays musical instruments, which may be why Glenco Productions picked him to finish the summer for them in the Glen Campbell slot.

Buck Owens and the Buckaroos have a new show tonight on 44

Buck Owens and his Buckaroos bring 30 minutes of country and western entertainment to "Music USA" when the "Buck Owens Ranch Show" premieres on WSNS-TV Tuesday, August 1 at 9:30 PM.

Along with Owens, the weekly musical broadcast features singers Susan Raye and Buddy Alan, and the Bakersfield Brass, with occasional guest performers like Kenni Huskey, who sings "Help Me Make It Through the Night" on the opening program.

Other musical highlights on the premiere presentation include "Mountain Dew," "Reno Lament," "Willy Jones," "I Will Drink Your Wine," "White Lightning," "Sally Was A Good Old Girl" and the finale, "Truck Drivin' Man."

The "Buck Owens Ranch Show" is the Tuesday offering on Channel 44's nightly "Music USA" series and will be broadcast every week at 9:30 pm.

Football greats on WSNS

Dick Butkus, Gale Sayers, Joe Namath and other top professional football players are featured in the Channel 44 series, "College Football's Greatest Games" premiering on "Action Sports 44," Wednesday, August 2, 10:30-11:30 PM.

Included are some of the college football games that made sports history during the sixties, with teams like Notre Dame, Illinois, Army, Navy, Michigan, Pittsburgh, Alabama and Texas.

THE series features teams from the Big Ten, Ivy League, West Coast, Southeastern and all the conferences that send teams to the bowl games each year. Many of the athletes, shown at the heights of their college football careers, went on to become top scorers in professional football.

The opening contest is the 1965 clash between Notre Dame and Purdue. Notre Dame's Ken Ivan broke a tie late in the final period by kicking a field goal, but Bob Griese's passing led to a game-winning touchdown for Purdue.

"College Football's Greatest Games" will be broadcast every Wednesday at 10:30 PM as part of WSNS-TV's nightly variety sports series, "Action Sports 44."

Wednesday, August 2

whose principal credits include co-starring roles in the films "Oliver!" and "Women in Love," portrays the tormented and erratic painter-poet Dante Gabriel Rossetti (1828-1882) in this film directed by Ken Russell. Rossetti was co-founder of the "pre-Raphaelite" school of painting, an English offshoot of nineteenth-century romanticism. Although he lived his life in London, he was an Italian whose father had fled Naples as a political refugee. With Judith Paris and Andrew Faulds.

Fannie's Carefree Experiences

(Editor's Note: This week's column was written by Managing Editor Karen Johnson, following an interview with Fannie Flagg in Chicago.)

How carefree is Carefree?

"It's as carefree as you can possibly want to get," says actress Fannie Flagg, who occupies 'Mike' Preston's chair on The New Dick Van Dyke Show on CBS. The program, you see, is filmed in Carefree, Arizona.

FANNIE, A redhead with a 'friendly puppy' type personality has had a fun time from the moment she arrived in Arizona and was driven out into the desert on a bus. Thinking the whole thing was planned as a "clever joke" by Van Dyke, she laughed all the way out...and kept on laughing when she found out that the desert location was 'for real.'

A non-stop talker and eager to please gal, she has that special knack for making one feel like an old high school chum as she tosses the pieces of her life up in the air to everyone's amusement.

"I was the only student in my ballet school to fail," Fannie offers. And, then in way of explanation, she tells all, "I was so nearsighted I broke three mirrors when I leaned into the bar and twirled."

Fannie Flagg: enjoying her role on Dick Van Dyke's show.

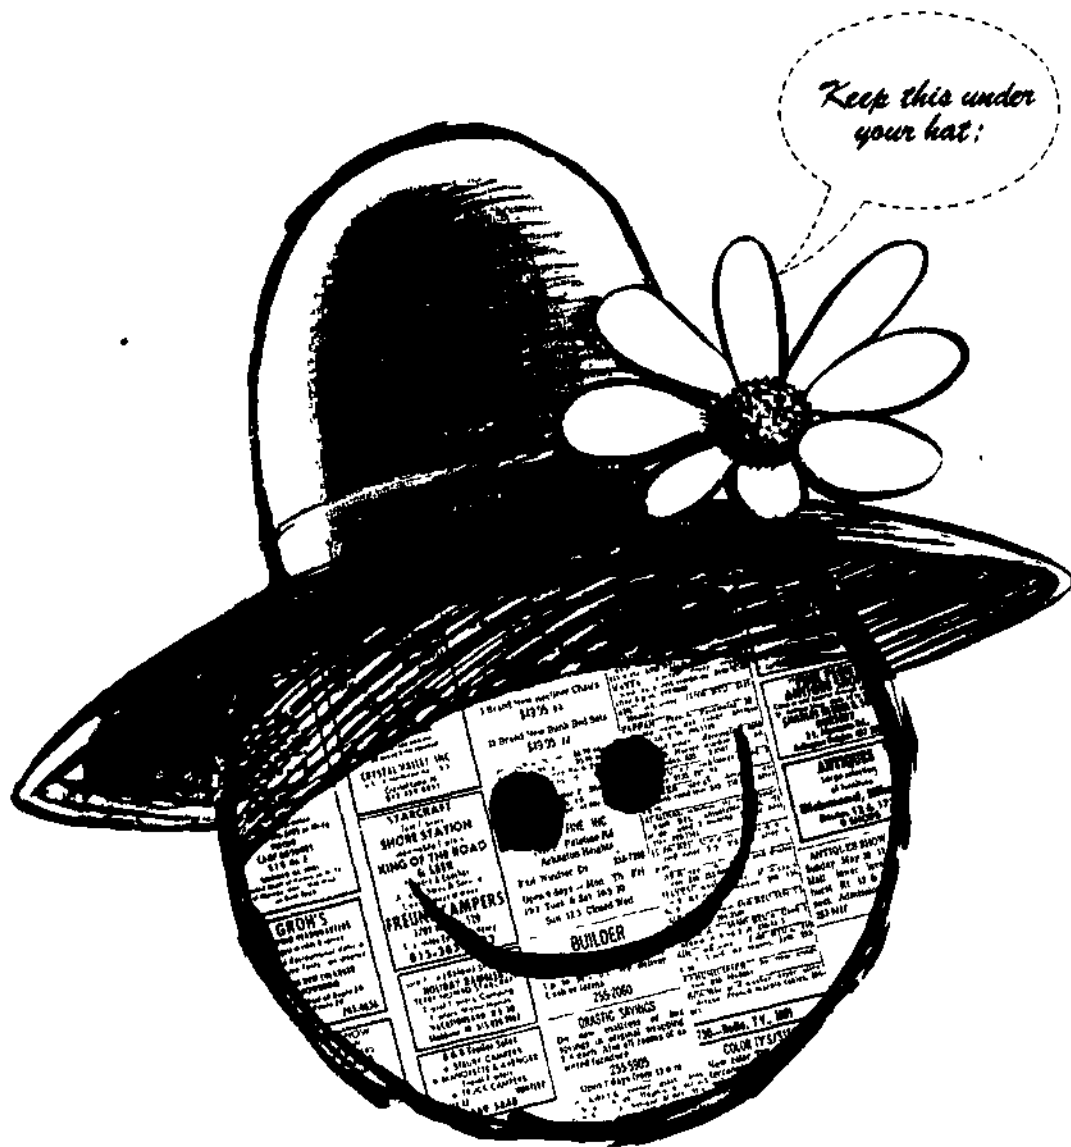

GETTING A laugh on that, the girl who keeps her television momma informed as to what brother, Dick Preston (Dick Van Dyke), is doing, charges ahead. Question: Weren't you a participant in the Miss Alabama Pageant? Answer: "For seven years! And once I even came close to winning!"

It was a short romp from the pageant ramp to Birmingham, Ala. where Miss Flagg got her first taste of television. "Those were the days," Fannie insists "when nobody famous came to Birmingham...they just marched through. The biggest interview I did," she confesses, was the cameraman's mother... Then throwing one arm up in the air, ala traffic cop, she blurts out, "Oh, I did talk to the King Sisters on the phone!"

Next stop on the 'Flagg' trip was Candid Camera where Fannie started out writing and ended up with daily duties such as driving through bank walls. "And there I was...I had 'broke the bank'..." she says shaking her head...and the teller looked at me and said, 'Do you have a deposit?'

Troubles? Not for Fannie. She makes the best out of whatever comes along. Now at home in Scottsdale, Arizona with Mr. Bruce her cat (who was retired from the Van Dyke show after biting Hope Lange) "You won't be seeing him this year," laughs his mistress, "life is carefree!"

Carefree? Almost. The road from Scottsdale to the studio is an 'open range.' "You don't worry about hitting other cars," she says, "just cows." And if you hit one, you have to pay for it. And, you don't even get to take it home and eat it. That's the one thing," she said nodding her head, "that I have trouble with....the cows."

Relief On Its Way For Rte. 53 Motorists Here

Relief is on the way for Ill. Rte. 53 motorists with the new Interstate-90 scheduled to open sometime in September.

Police Find Kennel For Stray Animals

Stray animals found in Elk Grove Village will now be taken to the Kare and Komfort Kennels, 3124 N. Busse Rd., Police Chief Harry Jenkins told Elk Grove Village trustees this week.

The board had expressed concern that as of June 1 there was no place designated for village policemen to take stray dogs and cats and other animals found in the village.

Animals had been taken to kennels operated by Dr. John Kelly, veterinarian, at 80 E. Devon Ave. However, Kelly told the police last month he would no longer be able to hold animals because of new state licensing requirements.

Jenkins said Kelly will continue to accept animals for observation which have bitten someone and animals that are injured.

Jenkins said his men have been hesitant to respond to calls concerning stray animals because there was no good place to take the animals other than a fenced-in area at 666 Landmeier Rd.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis said the situation will be helped if a federal grant for an animal control officer is approved under the Emergency Employment Act Program.

IN OTHER BUSINESS:

—An appropriation ordinance of $6.5 million was passed as required by law.

—Village Pres. Charles Zetek proclaimed Aug. 26 as Salt Creek Clean-up Day.

—Authorization was given for the village president to sign an agreement between the Elk Grove Mobile Homes Park, Inc. and the village mobile home in exchange for fire protection and ambulance service for 1972.

—Authorization was given for a public hearing on a request by Gottlieb and Beale & Co. to amend the zoning ordinance to permit the operation of a trade school in the M-1 (light industry) district.

—Extension of a special use permit was granted to permit Economy Mechanical Industries to use part of its property for a temporary storage facility for construction trailers.

—Extension of a special use permit was granted to allow Sam J. Horner to operate a hotdog stand at the southwest corner of Devon Avenue and Elmhurst Road.

James Pitz of the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday that construction was on schedule and predicted the September target date would be met, barring bad weather. He said work had been delayed by the cement masons strike, but paving has now resumed.

The only work remaining is some paving and shoulder work on the stretch between Irving Park Road and Devon Avenue. When this work is finished, the highway will connect the Eisenhower Expressway with the Northwest Tollway. Drivers will no longer be forced to use the narrow, two-lane Rte. 53.

No figures were immediately available on the total cost of the construction project because it has gone on for so many years. Pitz said the Irving Park Road to Devon Avenue section cost $4 million.

Improvements for Rte. 53 call for the construction of a new roadway paralleling the present road, south of the Northwest Tollway, but not part of the existing Rte. 53. This freeway will be named Rte. 53 and the present road will be renamed.

NORTH OF THE Northwest Tollway, construction on the new roadway has been completed to Dundee Road on what is called Ill. Rte. 53. Pitz said that this section of highway may be given a U. S. route number in the future.

Construction started in 1960. Originally the state was only planning to improve Rte. 53. It was only after construction started that the state began thinking of putting in an interstate route.

The first stage of construction began between Algonquin and Kirchoff roads in 1960 and took about two years to finish. The construction crews then moved to the area between Kirchoff and Ray roads. By 1969 the entire stretch between Algonquin and Dundee roads was completed.

Because the first plan was for improvement to an existing state road, modifications had to be made to the construction to convert it to a new interstate route. Bridges were redesigned to make them waterproof. Thicker concrete had to be poured to handle the heavier traffic load. When finished, the concrete on I-90 should have a 20-year lifespan.

Young World Singers To Present Program

Young World Singers will present a variety program of contemporary religious music and folk-rock at 7 p.m. Sunday in the Lions Park Community Center, 180 Kennedy Blvd. A multi-media backdrop of 1,500 slides projected on five screens will be used.

Jim Thomas, assistant conductor of Young World Singers, will be featured soloist. Thomas is a sophomore at John Wesley College in Michigan and has been with the group since its formation in 1970. He is an accomplished guitarist and travels with "The Living Sound" group.

For The Mentally Handicapped

Parks Sponsor Special Program

by FRED GACA

At first glance, it looked like any group of day-camp children frolicking in a swimming pool. Some were splashing around, others were learning to swim under the watchful eye of a counselor. Still others sat along the pool side, wrapped in towels. Lifeguards made sure that none of the children left the shallow water area.

There is one difference between these children and a regular day-camp group. These kids are mentally handicapped. They are enrolled in the special recreation program of the Elk Grove Park District.

Technically, the activity could be called "water therapy," but to the children it is just plain having fun at the swimming pool.

Mike Palij is the program director. He thinks "the program is the best in the Midwest. I would put it up against any other program." Both educable mentally handicapped and trainable mentally handicapped children are included in the program.

The recreation is more than fun time for the children. Activities are designed to develop their skills and abilities to the fullest.

Palij said that even throwing a Frisbee can have educational benefits. The throwing improves their motor coordination and having the children watch the Frisbee in flight increases their attention span.

THE PROGRAM even reaches into the child's activities at home. On Friday they are told to watch the Saturday morning cartoon shows. On Monday half-completed drawings of cartoon characters are shown to the children and they try to identify the drawing.

This year's program is a major change over last year.

"Last year I had the philosophy of just hoping to teach them something," said Palij. "When the summer was over I realized this was not the attitude to have." This year the program is operating under the philosophy of encouraging the children to do as much as they can.

"Whatever the other children can do, they can do also," said Palij. "You just have to modify some of the rules."

The boys in the program play baseball against other park district teams, but there are some changes. The boys bat first, and their entire lineup bats around before they take the field, no matter how many outs they make. After they have batted around, both teams follow a regular batting order.

To equalize the teams, the other park district team must play with certain restrictions. If a boy from the other team is normally righthanded, he must throw left handed during the game, and vice versa. When batting, the other team members must bat the opposite way from their normal stance.

During the first game one boy learned to pitch underhand. The counselors thought this was an achievement for the child.

Evidently learning to pitch sparked the boy's interest in baseball and he must have begun watching games on television. In the next game the team played, the boy surprised all the counselors with his pitching. He no longer only pitched underhand, he was mimicking a Major League pitcher. He would scuff the mound, look over to first base and then go into a long windup before throwing the ball.

There are seven counselors in the program, including Palij. Most of them were in the program last summer. The counselors work with all the children, but "if the child identifies with a counselor, we try to keep them with that counselor," said Palij.

TO BE A SUCCESSFUL counselor, Palij said two things were needed, "patience and love for your work."

Currently, the program runs only during the summer. Palij wants to form an all-year program when he finishes his education.

Palij, 25, still has 1½ years of school at the University of Illinois before he earns his bachelor's degree in general recreation. He plans to get a master's degree in therapy recreation.

Palij hopes to get the cooperation of local school districts in any all-year program. In the present park district summer program, the Elk Grove and Schaumburg groups already have a cooperative plan. The Elk Grove children can use Schaumburg's special gymnastic equipment and the Schaumburg group has access to Disney Pool.

"There is no program I'd rather have," said Palij. "The kids can do just as good and have just as much fun as anyone else. The only limitation is your imagination."

Trial Date Moved

A hearing was moved to Niles Circuit Court on Aug. 1 from Elk Grove Village Court Wednesday for John Stelbacky Jr., 21, 2006 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, on charges of forgery and stealing 25 check blanks.

Elk Grove Village police said Stelbacky allegedly took the checks from the home of Jean Shroyer, 569 Lowestoft Ln., in April and cashed six checks for a total of $290.

He is being held in the Cook County Jail in lieu of bond which was reduced from $10,000 to $5,000.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Sen. Thomas Eagleton called a charge by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson that Eagleton had been arrested for drunken and reckless driving a lie, and said he would remain on the Democratic presidential ticket with Sen. George McGovern. McGovern said he would not be stampeded into replacing his vice presidential running mate.

The Commerce Department said its leading economic indicators rose by nearly 2 per cent during the past two months, indicating the current economic expansion will continue strong for at least the next 18 months.

The White House announced that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York will place President Nixon's name in nomination for a second term at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach next month.

President Nixon said U.S. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim had been duped by Communist propaganda into criticizing the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam without raising one word of protest against North Vietnam's invasion of the South. It was the toughest administration criticism yet of Waldheim.

Actress Jane Fonda arrived in New York from Hanoi. Her press agent has scheduled a news conference for this morning.

The World

The U.S. urged immediate discussion of a cease-fire at the Paris peace talks as the key to peace in Indochina as well as arrangements for the release of American prisoners of war. The Communists rejected the call.

U. S. Challenger Bobby Fischer, playing before television cameras, won the eighth game of the world chess championship. The win put Fischer two points ahead of Boris Spassky. The score is 5 to 3.

The War

South Vietnamese paratroopers pulled out of Quang Tri city's walled Citadel, abandoning the fortress to Communists until marine replacements can move in. Forty miles to the south, Communist units overran two firebases, key links in the defense line protecting the former imperial capital of Hue.

The State

An attorney for Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's unseated delegation asked for an injunction to prevent a challenge delegation headed by Chicago Ald. William Singer from attending the Illinois Democratic Caucus Aug. 5.

Daniel Walker, Democratic candidate for governor, announced that Dr. John Mathis, who was defeated by Gov. Richard Ogilvie for the Republican nomination, would serve as chairman of the Independent Republican Citizens Committee to Elect Daniel Walker.

THE POST OFFICE allows a couple of hours for "casing" the mail — shop talk for sorting it by streets. Each carrier sorts the mail for his own route. Here Mrs. Nancy Moore is casing mail for the Sandpebble and Quincy Park areas of Wheeling.

No Easy Job Even For A Gal

A Day In The Life Of A Mailwoman

Editor's note: Herald reporter Jean Cafarella rode and walked with a mail carrier for a day to find out what delivering the mail is really like.

by JEAN CAFARELLA

Delivering mail isn't as easy as it looks. What with stupid adults, overly-playful kids, and dogs who want to make brunch out of the mail carrier, there must be days when a mailman is ready to sit down on his mailbox and cry.

Take the Wheeling Post Office, for instance, which delivers to zip code 60090 in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. It handles about 60,000 pieces of mail a day and has 30 routes.

"Did you ever try delivering mail with about six people breathing down your neck?" said Charlene Antal, a clerk who occasionally carries mail. "You go to some of these apartments with about 60 names on them, and the people wait for you. You're trying to scan all the names on the boxes, and they keep asking, 'Got any for me?'"

"And if you haven't got a uniform, people just don't believe you're a mailman," she added. If she goes out of uniform to deliver a registered letter, before she can open her mouth the person says "I don't want any."

BUSINESSMEN are even worse. "If you're not in uniform because you're substituting for somebody, the businessmen go, 'oh, are YOU the mailman?' Then they look you up and down and check you out," said Charlene.

"The first time I did a route, I thought I was going to die," said Nancy Moore, who has delivered mail for three years. "When I was still new, I'd go to the door with a registered letter and yell 'mailman.' Some men would open the door with nothing on but underpants, or else totally nude. I often wondered whether I should write to Readers Digest about it."

Nancy was the second girl hired by the Wheeling Post Office, and one of the few who's stayed on.

"I'm not a women's libber. I just like the job, and the pay is good." But some guys just can't get used to a girl carrying around a 30-pound bag of mail, she said.

The number of female post office workers everywhere is increasing because of more use of mail trucks and more female applicants. Wheeling has 60 employees and three are women. Five of Hoffman Estates' 33 carriers are girls, and Mount Prospect has two girls and 54 men. In Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Elk Grove Village, there are 16 women out of 138 carriers.

Women aren't the only ones who get harassed. Jim Wolfe, foreman of the mails says there are always a few problem people on every route.

"EVERY DAY WE get calls from people and businesses who refuse to believe that we deliver all the mail. If they don't get something, they insist we're holding out. If we don't get it, we can't deliver it," said Wolfe.

The mailmen find some of the strangest things in the mail. Nancy said an envelope came in once that opened by accident and narcotics spilled out. It had been sent general delivery and the person who was supposed to pick it up never came.

Kids are great for thinking up ingenious goodies to put in the collection boxes. Wolf is always finding toys and shoes, and once he found several kittens. He also collected $11 in change one day.

Nancy opened the collection box to find a garter snake inside, and several kids hiding nearby were giggling.

Kids also like to play "mailman," a game of taking the mail out of one mailbox and putting it in another. Nancy has had problems with kids who run up and want to give the mail to "mommy" themselves. She asks them if they live in the house she's coming up to, and they say yes. She gives them the mail for that house, and they run two blocks with it.

OF COURSE, she dare not get mad at a child — his dog may eat her foot. German Shepherds are especially fond of the taste of mailmen. Nancy has been nipped twice, and she said almost everybody gets bit at least once.

Wolf said it costs the post office over a million dollars a year for the treatment of dog bites.

"These people really believe in their hearts that their dogs won't bite," said Nancy. "My friend Fran was bitten last year and needed five stitches. When the owners were asked to pay for it, they denied the dog was theirs."

THE POSTMEN carry an aerosol can of HALT, a spray which is irritating to the eyes, nose, and skin of the dog. HALT is not Mace, and Nancy said it works well with small dogs. However, once a German Shepherd charged at her, and the HALT didn't phase him. "The dog had his face right up to mine. Luckily the neighbors came and pulled him off," she said.

The dog problem is no myth. Wednesday on Nancy's route she put part of the mail in a slot, and a barking dog was on the other side. He grabbed the mail out of the slot before she could push it in. "Let's see how he likes Life magazine," she said. Sure enough, zip — right out of her hand, barely missing the fingers.

Sometimes it just isn't a mailman's day. Nancy said sometimes a guy will get stuck in a mail truck with a large number of perfumed letters, and "some of them just reek."

THEY OFTEN get letters from foreign countries addressed to John Doe, Buffalo Grove, U.S.A. For the letters that are just impossible to read, there is a special clerk to decipher them. Such letters are called "nixies."

Nancy often loses money on postage-due letters, just through her own generosity. The carrier pays the postage due, then collects from the recipient.

"If it looks like a nice letter from someone's boyfriend, I just give it to her. I figure she doesn't want to wait," Nancy said.

But sometimes it pays off, too.

"At Christmas time I get a lot of cards and stuff from people who know me," said Nancy. Most people are pretty nice."

Youth Worker Hired In Schaumburg Township

Schaumburg Township youths in need of counsel now have the services of Schaumburg Township Outreach worker John Mahon who was hired by the township board of auditors Wednesday.

Mahon, 23, of Chicago, plans to move to the area shortly. He was formerly employed by the U.S. Department of Justice Bureau of Prisons, community treatment center. He also did group counseling and legal aid work at the University of Illinois Circle Campus and Outreach work at the Humboldt Park Youth Center in Chicago.

Muscular Dystrophy Carnival Saturday

A "Neighborhood Carnival Against Dystrophy" will be held tomorrow at 139 Tower Ln., Elk Grove Village. The carnival starts at 2 p.m. Thomas Cappelletti, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Cappelletti Jr., will serve as ringmaster, assisted by Linda Cappelletti, Nancy Burke, Kelle and Jennifer Higgins and Michael Walter.

Profits will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America.

Brother, Sister Recover

Kidney Transplant Succeeds

by JERRY THOMAS

The surgery is over for both Sharon and Gerald Cody. Sharon, 31, speaking from her parents' home in Chicago, said she feels very well and her brother Gerald, 27, a school teacher at Schaumburg Elementary School, should be back at school in September.

"I guess a part of me will be there too, since the kidney donated to my brother has thus far not been rejected by his body," said Sharon.

Sharon said Gerald still must go into the hospital three times a week for tests to determine what drug dosage will help his new kidney function best. He will also need medication for the rest of his life.

"BUT FOR THE first time in many years he is free from the dialysis machine and can eat or drink whatever he likes," said Sharon.

Cody suffered severe kidney malfunction about four years ago and both kidneys were removed.

Sharon said her decision to donate one of her kidneys to her brother and the wait before the transplant operation that took place a month ago were more difficult than the actual operation.

"I had to face the fact that the operation could be fatal to me or Gerald and that even if it were successful the kidney could be rejected by Gerald's body," said Sharon.

"Happily we have, according to the doctors, passed the first period when the kidney may have been rejected and Gerald seems to get stronger every day," said Sharon. She added that she, too, is recovering well from the surgery and should be back to work soon.

AN AREA-WIDE BLOOD drive organized by the Schaumburg Education Association and School Dist. 54 staff members replenished all the blood Sharon and Gerald needed for the operation performed at Billings Hospital in Chicago.

"My brother and I would like to thank all those people who sent cards while we were in the hospital and donated the blood we needed," said Sharon.

Gerald, who is also staying at his parents' home, could not speak right now, said Sharon.

"He's not exactly resting. He heard our neighborhood church was holding a rummage sale so he is out canvassing the neighborhood for old clothes and toys and helping with the sale," said Sharon.

"Now do you believe he is getting better?" she asked.

Cody lost little time from school during his illness. Besides being a fourth grade teacher he was past president of the Schaumburg Education Association and is still an active member.

Suing Anti-Mosquito District Urged

Schaumburg residents were urged Tuesday to file a class-action suit against the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District (NMAD) in response to the district's refusal to fog against mosquitoes in the village.

But a representative of Levitt and Sons developers agreed his firm would finance fogging with non-toxic materials in Sheffield Park East, where most difficulties have been noted.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher and Village Atty. Jack Siegel told citizens and the village board NMAD had denied a village request for emergency fogging. NMAD said it would fog in the village only if Siegel would write a letter to Wilbur Mitchell, NMAD director, officially recognizing NMAD as a licensed exterminator in the state.

IN 1970 THE VILLAGE approved an ordinance prohibiting fogging for mosquitoes with Malathion and other toxic chemicals, except by licensed exterminators. As Atcher commented Tuesday, the ordinance was directed at NMAD, which uses Malathion. NMAD filed suit against the villages of Schaumburg and Palatine, which has a similar ordinance, claiming its right to perform its functions was being abridged.

The suit still is pending, and this summer Schaumburg, like most other area communities, is infested with a bumper mosquito crop. Citing a clause in its ordinance allowing use of Malathion in emergencies, the village last week asked NMAD to fog with the chemical in the village. When residents of Sheffield Park East asked Tuesday why there had been no fogging, Siegel relayed NMAD's response.

Siegel and Atcher said they could not write the requested letter, because it would expand NMAD from the ordinance and leave the village in an untenable position in defending the law suit.

But Village Clerk Sandy Carsello, saying she wished to speak only as a resident, urged the board to take some action in the matter.

"THE ONLY people getting hurt are the residents of the village of Schaumburg," she said. Is it really right that the village should infringe on the NMAD from spraying and the citizens from benefiting? she asked.

"I still think the board owes something to these residents. You're going to drag it out and drag it out and we still can't go out of our homes. You're not hurting the mosquito abatement district. It's the residents who are getting hurt," said Mrs. Carsello.

Atcher agreed the village "has got to do something about mosquitoes," but said the district's action "leaves us in a position that is untenable." He then suggested a citizen of the village file suit, demanding the district either fog for mosquitoes, or refund tax monies to all village residents who are not receiving services for their taxes.

In discussion, Atcher pointed out NMAD was only prohibited from fogging by the ordinance, but was not barred from using larvicides on stagnant water or draining stagnant water. But NMAD has done neither of those things, he said. The suit could demand those actions, as well as the fogging, he said.

AT THIS POINT, Jerry Harker, project manager for Levitt, developer of Sheffield Park East, told the board he would commit his firm to hiring a licensed exterminator who would use chemicals other than those banned in the ordinance to fog in the subdivision.

Trustee Ray Kessell, who said NMAD's refusal to fog "upsets me greatly," promised an investigation of the district, with data to present to the board by the second meeting in August. He would look into district financing, staffing, salaries of trustees, budgeting, trustee appointment procedure and other matters, he said.

"I have never really paid too much attention to the mosquito abatement district. I will take it upon myself to learn somewhere, somehow, some information on NMAD and present it to this board," Kessell said.

Kessell also threatened to withhold payment of his taxes to NMAD on receipt of his next bill.

Scott Files Suit Against Swim Pool Contractor

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott has filed suit in Circuit Court on behalf of a Palatine woman he said was defrauded of nearly $10,000 by a swimming pool contractor.

According to the suit, Opal Hominick, 51 S. Belle, last fall paid $9,554 — her life savings — to have a swimming pool installed in her back yard. The hole was dug and nothing more has been done since. The pool was supposed to have been completed in October, according to Mrs. Hominick.

The suit names as defendants John Andre, 330 Mark Ln., Streamwood, owner of the American Pool Construction Co. of the same address; and Joe Turos, 5441 N. East River Rd., Chicago.

The American Pool Co., the suit contends, is not registered to do business in Illinois. It asks the court to stop the defendants from doing business in Illinois or reorganizing under any other name, and to order that any out-of-pocket losses of others dealing with the company be recovered.

MRS. HOMINICK told The Herald that she had been introduced to Turos last September and that he had represented himself as the vice president of a Niles construction company for which he had been a salesman from February to May of last year.

She wanted a pool for her children and grandchildren to use, and Turos said he could put one in for $6,500, she said. Then the price went up to $7,500, and finally to almost $10,000, Mrs. Hominick said. She was told by the contractors that this was a "low" price, but according to the attorney general's suit, it actually is high.

Mrs. Hominick gave Turos and Andre $9,554, which was the price stipulated in the "contract" she signed. But the "contract," which was represented as being with the Niles company, was actually a contract with the American Pool Co., she said.

Mrs. Hominick said the contractors dug the hole, piling dirt against her house and tearing down a fence and then they virtually disappeared. She fears the dirt has by now damaged the house, and she also has had to pump rain water out of the hole periodically, which costs her $20 each time.

SHE SAID THE contractors were "impossible to reach." She repeatedly tried to call them to demand either the completion of the pool or a refund, but their telephone numbers were changed, or they were reported to be "out."

Mrs. Hominick said she contacted several attorneys, and appealed to State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan, the Chicago Tribune and a swimming pool contractor association — all to no avail. She then told her story to the Consumer Fraud Division of the Attorney General's office and WLS-TV, and both parties "jumped right on it," she said.

Now that legal remedy is being sought, there are several alternatives that could come about, according to Peter Kilchenmann of the consumer fraud division.

Auto In Collision With Squad Car

A Schaumburg Police Department patrol car responding to an emergency request for assistance from another squad car was involved in an accident at 9:23 a.m. yesterday at Higgins and Meacham roads.

The squad car, driven by Patrolman James Kuzel, 28, was southbound on Meacham, turning left to proceed eastbound on Higgins Road, with its siren blowing and lights flashing, said State Trooper G. L. Leming. A northbound auto driven by Mrs. Dorothy Kanehl, 35, of Hanover Park, collided with the patrol car at the intersection, said Leming.

Mrs. Kanehl was charged with failure to yield to an emergency vehicle. She is to answer the summons Sept. 27 in Mount Prospect branch of the Circuit Court, said Leming.

Carnival Today To Fight Dystrophy

Stephen and Christopher Weakley, 202 Basswood, Elk Grove Village, will conduct a Carnival Against Dystrophy, from noon to 5 p.m. today at their home. Food and beverages will be sold during the noon hour. Also, the carnival will include a used book sale and a pet zoo.

Teen Fond Of Retarded Children

by WANDALYN RICE

Most of the children Art Clausen works with will never walk, never utter an intelligible word and will die before they are out of infancy.

But nevertheless the 17-year-old Hoffman Estates boy speaks of them with obvious fondness.

"The first day I worked here, I really didn't like it," he said. "That night I called to say I wouldn't be back and nobody answered the phone. So I came back and the second day was different. There was a little girl named Susie who started to respond to me and after that I had a reason to come back."

Clausen has spent about a year working at the Marklund Home for the Retarded in Bloomingdale, first as an unpaid volunteer and now as a nurse's aide. He changes diapers and generally helps with the children, most of whom are bedridden and hopelessly retarded.

AMONG THE children on a recent afternoon was a 12-day-old infant who was born with a large portion of the brain exposed. The infant was expected to die.

Another was Wanda, an 11-year-old hydrocephalic, her body still small enough to fit in an infant's crib and her head misshapen. She had not been expected to live beyond three months, and each day brings her closer to death.

About 50 per cent of the children brought to Marklund die and the rest generally progress to other institutions as they grow older. Clausen, along with the rest of the paid staff of 55 and 70 volunteers, accepts the reality of the children's plight.

"I've never been here when a child has died," he said. "but I've left one day and come back another and the child's been gone. It's something you live with."

Clausen decided to go to work at Marklund last summer because "I wanted to do something useful one summer before I had to go to work. Last summer was a good one because I didn't need the money."

He made inquiries at several homes and schools for retarded children, a field he was interested in because he has a brother who is retarded.

FINALLY he settled on Marklund, where he is the only man on the staff except for director Stan Haverkamp. This year he became a nurse's aide so he could draw a salary for the work.

"The work is hard and I'm sure I could get a job that would be easier and pay more," he admits, "but every day when I get in the car to go home I think of things that have happened during the day and feel good. That makes it worth it."

Haverkamp frankly admits he is amazed by the boy's dedication. "He wanted to volunteer last year and I wanted to also put him on the maintenance staff so I could pay him something. I had to fight with him to give him money," he said.

This year, Clausen is working for money, but, Haverkamp said, has cut back his working hours and his paycheck because "my family needs me."

"This kid is completely selfless," Haverkamp said. "I've never seen one like him."

CLAUSEN said he doesn't think he will make a career of working with the retarded, though he has thought about it. "My real interest is journalism," he said.

He has one more year at Conant High School before he will really face the career decision, however, and he plans to work on the school paper there.

He also admits that his friends at school "are amazed," when they hear about the job at Marklund. "I get a real kick out of telling stories about some of the funny things that happen here," he said, "but sometimes I'll tell a story and my friends look a little sick just thinking about it."

Brat'n' Beer Fest Coming To Wheeling Next Week

Bratwurst, beer, German music and art will fill the parking lot of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank Aug. 6 as the "Brat 'n' Beer Fest" returns to Wheeling for the second consecutive year.

The festival, sponsored by the Wheeling Historical Society, will begin at 2 p.m. and continue as long as people are having a good time.

As part of the festival, the Community Arts League of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove will sponsor an art fair featuring works by Chicago area artists. Ribbons and cash prizes will be awarded by the art league in several categories. Don Roth's Restaurant and the bank will also present $50 purchase awards.

Children of art league members will exhibit their works in a special exhibit.

and a "Clay Corner" for all the children at the air will be set up by Slip-Inn Ceramics of Wheeling.

Bratwurst will be cooked in an Old World method at the festival. The sausages will be soaked in beer and cooked to order over hickory logs. The bratwurst will be served on potato rolls and smothered with sauerkraut.

Homemade German potato salad and fresh corn on the cob will be served with the bratwurst. Beer and soft drinks will round out the menu.

OLD-TIME German atmosphere will be provided by the Jim Campbell Group. Complete with lederhosen, they will entertain fest-goers with German music and dancing.

The Brat 'n' Beer Fest originated when local residents wanted to continue the community spirit generated by Wheeling's Diamond Jubilee in 1969. The historical society initiated plans for the village's 75th anniversary celebration, "and people had such a good time, they kept asking us when we'd do it again," said John Koeppen of the historical society.

After the success of last year's festival, the society decided to make it an annual event. Funds raised at the fest will finance projects of the historical society.

Last year's event attracted several thousand persons who consumed more than 15 barrels of beer and 2,000 bratwurst.

Relief Soon For Rte. 53 Motorists

Relief is on the way for Ill. Rte. 53 motorists with the new Interstate-90 scheduled to open sometime in September.

James Pitz of the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday that construction was on schedule and predicted the September target date would be met, barring bad weather. He said work had been delayed by the cement masons strike, but paving has now resumed.

The only work remaining is some paving and shoulder work on the stretch between Irving Park Road and Devon Avenue. When this work is finished, the highway will connect the Eisenhower Expressway with the Northwest Tollway. Drivers will no longer be forced to use the narrow, two-lane Rte. 53.

No figures were immediately available on the total cost of the construction project because it has gone on for so many years. Pitz said the Irving Park Road to Devon Avenue section cost $4 million.

Improvements for Rte. 53 call for the construction of a new roadway paralleling the present road, south of the Northwest Tollway, but not part of the existing Rte. 53. This freeway will be named Rte. 53 and the present road will be renamed.

NORTH OF THE Northwest Tollway, construction on the new roadway has been completed to Dundee Road on what is called Ill. Rte. 53. Pitz said that this section of highway may be given a U. S. route number in the future.

Construction started in 1960. Originally the state was only planning to improve Rte. 53. It was only after construction started that the state began thinking of putting in an interstate route.

The first stage of construction began between Algonquin and Kirchoff roads in 1960 and took about two years to finish. The construction crews then moved to the area between Kirchoff and Rand roads. By 1969 the entire stretch between Algonquin and Dundee roads was completed.

Because the first plan was for improvement to an existing state road, modifications had to be made to the construction to convert it to a new interstate route. Bridges were redesigned to make them waterproof. Thicker concrete had to be poured to handle the heavier traffic load. When finished, the concrete on I-90 should have a 20-year lifespan.

Cancel Meeting

The Wheeling Youth Commission meeting scheduled for Aug. 2 has been canceled.

LAURA KELLY, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kelly, 302 Edgewood, won the title of "Little Miss Wheeling Park District" in competition at Neptune's Pool Wednesday night. She and the other nine entrants each received a free pass to the pool from the park district.

A Day In The Life Of A Mailwoman

Editor's note: Herald reporter Jean Cafarella rode and walked with a mail carrier for a day to find out what delivering the mail is really like.

by JEAN CAFARELLA

Delivering mail isn't as easy as it looks. What with stupid adults, overplayful kids, and dogs who want to make brunch out of the mail carrier, there must be days when a mailman is ready to sit down on his mailbox and cry.

Take the Wheeling Post Office, for instance, which delivers to zip code 60090 in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. It handles about 60,000 pieces of mail a day and has 30 routes.

"Did you ever try delivering mail with about six people breathing down your neck?" said Charlene Antal, a clerk who occasionally carries mail. "You go to some of these apartments with about 60 names on them, and the people wait for you. You're trying to scan all the names on the boxes, and they keep asking, 'Got any for me?'"

"And if you haven't got a uniform, people just don't believe you're a mailman," she added. If she goes out of uniform to deliver a registered letter, before she can open her mouth the person says "I don't want any."

BUSINESSMEN are even worse. "If you're not in uniform because you're substituting for somebody, the businessmen go, 'oh, are YOU the mailman?' Then they look you up and down and check you out," said Charlene.

"The first time I did a route, I thought I was going to die," said Nancy Moore, who has delivered mail for three years. "When I was still new, I'd go to the door with a registered letter and yell 'mailman.' Some men would open the door with nothing on but underpants, or else totally nude. I often wondered whether I should write to Readers Digest about it."

Nancy was the second girl hired by the Wheeling Post Office, and one of the few who's stayed on.

"I'm not a women's libber. I just like the job, and the pay is good." But some guys just can't get used to a girl carrying around a 30-pound bag of mail, she said.

The number of female post office workers everywhere is increasing because of more use of mail trucks and more female applicants. Wheeling has 60 employees and three are women. Five of Hoffman Estates' 33 carriers are girls, and Mount Prospect has two girls and 54 men. In Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Elk Grove Village, there are 16 women out of 138 carriers.

Women aren't the only ones who get harassed. Jim Wolfe, foreman of the mails says there are always a few problem people on every route.

"EVERY DAY WE get calls from people and businesses who refuse to believe that we deliver all the mail. If they don't get something, they insist we're holding out. If we don't get it, we can't deliver it," said Wolf.

The mailmen find some of the strangest things in the mail. Nancy said an envelope came in once that opened by accident and narcotics spilled out. It had been sent general delivery and the person who was supposed to pick it up never came.

Kids are great for thinking up ingenious goodies to put in the collection boxes. Wolf is always finding toys and shoes, and once he found several kittens. He also collected $11 in change one day.

Nancy opened the collection box to find a garter snake inside, and several kids hiding nearby were giggling.

Kids also like to play "mailman," a game of taking the mail out of one mailbox and putting it in another. Nancy has

Trial Date Moved

A hearing was moved to Niles Circuit Court on Aug. 1 from Elk Grove Village Court Wednesday for John Stelbacky Jr., 21, 206 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, on charges of forgery and stealing 25 check blanks.

Elk Grove Village police said Stelbacky allegedly took the checks from the home of Jean Shroyer, 569 Lowestoft Ln., in April and cashed six checks for a total of $290.

He is being held in the Cook County Jail in lieu of bond which was reduced from $10,000 to $5,000.

Looking For Bike

Mrs. Eugene Branski, 529 White Pine Rd., told Buffalo Grove police Tuesday that her son's bicycle was stolen July 21 from a house at 488 White Pine Rd.

The bicycle is a three-speed blue model with broken handle brakes.

Police Group Head In Talk Here Tuesday

The president of the Combined Counties Police Association will speak at a meeting of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Community Church in Chamber of Commerce Park, 131 N. Wolf Rd.

John J. Flood will discuss the relationship between the police department and village administration. The meeting is designed to inform residents of the inner workings of village government in Wheeling.

The general counsel for WHIP, John Burke, will also be present to answer questions.

Auto Stolen

A maroon Chevrolet was stolen from an apartment parking lot at 803C Valley Stream Dr. Monday night or Tuesday morning.

Santos Perez, owner of the car, said the automobile was missing when he went to the parking lot Tuesday morning. Perez said he had locked the car.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Sen. Thomas Eagleton called a charge by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson that Eagleton had been arrested for drunken and reckless driving a lie, and said he would remain on the Democratic presidential ticket with Sen. George McGovern. McGovern said he would not be stampeded into replacing his vice presidential running mate.

The Commerce Department said its leading economic indicators rose by nearly 2 per cent during the past two months, indicating the current economic expansion will continue strong for at least the next 18 months.

The White House announced that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York will place President Nixon's name in nomination for a second term at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach next month.

President Nixon said U.S. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim had been duped by Communist propaganda into criticizing the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam without raising one word of protest against North Vietnam's invasion of the South. It was the toughest administration criticism yet of Waldheim.

Actress Jane Fonda arrived in New York from Hanoi. Her press agent has scheduled a news conference for this morning.

The World

The U.S. urged immediate discussion of a cease-fire at the Paris peace talks as the key to peace in Indochina as well as arrangements for the release of American prisoners of war. The Communists rejected the call.

U. S. Challenger Bobby Fischer, playing before television cameras, won the eighth game of the world chess championship. The win put Fischer two points ahead of Boris Spassky. The score is 5 to 3.

The War

South Vietnamese paratroopers pulled out of Quang Tri city's walled Citadel, abandoning the fortress to Communists until marine replacements can move in. Forty miles to the south, Communist units overran two firebases, key links in the defense line protecting the former imperial capital of Hue.

The State

An attorney for Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's unseated delegation asked for an injunction to prevent a challenge delegation headed by Chicago Ald. William Singer from attending the Illinois Democratic Caucus Aug. 5.

Daniel Walker, Democratic candidate for governor, announced that Dr. John Mathis, who was defeated by Gov. Richard Ogilvie for the Republican nomination, would serve as chairman of the Independent Republican Citizens Committee to Elect Daniel Walker.

The Market

The stock market took another loss in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones average lost 5.72 to 926.85. Declines topped advances, 875 to 479, among the 1,719 issues crossing the tape. Turnover totaled 13,870 shares. Prices declined in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange.

THE POST OFFICE allows a couple of hours for "casing" the mail — shop talk for sorting it by streets. Each carrier sorts the mail for his own route. Here Mrs. Nancy Moore is casing mail for the Sandpebble and Quincy Park areas of Wheeling.

had problems with kids who run up and want to give the mail to "mommy" themselves. She asks them if they live in the house she's coming up to, and they say yes. She gives them the mail for that house, and they run two blocks with it.

OF COURSE, she dare not get mad at a child — his dog may eat her foot. German Shepherds are especially fond of the taste of mailmen. Nancy has been nipped twice, and she said almost everybody gets bit at least once.

Wolf said it costs the post office over a million dollars a year for the treatment of dog bites.

"These people really believe in their hearts that their dogs won't bite," said Nancy. "My friend Fran was bitten last year and needed five stitches. When the owners were asked to pay for it, they denied the dog was theirs."

THE POSTMEN carry an aerosol can of HALT, a spray which is irritating to the eyes, nose, and skin of the dog. HALT is not Mace, and Nancy said it works well with small dogs. However, once a German Shepherd charged at her, and the HALT didn't phase him. "The dog had his face right up to mine. Luckily the neighbors came and pulled him off," she said.

The dog problem is no myth. Wednesday on Nancy's route she put part of the mail in a slot, and a barking dog was on the other side. He grabbed the mail out of the slot before she could push it in. "Let's see how he likes Life magazine," she said. Sure enough, zip — right out of her hand, barely missing the fingers.

Sometimes it just isn't a mailman's day. Nancy said sometimes a guy will get stuck in a mail truck with a large number of perfumed letters, and "some of them just reek."

THEY OFTEN get letters from foreign countries addressed to John Doe, Buffalo Grove, U.S.A. For the letters that are just impossible to read, there is a special clerk to decipher them. Such letters are called "nixies."

Nancy often loses money on postage-due letters, just through her own generosity. The carrier pays the postage due, then collects from the recipient.

Board, Faculty In Negotiations

Negotiators for School Dist. 21 Board of Education and the Wheeling Faculty Council (WFC) conferred all day yesterday with federal mediator Ed Wise.

The meeting began at 10 a.m. and continued through the afternoon. Wise conducted a closed session, with both negotiating teams in the same room, so no results have been released.

Wise said before the meeting started that he would first have to determine what points were left to be settled, and then see what steps to take.

He said it would be a short meeting if the teams were not willing to compromise on the disputed points in the faculty contract. The length of the meeting indicates that some progress is being made, although there has been no official word from either the board or the WFC.

A Cool Thief

One Wheeling resident found his air conditioner wasn't working for a very good reason this week — someone stole the compressor motor.

Glenn Pilgrim of 127 N. Wolf Rd. reported the theft after an air conditioning repairman checked the unit in an apartment in his building. The air conditioning units are on the roof of the apartment building.

Teen Fond Of Retarded Children

by WANDALYN RICE

Most of the children Art Clausen works with will never walk, never utter an intelligible word and will die before they are out of infancy.

But nevertheless the 17-year-old Hoffman Estates boy speaks of them with obvious fondness.

"The first day I worked here, I really didn't like it," he said. "That night I called to say I wouldn't be back and nobody answered the phone. So I came back and the second day was different. There was a little girl named Susie who started to respond to me and after that I had a reason to come back."

Clausen has spent about a year working at the Marklund Home for the Retarded in Bloomingdale, first as an unpaid volunteer and now as a nurse's aide. He changes diapers and generally helps with the children, most of whom are bedridden and hopelessly retarded.

AMONG THE children on a recent afternoon was a 12-day-old infant who was born with a large portion of the brain exposed. The infant was expected to die.

Another was Wanda, an 11-year-old hydrocephalic, her body still small enough to fit in an infant's crib and her head misshapen. She had not been expected to live beyond three months, and each day brings her closer to death.

About 50 per cent of the children brought to Marklund die and the rest generally progress to other institutions as they grow older. Clausen, along with the rest of the paid staff of 55 and 70 volunteers, accepts the reality of the children's plight.

"I've never been here when a child has died," he said, "but I've left one day and come back another and the child's been gone. It's something you live with."

Clausen decided to go to work at Marklund last summer because "I wanted to do something useful one summer before I had to go to work. Last summer was a good one because I didn't need the money."

He made inquiries at several homes and schools for retarded children, a field he was interested in because he has a brother who is retarded.

FINALLY he settled on Marklund, where he is the only man on the staff except for director Stan Haverkamp. This year he became a nurse's aide so he could draw a salary for the work.

"The work is hard and I'm sure I could get a job that would be easier and pay more," he admits, "but every day when I get in the car to go home I think of things that have happened during the day and feel good. That makes it worth it."

Haverkamp frankly admits he is amazed by the boy's dedication. "He wanted to volunteer last year and I wanted to also put him on the maintenance staff so I could pay him something. I had to fight with him to give him money," he said.

This year, Clausen is working for money, but, Haverkamp said, has cut back his working hours and his paycheck because "my family needs me."

"This kid is completely selfless," Haverkamp said. "I've never seen one like him."

CLAUSEN said he doesn't think he will make a career of working with the retarded, though he has thought about it. "My real interest is journalism," he said.

He has one more year at Conant High School before he will really face the career decision, however, and he plans to work on the school paper there.

He also admits that his friends at school "are amazed" when they hear about the job at Marklund. "I get a real kick out of telling stories about some of the funny things that happen here," he said, "but sometimes I'll tell a story and my friends look a little sick just thinking about it."

Panel Reviews Site Plans For Big Development Here

by JILL BETTNER

The Buffalo Grove Plan Commission Thursday night reviewed site plans submitted by the Phoenix Construction Co. for the development of four parcels of land, three of them fronting the Buffalo Grove Golf Course.

Phoenix is the contract purchaser of 12 acres at the northwest corner of the golf course at Checker Road, 36 acres at the southwest corner of the golf course on Lake-Cook Road and another 16 acres bordering the east end of the golf course and abutting several single family residences. The company may also develop 33 acre north of Rte. 83 at its intersection with Busch Road.

Jack Siegel, attorney for the Phoenix Co. said the firm plans to build townhouses and condominiums ranging in price from $27,500 to $42,000 on the parcels of land at the north and south ends of the golf course, and apartments and condominiums on the parcel bordering the east end of the golf course. In addition, the company intends to develop the parcel of land located north of Rte. 83 with 242 townhouses. Levitt & Sons, Inc. has also indicated an interest in developing this area.

Construction of all four developments will probably take five years, Siegel said.

The site plan presented by Siegel included one recreation area in the southwest parcel of land abutting the golf course. The facilities, for residents of that development only, would consist of an outdoor swimming pool, tot lot, bathhouse with exercise room and sauna and party rooms, Siegel said. He added that a tot lot is also planned for the development at the northwest end of the golf course.

Explaining the limited recreation areas, Siegel said, "We know that not everyone plays golf, but we feel these developments will attract people who will appreciate being on the golf course, and the kinds of units planned don't usually produce that many children."

Siegel met with members of the plan commission about a month ago to discuss several problems that may come up in developing the land in which the Phoenix Co. is interested.

Village engineer Arnold Seaberg said if the developments materialize, the sewer line on Checker Road will have to be extended. Tap-on fees from the development would finance the cost.

Seaberg said the Lake County Public Works Department might consider handling sewer service for the Lake County portion of the development on a contract basis, but that disconnecting that part of the sewer line from the Metropolitan Sanitary District may take an act of the state legislature.

Seaberg also said a water main would have to be put in along Checker Road. The line now ends at Springside Lane, he said.

Expressing concern for the land north of the golf course, which is very marshy, Seaberg reminded Siegel of a state requirement that all developers must submit to a soil study outlining soil and water problems that might be expected in their area. Siegel said he was aware of the requirement, but did not say why he had failed to submit the necessary forms.

Village Planner Bob Grossman said an access route from the development planned for the corner of the golf course to the north would also probably become necessary in the future. A school site in that area is indicated in the village master plan, he said.

Siegel said that although no formal agreement had been reached with school officials, the Phoenix Co. had proposed paying $150 per unit in the 33-acre tract north of Rte. 83, to comply with the "Naperville ordinance" which Buffalo Grove has been informally following. This ordinance requires developers to contribute a certain amount of money or land to the local school and park districts based on the number of units.

Gordon Tierney, whose property is near the proposed development at the southwest corner of the golf course, asked Siegel what the Phoenix Co. would do if enough people in that area objected to the plans. Siegel replied that the company would abide by the decision of the village board.

Tierney also said the multiple-family zoning obtained by Phoenix for the construction of an apartment complex around the golf course in a 1958 annexation agreement with the village had expired, and the land the firm now proposes to develop is governed by single-family zoning, which requires 22,000-square-foot lots.

Siegel agreed, but he said he thought if Phoenix took the matter to court, the company could probably gain the zoning needed to build higher density developments than what they proposed five years ago.

Plan Commission chairman Carl Gerich asked Siegel to meet with several members of the commission to further discuss the firm's plans for park and recreation areas and engineering specifications.

The commission will probably conduct a public hearing on the Phoenix proposals sometime within the next two months.

THE PROPER STYLE of eating a bratwurst sandwich was exhibited at last year's Brat 'n' Beer Fest by Mark Iverson, one of thousands who helped consume more than 2,000 of the delectable delights, along with 15 barrels of beer.

Brat 'n' Beer Festival

Bratwurst, beer, German music and art will fill the parking lot of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank Aug. 6 as the "Brat 'n' Beer Fest" returns to Wheeling for the second consecutive year.

The festival, sponsored by the Wheeling Historical Society, will begin at 2 p.m. and continue as long as people are having a good time.

As part of the festival, the Community Arts League of Wheeling-Buffalo Grove will sponsor an art fair featuring works by Chicago area artists. Ribbons and cash prizes will be awarded by the art league in several categories. Don Roth's Restaurant and the bank will also present $50 purchase awards.

Children of art league members will exhibit their works in a special exhibit, and a "Clay Corner" for all the children at the air will be set up by Ship-Inn Ceramics of Wheeling.

order over hickory logs. The bratwurst will be served on potato rolls and smothered with sauerkraut.

Homemade German potato salad and fresh corn on the cob will be served with the bratwurst. Beer and soft drinks will round out the menu.

OLD-TIME German atmosphere will be provided by the Jim Campbell Group. Complete with lederhosen, they will entertain fest-goers with German music and dancing.

The Brat 'n' Beer Fest originated when local residents wanted to continue the community spirit generated by Wheeling's Diamond Jubilee in 1969. The historical society initiated plans for the village's 75th anniversary celebration, and people had such a good time, they kept asking us when we'd do it again," said John Koeppen of the historical society.

Last year's event attracted several thousand persons who consumed more than 15 barrels of beer and 2,000 bratwurst.

Relief Soon For Rte. 53 Motorists

Relief is on the way for Ill. Rte. 53 motorists with the new Interstate-90 scheduled to open sometime in September.

James Fitz of the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday that construction was on schedule and predicted the September target date would be met, barring bad weather. He said work had been delayed by the cement masons strike, but paving has now resumed.

The only work remaining is some paving and shoulder work on the stretch between Irving Park Road and Devon Avenue. When this work is finished, the highway will connect the Eisenhower Expressway with the Northwest Tollway. Drivers will no longer be forced to use the narrow, two-lane Rte. 53.

No figures were immediately available on the total cost of the construction project because it has gone on for so many years. Fitz said the Irving Park Road to Devon Avenue section cost $4 million.

Improvements for Rte. 53 call for the construction of a new roadway paralleling the present road, south of the Northwest Tollway, but not part of the existing Rte. 53. This freeway will be named Rte. 53 and the present road will be renamed.

NORTH OF THE Northwest Tollway, construction on the new roadway has been completed to Dundee Road on what is called Ill. Rte. 53. Fitz said that this section of highway may be given a U. S. route number in the future.

Construction started in 1960. Originally the state was only planning to improve Rte. 53. It was only after construction started that the state began thinking of putting in an interstate route.

The first stage of construction began between Algonquin and Kirchoff roads in 1960 and took about two years to finish. The construction crews then moved to the area between Kirchoff and Rand roads. By 1969 the entire stretch between Algonquin and Dundee roads was completed.

Because the first plan was for improvement to an existing state road, modifications had to be made to the construction to convert it to a new interstate route. Bridges were redesigned to make them waterproof. Thicker concrete had to be poured to handle the heavier traffic load. When finished, the concrete on I-90 should have a 20-year lifespan.

Auto Stolen

A maroon Chevrolet was stolen from an apartment parking lot at 803C Valley Stream Dr. Monday night or Tuesday morning.

Santos Perez, owner of the car, said the automobile was missing when he went to the parking lot Tuesday morning. Perez said he had locked the car.

Looking For Bike

Mrs. Eugene Branski, 529 White Pine Rd., told Buffalo Grove police Tuesday that her son's bicycle was stolen July 21 from a house at 408 White Pine Rd.

The bicycle is a three-speed blue model with broken handle brakes.

A Day In The Life Of A Mailwoman

Editor's note: Herald reporter Jean Cafarella rode and walked with a mail carrier for a day to find out what delivering the mail is really like.

by JEAN CAFARELLA

Delivering mail isn't as easy as it looks. What with stupid adults, overly-playful kids, and dogs who want to make brunch out of the mail carrier, there must be days when a mailman is ready to sit down on his mailbag and cry.

Take the Wheeling Post Office, for instance, which delivers to zip code 60090 in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. It handles about 60,000 pieces of mail a day and has 30 routes.

"Did you ever try delivering mail with about six people breathing down your neck?" said Charlene Antal, a clerk who occasionally carries mail. "You go to some of these apartments with about 60 names on them, and the people wait for you. You're trying to scan all the names on the boxes, and they keep asking, 'Got any for me?'"

"And if you haven't got a uniform, people just don't believe you're a mailman," she added. If she goes out of uniform to deliver a registered letter, before she can open her mouth the person says "I don't want any."

BUSINESSMEN are even worse.

"If you're not in uniform because you're substituting for somebody, the businessmen go, 'oh, are YOU the mailman?' Then they look you up and down and check you out," said Charlene.

"The first time I did a route, I thought I was going to die," said Nancy Moore, who has delivered mail for three years. "When I was still new, I'd go to the door with a registered letter and yell 'mailman.' Some men would open the door with nothing on but underpants, or else totally nude. I often wondered whether I should write to Readers Digest about it."

Nancy was the second girl hired by the Wheeling Post Office, and one of the few who's stayed on.

"I'm not a women's libber. I just like the job, and the pay is good." But some guys just can't get used to a girl carrying around a 30-pound bag of mail, she said.

The number of female post office workers everywhere is increasing because of more use of mail trucks and more female applicants. Wheeling has 60 employees and three are women. Five of Hoffman Estates' 33 carriers are girls, and Mount Prospect has two girls and 54 men. In Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Elk Grove Village, there are 16 women out of 138 carriers.

Women aren't the only ones who get harassed. Jim Wolfe, foreman of the mails says there are always a few problem people on every route.

"EVERY DAY WE get calls from people and businesses who refuse to believe that we deliver all the mail. If they don't get something, they insist we're holding out. If we don't get it, we can't deliver it," said Wolfe.

The mailmen find some of the strangest things in the mail. Nancy said an envelope came in once that opened by accident and narcotics spilled out. It had been sent general delivery and the person who was supposed to pick it up never came.

Kids are great for thinking up ingenious goodies to put in the collection boxes. Wolf is always finding toys and shoes, and once he found several kittens. He also collected $11 in change one day.

Nancy opened the collection box to find a garter snake inside, and several kids hiding nearby were giggling.

Kids also like to play "mailman," a game of taking the mail out of one mailbox and putting it in another. Nancy has

Police Meeting Today On Salary Negotiations

Palatine patrolmen have scheduled a meeting for this morning to determine whether to pursue salary negotiations with the village.

Michael McDonald, president of the Palatine chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA), which represents 21 Palatine patrolmen and is seeking to represent three sergeants, said several alternatives will be presented at the meeting. He declined to comment on the specifics of the alternatives.

CCPA President John Flood, when contacted by The Herald regarding the meeting, said the course of action will be determined by the Palatine chapter but added if it were his decision "it would be a fight."

The CCPA, Flood said, had federal arbitration in the salary negotiations, but said the village ignored the request.

"I'm at total odds with the village and they can expect something soon," he said.

The Palatine Village Board recently awarded the policemen a 4 per cent salary boost, retroactive to when their contract expired May 1.

The CCPA originally sought a 5½ per cent pay hike, but reduced that request to 5 per cent during negotiations.

THE VILLAGE was reluctant to offer more than 4 per cent to the police, the amount given this year to other village employees.

McDonald had indicated at the time of the village board action that he considered it an attempt to end the negotiations, and said the CCPA may try to continue the talks.

A CCPA spokesman said none of the numerous contracts negotiated this year by the CCPA provided for a raise of less than 5 per cent.

Bike Thefts Hit Village

A rash of bicycle thefts have hit Palatine this summer, according to Palatine police, who report 65 bicycles stolen since June 26.

"Very few of these have been recovered," Det. Walter E. Schoenfeld said. Some of the bikes were taken from garages, while others were left unlocked or had the chain cut.

"We think Palatine residents should be aware of this problem. The area has been plagued with bike thefts," Det. Norman Beacham said. The police department has had an average of two bicycles a day reported stolen.

Chains and locks may not be a fool-proof solution to the thefts, Beacham said, but the number of stolen bicycles could decrease considerably if bicyclists lock their bikes to an object each time they leave it.

Builder Charged On 2 Counts

Grand Jury Indicts Faubion For Bribery

by STEVE BROWN

A Palatine man was among more than a dozen Chicago area contractors and government officials indicted by a federal grand jury on a variety of charges including bribery.

Indicted on two counts of bribery was Royal R. Faubion, 1106 Pepper Tree Dr. Faubion was president and general manager of the Chicago division of Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. when the alleged offenses occurred.

Royal R. Faubion

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Chicago said the indictment alleges that Faubion bribed Lawrence E. Abbott, 54, an employee of the Federal Housing Administration, on May 17 and July 27, 1971 in an effort to gain Abbott's approval for Kaufman and Broad development plans.

FAUBION IS serving as president of American Continental Homes, a subsidiary of American Finance Corp.

Kaufman and Broad officials in Los Angeles said they were not aware what development may have been involved in the alleged bribe incident.

Company officials stressed that they cooperated fully with the Federal Bureau of Investigation probe into the matter. They also stated that neither Kaufman and Broad nor any of its subsidiaries were named in the indictment.

Faubion joined Kaufman and Broad in 1969. He was formerly a vice president for Cambon-Kendall, a Louisville building company.

The federal indictment alleges Faubion gave Abbott $800, three cases of liquor and a money clip in the two bribery incidents.

BARRINGTON SQUARE in Hoffman Estates, Pepper Tree Farms and Heath-erlea are among the local Kaufman and Broad developments.

The company is recognized as one of the largest home builders in the Chicago area.

Another former Kaufman and Broad official, Maurice Sanderman of Highland Park, was also indicted for bribery.

Abbott and the three other indicted FHA officials have been suspended without pay.

place President Nixon's name in nomination for a second term at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach next month.

President Nixon said U.S. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim had been duped by Communist propaganda into criticizing the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam without raising one word of protest against North Vietnam's invasion of the South. It was the toughest administration criticism yet of Waldheim.

Actress Jane Fonda arrived in New York from Hanoi. Her press agent has scheduled a news conference for this morning.

The World

The U.S. urged immediate discussion of a cease-fire at the Paris peace talks as the key to peace in Indochina as well as arrangements for the release of American prisoners of war. The Communists rejected the call.

U. S. Challenger Bobby Fischer, playing before television cameras, won the eighth game of the world chess championship. The win put Fischer two points ahead of Boris Spassky. The score is 5 to 3.

The War

South Vietnamese paratroopers pulled out of Quang Tri city's walled Citadel, abandoning the fortress to Communists until marine replacements can move in. Forty miles to the south, Communist units overran two firebases, key links in the defense line protecting the former imperial capital of Hue.

The State

An attorney for Chicago Mayor Richard Daley's unseated delegation asked for an injunction to prevent a challenge delegation headed by Chicago Ald. William Singer from attending the Illinois Democratic Caucus Aug. 5.

Daniel Walker, Democratic candidate for governor, announced that Dr. John Mathis, who was defeated by Gov. Richard Ogilvie for the Republican nomination, would serve as chairman of the Independent Republican Citizens Committee to Elect Daniel Walker.

MRS. OPAL HOMINICK and her son, Gordon, survey the swimming pool which two contractors began constructing in her back yard, at 51 S. Belle, last fall and failed to complete. The two, John Andre of Streamwood and Joe Turos of Chicago, have been sued by Atty. Gen. William Scott, who charged that they defrauded Mrs. Hominick of $9,554, the amount she paid in advance for the pool. During the intervening months it has remained at 25 per cent completion, and she has spent additional money to have it pumped so it will not be a hazard.

Irregularities Delay Development

A plan to build apartments and a shopping area near Harper College has been set back, possibly months, because of irregularities in the petition seeking annexation of the land to Rolling Meadows.

This recent development in the story of the controversial "Beery property," named for one of the principals in the proposed 49-acre development, Gene Beery of Palatine, means that the developers will have to re-petition the city for annexation and again go through several hearings before city commissions, if they intend to pursue their original course.

Mayor Roland Meyer said that Beery already has indicated that he will start the entire process all over. Meyer Tuesday night appointed a special zoning commission to hear the proposal based on a new petition seeking annexation and rezoning of the property.

Beery could not be reached yesterday for comment.

THE ORIGINAL petition on the property, which is located south of Euclid-Lake Avenue and between Harper College and Quentin Road in unincorporated Palatine Township, contained an incomplete legal description of the property in question, according to Meyer.

That automatically invalidates the petition and strikes down any subsequent action on the part of the city.

The Beery property already had been taken through a special city zoning commission, the plan commission and a public hearing before the city council. The council was supposed to rule on the annexation request Tuesday night, but could not because of the new developments.

Meyer said that the developers made another error, this one in their plans for the apartment complex.

He explained that their proposal sought a land-use density of 22 apartment units per acre of land, based on an obsolete city zoning ordinance.

That ordinance was amended in 1968 or 1969, according to Meyer, to limit density to 14 units per acre.

Meyer said the developers and their attorneys apparently neglected to read the amendment to the city zoning code in their copy of the zoning ordinances.

Area Woman To Sing Bacharach Tunes

An Arlington Heights woman will solo with the Palatine Village Band in tonight's concert.

Gloria Strauss, a soprano, will sing Burt Bacharach's "Close to You," "We've Only Just Begun" and "I'll Never Fall in Love Again."

Mrs. Strauss teaches piano and is a member of a Northwest suburban choral group. She has appeared numerous times in musicals, variety shows and recitals, as a singer and pianist.

Tonight's concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Palatine Hills recreation area.

Other selections on the program: "Transylvania Fanfare," by Benson; "Prelude to Faust," Gounod; "Allerseelen," Strauss; "On the Mall," Goldman; "Prelude to Return," Mitsuo Nonami; "The New Colonial," Hall; "Colonel Bogey," Alford; "Selections from 1776," Edwards; "Dragons and Jet Planes," Warner Bros.; and "The Screamer."

District To Hold Olympics Finals

The Salt Creek Rural Park District will hold its Paddock Olympics pre-finals today at Winston Park, Joyce Street and Winston Drive in Palatine, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Tomorrow, the final tryouts will begin at 10 a.m. at South Park, which is located at Euclid and Rohlfing Roads.

The Saturday event is an open final. Any boy or girl seven to 13 years of age may enter the Saturday competition.

Winners will represent the Salt Creek Rural Park District in the Paddock Olympics finals at Conant High School, Aug. 1 and 2.

Marquette Grads

Two Palatine residents recently received B.A. degrees from Marquette University in Milwaukee.

They were Joanne T. Driscoll, 220 Brookdale Ln., and Melanie S. Kamin, 1680 Banbury Rd.

Parks Ask City: Give Us $25,000 For Park Work

The Rolling Meadows Park Board has requested well over $25,000 from the city budget to help finance park improvements.

In a letter to the city's finance committee this week, the park board asked financial aid for a $15,000 swimming pool filter, two $5,000 foot bridges as well as money for drinking fountains and sidewalk installation in the parks.

The request, signed by William Billings, park board president, stated "all capital expenditures of our comprehensive plan must come out of the park district operating budget . . . to resurface our tennis courts . . . depletes our budgeted amount for any major capital improvements for the fiscal year 1972-73."

AT A WEDNESDAY night finance committee meeting, Dean Hallerud, former park district director, addressed aldermen and Mayor Roland Meyer asking that the request be acted upon immediately.

Hallerud, who said he was speaking only as a resident and not as a representative of the park district, also alleged a personality conflict between city officials and members of the park board.

"I'm not concerned about dollars," Hallerud said. "We have a personality conflict to bury."

Ald. Frederick Jacobson, chairman of the committee, contended there are no conflicts between the two groups and said the request by the park board will be acted upon only after a decision is made on whether the city will take over the financial responsibilities of the Rolling Meadows Fire Protection District, now under consideration.

A referendum is set for Aug. 19 when city residents will vote on the question of the city absorbing the fire district, a separate taxing body like the park district.

Jacobson said a special city council meeting will be held, with all ten aldermen present, to discuss the park district proposal.

Hallerud said he felt the park district request should have priority over the fire district consideration because it was submitted several years ago. In a somewhat fiery exchange, Meyer said Hallerud was "all wet" adding the fire district incorporation was first aired in 1962.

THE PARK DISTRICT originally had asked the city to supply funds for playground equipment, but since have dropped the proposal.

The latest proposal was requested by city officials, Billings said, and the funds would be supplied through the income tax revenue which by Illinois statute may be shared between municipal taxing bodies.

Billings said that unless the funds for the swimming pool are supplied by the city, the park district probably will be forced to increase pool rates next season. He added that the filter is needed before the pool opens next summer.

Council Approves Police Spending

The Rolling Meadows City Council has approved spending about $15,000 to buy new police radios and to remodel the police department radio room at city hall.

The council voted unanimously to spend the money, most of which will go for the purchase of 12 portable four-frequency radios that will be used by police officers on patrol.

Ald. William Ahrens, chairman of the license, police and health committee, explained that the patrolmen now have only their car-mounted radios.

"The patrolman now in essence is out of communication when he leaves the car," Ahrens said.

He said the radios will become "partners" to the city's single-man squad patrols.

The radios will cost the city $10,000. An additional $4,873 will be spent to remodel the radio room at city hall, which Ald. Thomas Scanlan said will relieve cramped conditions and provide space "to update the . . . radio console so we will be able to hook the fire department into it," if the city assumes control of the fire district.

Cracker Barrel

WILD IRISH ROSE. City Atty. Don Rose was absent from the Rolling Meadows City Council gathering Tuesday night, apparently on vacation. Mayor Roland Meyer's explanation of his absence was, "He's in Ireland trying to settle the strife in Belfast." Sounds like Meyer's been getting too close to the blarney stone.

RETZKE LAKE REVISITED. At Tuesday's meeting, Ald. Kenneth Retzke told again the sad story of the Holly Lane Lake — known in some circles as Retzke Lake. He bemoaned that, during the few days that he was away, the 100 Year Flood hit again for about the third time in a month, and swelled the lake to great proportions. And Meyer's line was, "The Fishin' is real good."

I-90 Opening In September

Relief Coming For Rte. 53 Drivers

Relief is on the way for Ill. Rte. 53 motorists with the new Interstate-90 scheduled to open sometime in September.

James Pitz of the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday that construction was on schedule and predicted the September target date would be met, barring bad weather. He said work had been delayed by the cement masons strike, but paving has now resumed.

The only work remaining is some paving and shoulder work on the stretch between Irving Park Road and Devon Avenue. When this work is finished, the highway will connect the Eisenhower Expressway with the Northwest Tollway. Drivers will no longer be forced to use the narrow, two-lane Rte. 53.

No figures were immediately available on the total cost of the construction project because it has gone on for so many years. Pitz said the Irving Park Road to Devon Avenue section cost $4 million.

Improvements for Rte. 53 call for the construction of a new roadway paralleling the present road, south of the Northwest Tollway, but not part of the existing Rte. 53. This freeway will be named Rte. 53 and the present road will be renamed.

NORTH OF THE Northwest Tollway, construction on the new roadway has been completed to Dundee Road on what is called Ill. Rte. 53. Pitz said that this section of highway may be given a U. S. route number in the future.

Construction started in 1960. Originally the state was only planning to improve Rte. 53. It was only after construction started that the state began thinking of putting in an interstate route.

The first stage of construction began between Algonquin and Kirchoff roads in 1960 and took about two years to finish. The construction crews then moved to the area between Kirchoff and Rand roads. By 1969 the entire stretch between Algonquin and Dundee roads was completed.

Because the first plan was for improvement to an existing state road, modifications had to be made to the construction to convert it to a new interstate route. Bridges were redesigned to make them waterproof. Thicker concrete had to be poured to handle the heavier traffic load. When finished, the concrete on I-90 should have a 20-year lifespan.

Little Publicity Planned For Fire Dist. Vote

The Aug. 19 referendum to find out if residents want the City of Rolling Meadows to take over the fire protection district is expected to be very inexpensive.

Mayor Roland Meyer said recently he did not know how much it would cost, but said "expenses have been cut down quite a bit."

There will probably be very little large-scale publicity for the referendum, which is going to be held at the fire station on Meadow Drive, south of Kirchoff

Road, between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. on the 19th.

Meyer said notices will probably be tacked on utility poles, as in all elections, but there will be "no special method" for publicizing the special vote.

He did say that he might send out letters to all the residents in the city encouraging them to support the referendum by voting, whether for the proposals or against them.

The city will be considered a single voting precinct for the special election, and Meyer said that will cut costs considerably.

ONLY FIVE election judges and one polling place will have to be provided. Meyer said the poll judges each receive $30 for their day's work.

The method of selecting the judges has not yet been decided upon, according to Meyer. He said the city clerk could appoint them, but he hopes to have the city council choose some of the judges and the fire district trustees select the others.

A Day In The Life Of A Mailwoman

Editor's note: Herald reporter Jean Cafarella rode and walked with a mail carrier for a day to find out what delivering the mail is really like.

by JEAN CAFARELLA

Delivering mail isn't as easy as it looks. What with stupid adults, overly-playful kids, and dogs who want to make brunch out of the mail carrier, there must be days when a mailman is ready to sit down on his mailbox and cry.

Take the Wheeling Post Office, for instance, which delivers to zip code 60090 in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. It handles about 60,000 pieces of mail a day and has 30 routes.

"Did you ever try delivering mail with about six people breathing down your neck?" said Charlene Antal, a clerk who occasionally carries mail. "You go to some of these apartments with about 60 names on them, and the people wait for you. You're trying to scan all the names on the boxes, and they keep asking, 'Got any for me?'"

"And if you haven't got a uniform, people just don't believe you're a mailman," she added. If she goes out of uniform to deliver a registered letter, before she can open her mouth the person says "I don't want any."

BUSINESSMEN are even worse. "If you're not in uniform because you're substituting for somebody, the businessmen go, 'oh, are YOU the mailman?' Then they look you up and down and check you out," said Charlene.

"The first time I did a route I thought I was going to die," said Nancy Moore who has delivered mail for three years. "When I was still new, I'd go to the door with a registered letter and yell 'mailman.' Some men would open the door with nothing on but underpants, or else totally nude. I often wondered whether I should write to Readers Digest about it."

Nancy was the second girl hired by the Wheeling Post Office, and one of the few who's stayed on.

"I'm not a women's libber. I just like the job, and the pay is good." But some guys just can't get used to a girl carrying around a 30-pound bag of mail, she said.

The number of female post office workers everywhere is increasing because of more use of mail trucks and more female applicants. Wheeling has 60 employees and three are women. Five of Hoffman Estates' 33 carriers are girls, and Mount Prospect has two girls and 54 men. In Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Elk Grove Village, there are 16 women out of 138 carriers.

Women aren't the only ones who get harassed. Jim Wolfe, foreman of the mails says there are always a few problem people on every route.

"EVERY DAY WE get calls from people and businesses who refuse to believe that we deliver all the mail. If they don't get something, they insist we're holding out. If we don't get it we can't deliver it," said Wolf.

The mailmen find some of the strangest things in the mail. Nancy said an envelope came in once that opened by accident and narcotics spilled out. It had been sent general delivery and the person who was supposed to pick it up never came.

Kids are great for thinking up ingenious goodies to put in the collection boxes. Wolf is always finding toys and shoes, and once he found several kittens. He also collected $11 in change one day.

Nancy opened the collection box to find a garter snake inside, and several kids hiding nearby were giggling.

Kids also like to play "mailman," a game of taking the mail out of one mailbox and putting it in another. Nancy has had problems with kids who run up and want to give the mail to "mommy" themselves. She asks them if they live in the house she's coming up to, and they say yes. She gives them the mail for that house, and they run two blocks with it.

OF COURSE, she dare not get mad at a child — his dog may eat her foot. German Shepherds are especially fond of the taste of mailmen. Nancy has been nipped twice, and she said almost everybody gets bit at least once.

Wolf said it costs the post office over a million dollars a year for the treatment of dog bites.

"These people really believe in their hearts that their dogs won't bite," said Nancy. "My friend Fran was bitten last year and needed five stitches. When the owners were asked to pay for it they denied the dog was theirs."

THE POSTMEN carry an aerosol can of HALT, a spray which is irritating to the eyes, nose, and skin of the dog. HALT is not Mace, and Nancy said it works well with small dogs. However, once a German Shepherd charged at her and the HALT didn't phase him. "The dog had his face right up to mine. Luckily the neighbors came and pulled him off," she said.

The dog problem is no myth. Wednesday on Nancy's route she put part of the mail in a slot, and a barking dog was on the other side. He grabbed the mail out of the slot before she could push it in. "Let's see how he likes Life magazine," she said. Sure enough, zip — right out of her hand, barely missing the fingers.

Sometimes it just isn't a mailman's day. Nancy said sometimes a guy will get stuck in a mail truck with a large number of perfumed letters, and "some of them just reek."

THEY OFTEN get letters from foreign countries addressed to John Doe, Buffalo Grove, U.S.A. For the letters that are just impossible to read, there is a special clerk to decipher them. Such letters are called "mixes."

Nancy often loses money on postage-due letters, just through her own generosity. The carrier pays the postage due, then collects from the recipient.

"If it looks like a nice letter from someone's boyfriend, I just give it to her. I figure she doesn't want to wait," Nancy said.

But sometimes it pays off, too. "At Christmas time I get a lot of cards and stuff from people who know me," said Nancy. Most people are pretty nice.

Kenroy Attorney Is Negotiating For School Site

by TOM VON MALDER

A private developer is attempting to purchase the Central School site in down town Mount Prospect for construction of federally financed senior citizen housing.

The Herald has learned that Kenroy Inc. of Skokie is interested in buying the site, slightly in excess of 2½ acres, from the current owners who hold the site through a land trust.

A representative of Kenroy has talked to Alexander Magnus, the owners' spokesman, about the possible sale of the property at least once.

"Certainly we are trying to make a deal for the site," Bill Dillon, an attorney for Kenroy, said yesterday. He said an associate of his had talked to Magnus.

Magnus at first said he knew nothing about Kenroy's desire to buy the land. Then he said, "Someone did call one time but it was just an off-hand conversation."

DILLON SAID of the site, "If we were to buy it (Central School), I would think that (elderly housing) would be a good use," Dillon said. "It is close to transportation and shopping."

Dillon added that Kenroy's interest in the property was not new. He said Kenroy was the second highest bidder when the land was auctioned off to Magnus and the land trust. The sale price was about $410,000.

There will be more talks with Magnus, according to Dillon, but no dates have been set yet.

Dillon indicated that if Kenroy was to build elderly housing, the firm would seek federal funding for the project. When asked what type of federal funding would be sought, he said, "We haven't got into that that deeply." Kenroy officials have talked with "various financing bodies," he said.

THERE HAD BEEN talk of negotiations between Magnus and the Jewel Co. for the sale of the site and the construction of a Jewel Foodstore. Asked about rumors that the talks had fallen through, Magnus refused to comment.

It is believed that the relatively small size of the lot (for a store site) and potential dedication of land along the public right-of-ways both were obstacles to the Jewel plan.

Currently, the village is attempting to purchase two 7-foot-wide strips of the property along Central Road and Main Street for the planned widening of the intersection. The village has had an appraisal made which values the land at about $600 more than the budgeted $18,000. Magnus said his group's appraisal has not yet been finished.

If the two sides fail to reach a settlement relatively soon, the village will start condemnation proceedings to get the land, according to Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley.

Rear-End Crash Injures 3

Three persons were injured Wednesday night as the result of a two-car, rear-end collision at Northwest Highway and Central Road in Mount Prospect.

One of the injured was Bruce McCormick, 17, an employee of Winkelmann Shell. He was removing a chain from underneath one of the damaged cars, when the car fell on his arm. He was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital.

Also treated and released after the 8:37 p.m. accident was George B. Karbowski, 40, of Morton Grove. Police charged him with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident as his car struck the rear of the other car when the southbound light on Northwest Highway turned red.

Walter E. Beaudette Jr., 19, of 1408 S. Birch St., the driver of the second car, was admitted to the intensive care unit of Northwest Community Hospital with a concussion and a possible spine sprain.

However, a hospital spokesman said Beaudette refused to stay at the hospital and left. Yesterday morning, Beaudette showed up at Lutheran General Hospital where he was treated and released.

ICE House To Hold 3-Day Open House

The ICE House, a Mount Prospect counseling center, will hold an open house next Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"We want people to be able to see what the ICE House is all about," said Jackie Kruse, social therapist in charge of the counseling center. She said the center, at 201 W. Prospect Ave., Suite 3, will be open from 9 a.m.-9 p.m. to give all residents an opportunity to visit. Refreshments and coffee will be served.

The ICE House, operated by the Mount Prospect Community Action Plan (CAP), provides free counseling for both adults and teenagers. The center also offers group therapy sessions for individuals and married couples. Residents can call the ICE House at 394-8400.

I-90 Opening In September

Relief Coming For Rte. 53 Drivers

Relief is on the way for Ill. Rte. 53 motorists with the new Interstate-90 scheduled to open sometime in September.

James Pitz of the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday that construction was on schedule and predicted the September target date would be met, barring bad weather. He said work had been delayed by the cement masons strike, but paving has now resumed.

The only work remaining is some paving and shoulder work on the stretch between Irving Park Road and Devon Avenue. When this work is finished, the highway will connect the Eisenhower Expressway with the Northwest Tollway. Drivers will no longer be forced to use the narrow, two-lane Rte. 53.

No figures were immediately available on the total cost of the construction project because it has gone on for so many years. Pitz said the Irving Park Road to Devon Avenue section cost $4 million.

Improvements for Rte. 53 call for the construction of a new roadway paralleling the present road, south of the Northwest Tollway, but not part of the existing Rte. 53. This freeway will be named Rte. 53 and the present road will be renamed.

NORTH OF THE Northwest Tollway, construction on the new roadway has been completed to Dundee Road on what is called Ill. Rte. 53. Pitz said that this section of highway may be given a U. S. route number in the future.

Construction started in 1960. Originally the state was only planning to improve Rte. 53. It was only after construction started that the state began thinking of putting in an interstate route.

Cheerleaders Here Cited At Clinic

Representing River Trails were Barbara Buck, Cathy DeWaal, Wendy

Because the first plan was for improvement to an existing state road, modifications had to be made to the construction to convert it to a new interstate route. Bridges were redesigned to make them waterproof. Thicker concrete had to be poured to handle the heavier traffic load. When finished, the concrete on I-90 should have a 20-year lifespan.

Hawes, Sandra Laisch, Lisa Muenzer, Sandra Borowski, Barbara Bouvier, Christine Boyle, Kathy Eldridge, Kathy Krug, Kelly Howe, Barbara Heller, Jeanne Marinelli and Nicole Merk. Cathy Burns is the squad's sponsor.

About 350 girls from Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas attended the camp.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

Sen. Thomas Eagleton called a charge by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson that Eagleton had been arrested for drunken and reckless driving a lie, and said he would remain on the Democratic presidential ticket with Sen. George McGovern. McGovern said he would not be stampeded into replacing his vice presidential running mate.

The Commerce Department said its leading economic indicators rose by nearly 2 per cent during the past two months, indicating the current economic expansion will continue strong for at least the next 18 months.

The White House announced that Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York will place President Nixon's name in nomination for a second term at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach next month.

The U.S. Parole Board granted parole to convicted pornographer Ralph Ginzburg, former publisher of Eros magazine who is serving three years for sending obscene materials through the mail.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender, 81-year-old dean of the Senate and a colorful Louisiana Democrat whose career stretched back to the days of Huey Long, died of apparent heart failure yesterday evening shortly after being stricken while campaigning for reelection.

The World

The U.S. urged immediate discussion of a cease-fire at the Paris peace talks as the key to peace in Indochina as well as arrangements for the release of American prisoners of war. The Communists rejected the call.

U. S. Challenger Bobby Fischer, playing before television cameras, won the eighth game of the world chess championship. The win put Fischer two points ahead of Boris Spassky. The score is 5 to 3.

It should delight the Coca-Cola folks to learn that when some American teenagers toured Russia recently the thing they missed most was Coke.

The group of 27 boys and girls returned last week from a 20-day tour sponsored by Prospect High School. All are Russian language high school or college students.

"All the beverages in Russia are served at room temperature," said Lynn Walshell of 104 W. Edward St. "The milk is usually curdled. With meals we drank water or mineral water. They also have lemonade, which is bubbly and sweet. It comes in different colors but all tastes the same."

Mike Trochuck of 408 S. We-Go Tr. enjoyed trying out a water-dispensing machine. For one kopeck you get plain mineral water. For three kopecks you get it flavored with syrup.

"THE RUSSIANS really go for this," he said. "On the street you also see ladies selling mugs of 'kvas' from big tanks. It's a fermented drink with raisins and other stuff in it. It quenches your thirst but doesn't compare to Coke."

"When we got to Finland, everyone rushed in and bought Cokes and guzzled them down."

"I just couldn't get used to the idea of eating fish eggs," he said.

"It took a long time to get used to the food," agreed Lynn. "Some people just ate bread for several days." But Lynn soon discovered that chunky Russian soups, always served with a dollop of sour cream on top, were delicious.

Both Lynn and Mike found their visit to a new Pioneer Palace in Moscow interesting. Many young Russians belong to Pioneer Clubs, which provide recreational programs something like our Boy Scouts or YMCA.

When the tour group visited the Palace, a Young Communist League meeting was in progress. This was their first opportunity to see Russian propaganda in action.

"There was a big picture of Angela Davis in the room, along with a sign saying 'Angela's free!'" reported Mike. "That really got me mad."

"SOME OTHER kids on our tour also saw another piece of propaganda saying, 'Cuba is the only free country in the Western Hemisphere.' There was also a newspaper printed in English with a lot of stuff about what's wrong with the United States. The kids are taught to believe this propaganda."

Lynn, along with Tom Bennett and Steve Fako, saw another example of Russian propaganda when they visited the Museum of Atheism in Leningrad. Here the Communists try to show museum visitors that all religions are based on superstition and fallacy. Exhibits include old instruments of torture used by

"good Christians," "religious articles" such as coconut shells with crosses carved in them, and pictures of Greek gods.

"Atheism is taught in the schools," Lynn said.

Another interesting stop in Leningrad was the Hermitage — the old winter residence of Russian Czars.

"I just can't describe it," said Lynn. "There are more than 2½ million art items there, including 26 Rembrandt paintings and two paintings by Leonardo da Vinci."

One unusual experience the group had was visiting an older Russian school. (In tourist guides usually take tourists to the newest school.) A Russian teacher who was an exchange teacher at Prospect last year escorted them through the building. Unfortunately, students in her English classes were unable to be there, as planned.

EDWARD SWICK, the foreign language teacher from Prospect who led the tour, had warned the group about "black marketeers" in Russia. About every third one who approaches tourists, he warned, is a secret service agent.

Mike reported, "Quite a few fellows approached us and asked where we were from, what they could do for us, and if we would like to sell our Levis or shirts or sunglasses."

"They also wanted to exchange rubles for our American dollars. The government rate was one ruble for $1.39 in American money. They offered us two rubles for $1. These black market guys were the best dressed people we saw. They almost looked like tourists!"

Girls on the tour were cautioned to wear dresses rather than shorts or slacks on the street. One girl with a short skirt was stopped on the street and told by a couple of Russians that she shouldn't wear her dresses so short," said Lynn.

Another Russian woman told some of the youngsters, who were sitting down to rest their tired feet, that she could always tell Americans because they were so bold and did just what they felt like doing — like sitting down when their feet got tired.

One confrontation the group had with Russian officials came at the Russian-Finnish border. Soviet guards boarded the train to inspect each compartment — and confiscated all the rubles the group had. According to Lynn, this was a new practice. They expect to be reimbursed eventually for their confiscated rubles.

"It was kind of scary," said Lynn.

Although the tour group arrived back at O'Hare Airport about 3 a.m., four hours past the scheduled arrival because of thunder storms, a large group of parents and friends was on hand to welcome them home.

They carried a large sign reading, "Welcome back to the real thing — Coke!"

No Easy Job Even For A Gal

A Day In The Life Of A Mailwoman

Editor's note: Herald reporter Jean Cafarella rode and walked with a mail carrier for a day to find out what delivering the mail is really like.

by JEAN CAFARELLA

Delivering mail isn't as easy as it looks. What with stupid adults, overly-playful kids, and dogs who want to make brunch out of the mail carrier, there must be days when a mailman is ready to sit down on his mailbox and cry.

Take the Wheeling Post Office, for instance, which delivers to zip code 60090 in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. It handles about 60,000 pieces of mail a day and has 30 routes.

"Did you ever try delivering mail with about six people breathing down your neck?" said Charlene Antal, a clerk who occasionally carries mail. "You go to some of these apartments with about 60 names on them, and the people wait for you. You're trying to scan all the names on the boxes, and they keep asking, 'Got any for me?'"

"And if you haven't got a uniform, people just don't believe you're a mailman," she added. If she goes out of uniform to deliver a registered letter, before she can open her mouth the person says "I don't want any."

BUSINESSMEN are even worse.

"If you're not in uniform because you're substituting for somebody, the businessmen go, 'oh, are YOU the mail-MAN? Then they look you up and down and check you out," said Charlene.

"The first time I did a route, I thought I was going to die," said Nancy Moore, who has delivered mail for three years. "When I was still new, I'd go to the door with a registered letter and yell 'mailman.' Some men would open the door with nothing on but underpants, or else totally nude. I often wondered whether I should write to Readers Digest about it."

Nancy was the second girl hired by the Wheeling Post Office, and one of the few who's stayed on.

"I'm not a women's libber. I just like the job, and the pay is good." But some guys just can't get used to a girl carrying around a 30-pound bag of mail, she said.

The number of female post office workers everywhere is increasing because of more use of mail trucks and more female applicants. Wheeling has 60 employees and three are women. Five of Hoffman Estates' 33 carriers are girls, and Mount Prospect has two girls and 54 men. In Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Elk Grove Village, there are 16 women out of 138 carriers.

Women aren't the only ones who get harassed. Jim Wolfe, foreman of the mails says there are always a few problem people on every route.

"EVERY DAY WE get calls from people and businesses who refuse to believe that we deliver all the mail. If they don't get something, they insist we're holding out. If we don't get it, we can't deliver it," said Wolf.

The mailmen find some of the strangest things in the mail. Nancy said an envelope came in once that opened by accident and narcotics spilled out. It had been sent general delivery and the person who was supposed to pick it up never came.

Kids are great for thinking up ingenious goodies to put in the collection boxes. Wolf is always finding toys and shoes, and once he found several kittens. He also collected $11 in change one day.

Nancy opened the collection box to find a garter snake inside, and several kids hiding nearby were giggling.

Kids also like to play "mailman," a game of taking the mail out of one mailbox and putting it in another. Nancy has had problems with kids who run up and want to give the mail to "mommy" themselves. She asks them if they live in the house she's coming up to, and they say yes. She gives them the mail for that house, and they run two blocks with it.

OF COURSE, she dare not get mad at a child — his dog may eat her foot. German Shepherds are especially fond of the taste of mailmen. Nancy has been nipped twice, and she said almost everybody gets bit at least once.

Wolf said it costs the post office over a million dollars a year for the treatment of dog bites.

"These people really believe in their hearts that their dogs won't bite," said Nancy. "My friend Fran was bitten last year and needed five stitches. When the owners were asked to pay for it, they denied the dog was theirs."

THE POSTMEN carry an aerosol can of HALT, a spray which is irritating to the eyes, nose, and skin of the dog. HALT is not Mace, and Nancy said it works well with small dogs. However, once a German Shepherd charged at her, and the HALT didn't phase him. "The dog had his face right up to mine. Luckily the neighbors came and pulled him off," she said.

The dog problem is no myth. Wednesday on Nancy's route she put part of the mail in a slot, and a barking dog was on the other side. He grabbed the mail out of the slot before she could push it in. "Let's see how he likes Life magazine," she said. Sure enough, zip — right out of her hand, barely missing the fingers.

Sometimes it just isn't a mailman's day. Nancy said sometimes a guy will

Board, Faculty In Negotiations

Negotiators for School Dist. 21 Board of Education and the Wheeling Faculty Council (WFC) conferred all day yesterday with federal mediator Ed Wise.

The meeting began at 10 a.m. and continued through the afternoon. Wise conducted a closed session, with both negotiating teams in the same room, so no results have been released.

Wise said before the meeting started that he would first have to determine what points were left to be settled, and then see what steps to take.

He said it would be a short meeting if the teams were not willing to compromise on the disputed points in the faculty contract. The length of the meeting indicates that some progress is being made, although there has been no official word from either the board or the WFC.

Girl Scouts Honored

Two Mount Prospect area Girl Scouts received the highest awards in Cadette Girl Scouting recently. Linda Walkowicz and Barbara Boint were awarded First Class Pins. The presentation was made at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn by Mrs. E. B. Howard, president of the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County.

Seven Watches Stolen

Seven watches, valued at $1,325, were stolen Saturday night from a Mount Prospect home. Police said that two daughters of John P. Jones, 1113 Brentwood Ln., were home alone when they let a couple in to use their bathroom. The couple then allegedly went through the kitchen to the bedroom and took the watches.

Trial Date Moved

A hearing was moved to Niles Circuit Court on Aug. 1 from Elk Grove Village Court Wednesday for John Stelbacky Jr., 21, 2006 W. Algonquin Rd., Mount Prospect, on charges of forgery and stealing 25 check blanks.

Elk Grove Village police said Stelbacky allegedly took the checks from the home of Jean Shroyer, 569 Lowestoft Ln., in April and cashed six checks for a total of $290.

Softball Scoreboard

Jake's Pizza, Olson Care Enterprises, Coskey Construction Co. and Burger Chef are leading league action in the Mount Prospect Park District Men's Softball League.

Jake's defeated the House of Lords 8-5 Monday to take over sole possession of first place in the Monday night division. Panama Reds topped Annen & Busse 4-2 while Union 76 beat the Non-Raisers 7-3.

Current Monday night division standings are Jake's Pizza, 5-1; House of Lords, 4-2; Annen & Busse, 3-3; Panama Reds, 3-3; Union 76, 3-3; and Non-Raisers 0-6.

IN TUESDAY night action, Olson Care handed ARCO a 14-6 setback while Link's Catering picked up their first season win with an 11-3 score over Countryside Bank. Ye Old Town Inn, the only team to defeat Olson Care, won over Goldblatt's 10-7.

Tuesday night standings are Olson Care, 5-1; Ye Old Town Inn, 5-1; Countryside Bank, 3-3; ARCO 2-4; Goldblatt's, 2-4; and Link's Catering, 1-5.

Plan Unit OKs 6-Lane Drive-In For Local Bank

A two-lane drive-in bank will become a six-lane drive-in bank, if the village board goes along with a recommendation of the Arlington Heights Plan Commission.

The commission approved the plan Wednesday night, after hearing a petition from the First Arlington National Bank, operator of the two-lane facility at the southwest corner of Eastman Street and Arlington Heights Road.

In passing its recommendation to the village board, the plan commission made one stipulation: the bank's present sign be lowered.

The proposed drive-in bank has been a source of some controversy because an earlier ordinance stated that the site would eventually be developed with a high-rise office building.

FIRST Arlington National Bank Pres. Douglas Dodds told the commission that present village parking requirements building in the downtown area virtually impossible.

"To put up a five-story building at the (drive-in) site would require a parking lot the size of our main bank building. Parking ordinances as they apply to downtown buildings have to be changed," Dodds said.

He further told the commission that he has suggested the construction of multi-level parking garages downtown and has presented Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson with a study indicating how such garages could be privately financed.

"It is almost impossible to build anything downtown now," Dodds said.

IN MAKING the motion to recommend to the board of trustees approval of the drive-in bank plans, Commissioner Dave Patterson suggested that the bank's sign be limited in height to either 30 per cent of the height of the building, if it is roof-top sign, or 16-feet-six-inches if it is free standing.

Dodds said the bank wanted to use the existing roof-mounted sign which stands approximately 15 feet above the top of the building.

Several commissioners said they thought the present sign was in conformance with the village sign ordinance and therefore did not think the bank should be required to lower its sign.

Another recommendation of the plan commission is that right turns only be permitted out of the drive-in facility onto Arlington Heights Road from 4:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

Board, Faculty In Negotiations

Negotiators for School Dist. 21 Board of Education and the Wheeling Faculty Council (WFC) conferred all day yesterday with federal mediator Ed Wise.

The meeting began at 10 a.m. and continued through the afternoon. Wise conducted a closed session, with both negotiating teams in the same room, so no results have been released.

Wise said before the meeting started that he would first have to determine what points were left to be settled, and then see what steps to take.

He said it would be a short meeting if the teams were not willing to compromise on the disputed points in the faculty contract. The length of the meeting indicates that some progress is being made, although there has been no official word from either the board or the WFC.

SIGNED, SEALED AND DELIVERED. There's an old proverb that says you must sign for your supper, and maybe that's what the architect of the proposed Yankee Doodle restaurant was thinking of when he drew up blueprints for the building with the restaurant's sign mistakenly misspelled "sing."

NINE O'CLOCK ROCK. Plan Comr. Richard Durava raised a legal question Wednesday night when he asked whether village ordinances allowed stores, specifically record stores, to broadcast music out onto the street. Seems he was provoked by a record shop that was doing some outdoor advertising on a Sunday morning and, according to Durava, "They weren't playing Bach."

ALL CROOKED UP. Members of the Environmental Control Commission had to wait a few minutes for their chairman to arrive at this week's meeting. But the slight delay was worth it as Edward C. Korkkelenberg dazzled the room when he walked in with a red, white and blue striped tie with VOTE sprawled across it several times.

KNOW YOUR LIMITS. Marilyn Macko, member of the Environmental Control Commission, doesn't mind letting her fellow commissioners know when the technical data on landfill procedures becomes overwhelming. "I left this part out because I just didn't understand it," Understanding Comr. James Glynn made her feel better by immediately responding, "You're a lovely lady. Marilyn... you're just not a chemist."

Men Sought For Park Football Teams

Men interested in playing football with an Arlington Heights Park District team are invited to Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge, Tuesday for an organizational meeting.

The meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p.m., will include a discussion of rules and team organization. Park district officials are hoping to form up to five-team leagues this season.

Men who cannot attend the meeting, but who would like to play on a team should call Rich Sedowski, recreation supervisor, at 253-0620.

I-90 Opening In September

Relief Coming For Rte. 53 Drivers

Relief is on the way for Ill. Rte. 53 motorists with the new Interstate-90 scheduled to open sometime in September.

James Pitz of the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday that construction was on schedule and predicted the September target date would be met, barring bad weather. He said work had been delayed by the cement masons strike, but paving has now resumed.

The only work remaining is some paving and shoulder work on the stretch between Irving Park Road and Devon Avenue. When this work is finished, the highway will connect the Eisenhower Expressway with the Northwest Tollway. Drivers will no longer be forced to use the narrow, two-lane Rte. 53.

No figures were immediately available on the total cost of the construction project because it has gone on for so many years. Pitz said the Irving Park Road to Devon Avenue section cost $4 million.

Improvements for Rte. 53 call for the construction of a new roadway paralleling the present road, south of the Northwest Tollway, but not part of the existing Rte. 53. This freeway will be named Rte. 53 and the present road will be renamed.

NORTH OF THE Northwest Tollway, construction on the new roadway has been completed to Dundee Road on what is called Ill. Rte. 53. Pitz said that this section of highway may be given a U. S. route number in the future.

Construction started in 1960. Originally the state was only planning to improve Rte. 53. It was only after construction started that the state began thinking of putting in an interstate route.

The first stage of construction began between Algonquin and Kirchoff roads in 1960 and took about two years to finish. The construction crews then moved to the area between Kirchoff and Rand roads. By 1969 the entire stretch between Algonquin and Dundee roads was completed.

Because the first plan was for improvement to an existing state road, modifications had to be made to the construction to convert it to a new interstate route. Bridges were redesigned to make them waterproof. Thicker concrete had to be poured to handle the heavier traffic load. When finished, the concrete on I-90 should have a 20-year lifespan.

Carry-Out Opposite New School Rejected

A Yankee Doodle carry-out restaurant proposed for the south side of Dundee Road opposite the new Buffalo Grove High School was rejected by the Arlington Heights Plan Commission Wednesday night.

The commissioners cited the potential danger to students who would have to cross Dundee Road to eat at the restaurant.

Commissioner Richard Durava said the village should encourage development along the south side of Dundee Road that would be something other than an "attractive nuisance" to students at the school.

A spokesman for High School Dist. 214 said that Buffalo Grove High School was being designed for 2,500 students and would be open by September, 1973.

Village planning engineer John Best said the State of Illinois was planning to let bids next month on the widening of Dundee Road to four lanes between Elmhurst Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

Best said that the widening also would likely include installation of traffic signals at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads but he said he did not know for sure when the lights would be put in.

A Day In The Life Of A Mailwoman

Editor's note: Herald reporter Jean Cafarella rode and walked with a mail carrier for a day to find out what delivering the mail is really like.

by JEAN CAFARELLA

Delivering mail isn't as easy as it looks. What with stupid adults, overly-playful kids, and dogs who want to make brunch out of the mail carrier, there must be days when a mailman is ready to sit down on his mailbox and cry.

Take the Wheeling Post Office, for instance, which delivers to zip code 60090 in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove. It handles about 60,000 pieces of mail a day and has 30 routes.

"Did you ever try delivering mail with about six people breathing down your neck?" said Charlene Antal, a clerk who occasionally carries mail. "You go to some of these apartments with about 60 names on them, and the people wait for you. You're trying to scan all the names on the boxes, and they keep asking, 'Got any for me?'"

"And if you haven't got a uniform, people just don't believe you're a mailman," she added. If she goes out of uniform to deliver a registered letter, before she can open her mouth the person says "I don't want any."

BUSINESSMEN are even worse. "If you're not in uniform because you're substituting for somebody, the businessmen go, 'oh, are YOU the mailman?' Then they look you up and down and check you out," said Charlene.

"The first time I did a route, I thought I was going to die," said Nancy Moore, who has delivered mail for three years. "When I was still new, I'd go to the door with a registered letter and yell 'mailman.' Some men would open the door with nothing on but underpants, or else totally nude. I often wondered whether I should write to Readers Digest about it."

Nancy was the second girl hired by the Wheeling Post Office, and one of the few who's stayed on.

"I'm not a women's libber. I just like the job, and the pay is good." But some guys just can't get used to a girl carrying around a 30-pound bag of mail, she said.

The number of female post office workers everywhere is increasing because of more use of mail trucks and more female applicants. Wheeling has 60 employees and three are women. Five of Hoffman Estates' 33 carriers are girls, and Mount Prospect has two girls and 54 men. In Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Elk Grove Village, there are 16 women out of 138 carriers.

Women aren't the only ones who get harassed. Jim Wolfe, foreman of the mails says there are always a few problem people on every route.

"EVERY DAY WE get calls from people and businesses who refuse to believe that we deliver all the mail. If they don't get something, they insist we're holding out. If we don't get it, we can't deliver it," said Wolf.

The mailmen find some of the strangest things in the mail. Nancy said an envelope came in once that opened by accident and narcotics spilled out. It had been sent general delivery and the person who was supposed to pick it up never came.

Kids are great for thinking up ingenious goodies to put in the collection boxes. Wolf is always finding toys and shoes, and once he found several kittens. He also collected $11 in change one day.

Nancy opened the collection box to find a garter snake inside, and several kids hiding nearby were giggling.

Kids also like to play "mailman," a game of taking the mail out of one mailbox and putting it in another. Nancy has had problems with kids who run up and want to give the mail to "mommy" themselves. She asks them if they live in the house she's coming up to, and they say yes. She gives them the mail for that house, and they run two blocks with it.

OF COURSE, she dare not get mad at a child — his dog may eat her foot. German Shepherds are especially fond of the taste of mailmen. Nancy has been nipped twice, and she said almost everybody gets bit at least once.

Wolf said it costs the post office over a million dollars a year for the treatment of dog bites.

"These people really believe in their hears that their dogs won't bite," said Nancy. "My friend Fran was bitten last year and needed five stitches. When the owners were asked to pay for it, they denied the dog was theirs."

THE POSTMEN carry an aerosol can of HALT, a spray which is irritating to the eyes, nose, and skin of the dog. HALT is not Mace, and Nancy said it works well with small dogs. However, once a German Shepherd charged at her, and the HALT didn't phase him. "The dog had his face right up to mine. Luckily the neighbors came and pulled him off," she said.

The dog problem is no myth. Wednesday on Nancy's route she put part of the mail in a slot, and a barking dog was on the other side. He grabbed the mail out of the slot before she could push it in. "Let's see how he likes Life magazine," she said. Sure enough, zip — right out of her hand, barely missing the fingers.

Sometimes it just isn't a mailman's day. Nancy said sometimes a guy will get stuck in a mail truck with a large number of perfumed letters, and "some of them just reek."

THEY OFTEN get letters from foreign countries addressed to John Doe, Buffalo Grove, U.S.A. For the letters that are just impossible to read, there is a special clerk to decipher them. Such letters are called "nixies."

Nancy often loses money on postage-due letters, just through her own generosity. The carrier pays the postage due, then collects from the recipient.

"If it looks like a nice letter from someone's boyfriend, I just give it to her. I figure she doesn't want to wait," Nancy said.

But sometimes it pays off, too.

"At Christmas time I get a lot of cards and stuff from people who know me," said Nancy. Most people are pretty nice."

ROOFTOP RAFTERS are being nailed back in place at the Shalamar Apartments on Goebbert Road in Arlington Heights in the wake of tornado-like winds that ripped through the area two weeks ago. The manager of the complex said the roof repairs will be completed within several days and workmen then will begin replacing interior drywalls damaged by rain. He said he hopes to be able to move tenants back into their apartments in four to five weeks. Total damage could go as high as $250,000, he said.

Marilyn Meyer, 1205 N. Dunton Ave., recently received a Bachelor of Science degree in physical education from the University of Wisconsin-La Crosse.

THE POST OFFICE allows a couple of hours for "casing" the mail — shop talk for sorting it by streets. Each carrier sorts the mail for his own route. Here Mrs. Nancy Moore is casing mail for the Sandpebble and Quincy Park areas of Wheeling.

Teacher Salary Dispute Under Study

The High School Dist. 214 board of education and teachers association each told its side of the story this week in a meeting held before a fact-finding board called in to help resolve their dispute on the 1972-73 teachers salary contract.

The board bargaining team and the Dist. 214 Education Association met most of the day with the fact-finding board, made up of one representative from each side and a professional arbitrator selected through the American Arbitration Association.

Following the session, the arbitrator told both sides he will prepare a report on the dispute to be submitted for their consideration, according to a district spokesman. However, the arbitrator said he would not be able to have the report within the next 21 days, as required by the district's bargaining procedures.

Under the negotiating rules agreed to by the board and association, if agreement is not reached on the contract after the arbitrator submits his report, the report will be made public.

THE TWO sides agreed to call in the fact-finding team in May, after teachers voted down a proposal submitted by a mediator.

The mediator's proposal called for a $300 reduction in pay for teachers with teachers now in the district of $100 plus the four per cent increment called for in the present contract for an additional year of experience.

Negotiations between the association and board began in January. Dist. 214 schools are scheduled to open after Labor Day this year and last year's teachers' contract may be extended if no agreement is reached by that time.

Final Olympics Tryouts Today

Final tryouts for the Paddock Olympics will be held today at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez, Arlington Heights, beginning at 9 a.m.

Besides finalists and runners up from area neighborhood centers, any boy or girl from 8 to 13 years old may compete. The winners will represent the Arlington Heights Park District at Conant High School on Aug. 1 and 2.

The order of events today are: 9 a.m., standing long jump; 9:45 a.m., 50-yard dash; 10:30 a.m., jump rope for girls and basketball free throw for boys and 11:15 a.m., 10-yard dash.

After lunch, events will be: 1 p.m., softball throw for boys and kickball for girls; 1:45 p.m., kickball for boys and softball throw for girls; 2:30 p.m., tug of war and free throw for girls and 3:15 p.m., team shuttle relay.

WHAT ARE CATARACTS?

In Latin, cataract means "waterfall." To ancient medical observers this appeared to best describe the hazy film that seemed to fall over the lens. Today a cataract is defined as any clouding of the lens that alters or blocks the passage of light and thus interferes with vision. Cataracts are not growths and are not contagious. They are not caused or hastened by reading, sewing or watching movies.

Among known causes are diseases such as diabetes, hereditary influence, radiation, dietary deficiencies, and chemical damage. Early diagnosis is important. Sometimes surgery is indicated, in others just eyeglasses may do the job. Occasionally drops can be prescribed to control the vision.

Faces Rape Charge In Second Case

Charge Forest Hospital Aide Sexually Assaulted Girl, 8

A Libertyville man was charged late yesterday with sexually assaulting an eight-year-old Des Plaines girl, who according to reports at the time, was awakened in the bedroom of her home June 26, carried outside, and attacked.

Allen J. Boerschinger, 32, a psychiatric therapist at Forest Hospital, 555 Wilson Lane, Des Plaines, was arrested at his father's home in Libertyville by Des Plaines detectives after the girl reportedly identified him.

Boerschinger had been charged Monday with breaking into a Morton Grove home, raping a 35-year-old housewife and then sexually assaulting her 12-year-old daughter.

He had been released on $10,000 bond in the Morton Grove case. Des Plaines police linked Boerschinger to the attack on the Des Plaines girl after his arrest by Morton Grove police who reportedly caught him 15 minutes after the attacks there.

HE HAS BEEN suspended from Forest Hospital according to hospital officials.

Des Plaines police said they could only release the fact that Boerschinger was arrested for the Des Plaines crime and is being held in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Police said there is no evidence at this time connecting Boerschinger with assaults on two other Des Plaines children in April and earlier this month.

Morton Grove police said the home where Monday night's attack in that village took place, was apparently picked at random by the attacker.

A Morton Grove police spokesman said Boerschinger was arrested while driving in his car about two blocks from the scene of the attack.

THE SPOKESMAN refused to comment whether a brick found in the woman's home was used as a weapon by the attacker who apparently broke into the home through an unlocked door.

Boerschinger is scheduled to appear in the Skokie branch of Cook County Circuit Court to face the Morton Grove charge on Aug. 10.

In addition to a charge of indecent liberties with a child, concerning the Des Plaines case, Boerschinger was also charged with burglary for breaking into the girl's home.

Associate Judge Russell Dolce set Boerschinger's bond on the Des Plaines charges at $50,000 and tentatively scheduled a court date of Aug. 1 in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Full-Time Director Needed?

Youth Services Study Soon

A Des Plaines City Council committee will begin a city-wide survey of youth activities and services as part of its study of the possible need for a full-time city youth director.

According to committee chairman, Ald. Kenneth Kehe (2nd), committee members will contact representatives of city churches, and spokesmen for area schools and park districts to determine what added services and aid may be needed by Des Plaines youth.

Kehe's committee met yesterday with spokesmen for the Maine Township Mental Health Association, the Place for People Youth Center, 1415 Ellinwood St., and the Des Plaines Police Department youth division.

DISCUSSIONS SHOWED that a full-time youth director may be needed to coordinate present youth services, such as counseling and medical aid, and to create new youth facilities, such as a full-time adult supervised recreational centers, Kehe said.

However, much more research would be needed before the committee could decide if it should recommend appointment of a city youth director, Kehe said. In any case, a director could not be hired until 1973, because the present city budget does not include a salary for a youth director, he said.

Those speaking at yesterday's meeting included Dr. Edward Barnowski, director of the Maine Township Mental Health center, the Rev. David Russell, former director of the Place for People center, and Lawrence Zumbroek, a Des Plaines youth officer.

According to Kehe, Rev. Russell favors hiring a youth director to give counseling to young people, to coordinate the efforts of various groups — including the Des Plaines Youth Commission, the Des Plaines Youth Coordinating Council, and other service agencies, such as the Salvation Army.

This director could also give expert advice to community, church and PTA groups on youth problems and needed youth programs, Rev. Russell told the committee.

KEHE AND OTHER aldermen asked members of the city youth commission and Glen Helms of the Coordinating Council whether more should be done to aid the "five or six per cent" of young people who get into trouble with police, or whether more should be done to provide activities with the "95 per cent who we only hear about in connection with athletics or scholastic success," he said.

The council committee will meet Aug. 22 to discuss its latest findings. New city personnel manager, Jesse Thornton, will advise the committee then on what other municipalities have done to help young people, Kehe said.

Criminal youth offenses have increased steadily in Des Plaines, according to police statistics. In 1971, juvenile offense arrests rose 35 per cent from 1,118 in 1970 to 1,505.

Arrest for narcotics-use violations rose almost 50 per cent from 42 to 62. Burglary arrests jumped 117 per cent from 35 in 1970 to 76 in 1971.

Tollway Construction To End Today?

Construction along the Northwest Tollway may be completed in time for weekend traffic.

Work on the 11-mile project is proceeding ahead of schedule, according to Fran O'Connor, a spokesman for the Illinois State Toll Highway Authority.

Barring rain, which would delay the drawing of lane marker, the three eastbound lanes between Meacham Road and Kennedy Expressway may be open for traffic tonight, she said.

But until completion of the work, eastbound traffic will be limited to one lane. The three westbound lanes were opened last Wednesday night, nearly two weeks ahead of schedule.

Work also was completed last week on the Tri-State Tollway which underwent 11 miles of resurfacing immediately south of the Northwest Tollway interchange.

SHOULDER WORK, lane markings and the removal of barricades are all that remain to be done on the eastbound Northwest Tollway, according to Mrs. O'Connor.

If the three lanes are not open tonight, she said they probably would be opened sometime over the weekend or "definitely" by Tuesday, the deadline for completion of the project.

Total cost of both projects was $5.6 million.

Additional work may be scheduled for next summer, according to Mrs. O'Connor. Formal approval is expected for the addition of a third lane between Harlem Avenue and U.S. Rte. 66-Interstate 55 on the Tri-State Tollway.

Consideration is also being given to expanding the Northwest Tollway from four to six lanes west of Meacham Road, and the Tri-State Tollway from four to six lanes north of Rte. 137.

Social Security Office Opening Here

The Social Security Administration is opening a new office at 770 Lee St., Des Plaines. The office will open Aug. 21, and offer complete services relating to the social security program for residents of Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Park Ridge, Niles, Elk Grove Village and Rosemont.

Persons from those communities were previously serviced at either Chicago's Northwest Social Security office or the Tuesday morning service station in Des Plaines.

The new office will be open weekdays from 8:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., except on National holidays. The Social Security office accepts applications for monthly cash benefits and handles all matters in connection with retirement, survivors, disability and Medicare insurance under the Social Security Act.

For greater convenience, residents are urged to contact the Social Security Service Center by telephoning 239-7000, which could save them a trip to the Des Plaines office.

Mass Transit Systems Debated

City Hits 'Interference' With CTA

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Alternative plans for a mass transportation system in the Chicago Metropolitan area were debated yesterday before a subcommittee of the state commission for economic development.

The hearings were dampened shortly before noon when a representative of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley said the city opposes state interference with the Chicago Transit Authority (CTA) and other mass transportation within the metropolitan area.

The city's opposition brought additional importance to one of the three proposed legislative bills which would establish a suburban area transportation system excluding the City of Chicago.

The commission heard testimony from state and federal officials, commuter railroad companies, the City of Chicago and CTA, suburban bus firms, a coalition of suburban governments and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPPC). Various citizens' groups, business firms and organizations of businessmen also testified before the subcommittee.

The subcommittee will make recommendations to the governor and the state legislature on plans for a unified mass transportation system in the Chicago metropolitan area.

State Rep. Paul Randolph, R-Chicago, who chaired the meeting, is the chief sponsor of one of the three bills proposing a solution to the mass transportation problem.

The majority of those who testified supported Randolph's bill for a Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System (CMATS).

The bill calls for one agency to supervised mass transportation within the six-county metropolitan area.

STATE REP. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, and State Rep. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, testified on behalf of their two bills which are alternative solutions to the area's mass transit problems.

Schlickman's proposal would create a Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA) to expand the CTA into the suburban area. He called for use of NIPPC as the planning agency for mass transportation.

Glass, whose bill would create the Suburban Mass Transportation Authority (SMTA), said he feels unification in the suburban area must be achieved before the suburbs can join with the CTA for an area-wide system.

Rep. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, speaker of the Illinois House, came out in support of the consolidation of all mass transit operations in the metropolitan area under a single authority. Blair declined to endorse any of the three existing bills, however.

Blair's testimony, along with comments from others, seemed to indicate that a consolidated bill incorporating the best features of all three proposals may be introduced when the legislature reconvenes.

Alan Boyd, president of the Illinois Central R.R., endorsed the CMATS proposal on behalf of all six commuter railroads serving the Chicago area.

Boyd said the railroads would not oppose changes in the CMATS plan, such as altering means to finance the agency.

E. F. BOSLEY, representing suburban bus firms, recommended utilizing the existing mass transit districts and reimbursing individual carriers for their losses. He said the bus firms "do not want to be forced out of private business."

George Karambles, CTA operational manager, expressed concern that none of the proposed legislation has provided an adequate means of financing an area mass transit system.

Howell J. Holloman, president of the Village of Lombard, said suburban communities on a subcommittee of the Council of Governments of Cook County are supporting the SMTA bill. He said without equality of representation for both the city and the suburbs in any mass transit governing agency, "there can be no successful marriage."

State Rep. Brian Duff, R-Wilmette, called for the apportionment of the entire state into regional transportation districts under one agency.

A statement made on behalf of Sen. Charles Percy called for enactment of the CMATS proposal.

Others to testify at the hearings included spokesmen for the Chicago and North Western Ry., the League of Women Voters, the Save Our Suburbs Committee, Illinois State Chamber of Commerce and the United Transportation Union, the Greater Lake County Mass Transit District.

Others represented the Greater Michigan Avenue Association, the Chicago Metropolitan Planning and Housing Council, the Illinois Department of Transportation, the U. S. Department of Transportation, the Ford Motor Co., and the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

A REPRESENTATIVE of Mayor Daley yesterday sharply criticized suburban areas for not developing their own public transportation operations.

Milton Pikarsky, city commissioner of public works, termed proposed legislation a "takeover of the CTA."

Pikarsky spoke for the Commission on Economic Development.

He said merging the CTA and suburban transportation systems "would be like mixing apples and oranges."

The Daley spokesman said local citizens through use of home rule powers should create their own mass transportation authority to combine community efforts.

Pikarsky said all proposals to date would take control of the CTA and other mass transit agencies away from local citizens and place it with the state.

Mass transit "is a local and regional function and is not a prerogative of the state," he said. He called for federal and state revenue and matching funds as well as financial commitments from local government to finance mass transportation.

"Chicago is the only local unit of government that has accepted its financial responsibility for assistance to public transportation," he said.

New Hanrahan Trial Twist

Black Panther In Raid
May Have Been Informer

CHICAGO (UPI) — An attorney defending police raiders hinted Thursday that one of the Black Panthers in the weapons raid case may have been a police informer.

Attorney John P. Coughlin alluded in court to reports that information may have been fed to police by Panther Louis Truelock, the only occupant of the raided apartment to have signed a statement admitting he fired shots at police.

Survivors of the pre-dawn Dec. 4, 1969 raid have charged that an informant tipped police to an arms cache in the West Side apartment, but this was the first time attorneys for police have acknowledged the possibility.

THE SUGGESTION added a new dimension to the trial of Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan and 13 codefendants.

The defendants are charged with conspiracy to alter and conceal evidence about the raid in which Panther leaders Mark Clark and Fred Hampton were killed. Four of the seven other Panthers in the apartment were wounded.

Truelock was not injured in the raid.

The police informant angle was revealed in questioning by Coughlin of Francis Andrew, a member of the law firm that took statements from Truelock and at least three other survivors of the raid.

In those statements, which turned up in court for the first time last Friday, Tuesday, Truelock said he fired two shots at police raiders. The other Panthers, who unlike Truelock did not sign their statements, admitted having weapons in hand but denied firing shots.

COUGHLIN, representing the deputy police superintendent who led the raid, asked Andrew "have you ever been informed that Louis Truelock was suspected of being a stool pigeon for the Chicago police department in the Black Panther party?" Andrew admitted that he had heard that rumor.

Later Coughlin asked Andrew if at the time Truelock's statement was taken "had you been informed that Truelock was suspected of having tipped off police to weapons in the apartment?" Andrew replied that he had "heard discussions about that."

Andrew told Coughlin that he did not recall reading Truelock's statement admitting that he fired shots at police. But he told Coughlin that despite the statement he did not believe that police were fired on by the Panthers.

Cook County Real Estate
Activity Record Reported

County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen reported real estate activity continued its upswing in Cook County the first six months of 1972, averaging close to 10 per cent above the record-setting pace of 1971.

Transfers climbed 12.2 per cent from 33,359 to 37,450 in the comparable half-year periods.

Mortgages number 47,536, up 9.9 per cent from the 43,235 in the first six months of 1971.

Mortgage consideration showed an 8.9 per cent increase from $1,635,610,019 to $1,782,352,107.

Recorder Olsen said that it was likely the record set for mortgage consideration for all of 1971 would be broken this year. Last year mortgage consideration topped $3.8 billion.

Des Plaines Church of Christ sold its property at 305 S. Candota, Mount Prospect, to Casimir C. Barszcz for $34,000, it was announced in the mid-summer Elk Grove Township real estate transfer report from County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

There were 46 sales in Mount Prospect, 15 in Des Plaines, 11 in Arlington Heights, and 48 in Elk Grove Village and the rest of the township.

Olsen recorded the following property transfers for Des Plaines. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by the amount of state revenue stamps on the document ($1 in stamps for each $1,000 of market value).

The transfers are:

96 W. Jeffrey, Des Plaines, Mary B. Slater to Carl P. Haupt, $41; 1336 Pennsylvania, Des Plaines, Pat Variano to Keith Stewart, $43,500; 431 Marshall Dr., Des Plaines, Vernon F. Kane to Jos. Scelfo, $47; 741 Westmere, Des Plaines, Thomas J. Sobeski to Vincent J. Holton, Jr., $33; 542 King Ln., Des Plaines, Walter Dreger to Donald L. Knupp, $49; 36 Westfield Lane, Des Plaines, Geo. Kostelec to Wm. A. Castile, $40; 247 Norman Ct., Des Plaines, John C. Kaye to Arthur A. Belmonte, $46; 1012 Seymour, Des Plaines, Paul L. Johnson to Matthew G. Spatzek, $35; 439 Westmere Rd., Des Plaines, Leroy W. Nervo to John Maher, $42; 839 Marshall Dr., Des Plaines, Kenneth O. Anderson to Jas. A. Best, $56; 239 Bradley, Des Plaines, Ernest Spyron to Lester H. Wetendorf, $17; 641 Debra Dr., Des Plaines, Gerald Agiewicz to Harry G. Hodges, $33,500; 1028 Arnold Ct., Des Plaines, Maurice S. Hallihan to Salvatore Portanova, $78,500; 146 W. Dover Dr., Des Plaines, Leonard J. Kolas to Geo. A. Lypp, $38; 246 W. Brentwood Dr., Des Plaines, Sanford E. Egedal to Richard H. Quast, $48,50.

Another First
For 'Big Mac'

McDonald's Corp., which opened its first drive-in restaurant in Des Plaines in 1955 and its 1,000th outlet here in 1968, now had added its 2,000th restaurant on the city's west side.

The new facility, located in the Market Place shopping center on Golf Road just east of Elmhurst Road, will be operated by Alex Karis and James Schenk. Arthur Rubloff and Co. served as broker in handling the lease for the restaurant.

The new facility features a patio with provisions for indoor and outdoor seating. McDonald's now has restaurants in all 50 states, Canada, Japan, Australia, Germany, the Netherlands and the Caribbean.

Health Education Program At Maine South

Students Truly 'Learning By Doing'

Maine South High School students are learning about drugs by playing the role of drug addicts. They're getting to know about ecology by pretending to be industrialists and environmentalists. And they're learning about mental health by looking at each other's problems.

The students are enrolled in a pilot health education program being developed at Maine South this summer. The program, financed by the State of Illinois, will be made available to the three other Maine Township high schools and more than 100 other Illinois secondary schools this fall.

Maine South health education instructors Thomas Higgins, Candace Purdy and Dale Braddy hope to finish their project by Oct. 1. So far this summer, they've been hard at work updating the health curriculum to include changes in medicine and new information on health. They also have been coming up with new methods of teaching health education.

KIDS already have heard that drugs are bad, said Higgins, so new ways have to be used to teach drug education. One method that has been used with some success at Maine South allows a few students to assume the role of a drug addict. Other students in the class are given information about the addict's family life and personal history. They then interview him about his drug problem.

"The learning process is in the questioning," said Higgins, and students learn the causes of drug abuse.

"It's not enough to tell them that drugs are bad," said Higgins. "We try to learn the reasons why people use mood modifiers" such as tobacco, drugs and alcohol. Students try to understand what is wrong with society, why people can't cope with their lives and what has to be changed, he said.

They learn about mental health by taking a look at each other's emotional problems. Each student describes something that is bothering him in a note and hands it in to the teacher. The teacher distributes the anonymous notes to other students and they in turn try to solve that problem.

"What is really going on here," said Higgins, "is that students find out that their problems aren't unique and other students often share their feelings."

MENTAL HEALTH is the most important part of the health education curriculum, according to Higgins. When people learn to "understand themselves" and can cope with their problems, then social problems such as venereal disease, drug abuse and alcoholism will be reduced.

In addition to drug abuse, venereal disease, ecology, and mental health, a section on consumer health has also been included in the curriculum. It contains information on acupuncture, organic foods, diets, and fraudulent health advertising.

"People know more about ancient Roman history than their own body," said Higgins. "They need to be more aware of the gimmicks used to get their money."

A section on medical emergencies has been included that teaches students what action to take in case of sudden illness or injury.

Although the three teachers developing the curriculum have master's degrees in health education, the new curriculum is not written for health specialists, said Higgins. Often physical education teachers, home economics or science teachers are assigned to the health education program, in other schools.

"We're trying to design the curriculum so 70 to 80 per cent of the schools in Illinois can use it verbatim," said Higgins.

Higgins is vice president of the Illinois Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and a member of the board of directors of the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

School District Will Lose $260,000 State Aid Next Year

Des Plaines Elementary Dist. 62 will lose about $260,000 in state aid next year due to an increase in assessed property valuation in the district and a drop in school enrollment, according to Harold Brieschke, Dist. 62 director of business services.

The proposed 1972-73 school budget, reflecting the reduced number of students, lists a 5.7 per cent cut in operating expenditures as compared to last year. Education spending is reduced from $7.1 million last year to $6.4 million in building expenditures would be cut from $1.5 million to $1.2 million under the proposed budget.

Most of the cuts are the result of planned reductions in spending on educational and office equipment and supplies, Brieschke said.

THE REDUCTION in state aid will result from increases in the district's tax base and a drop in average daily attendance. With no change in the $1.31 per $100 education tax rate, this year's property tax revenue totaled $4.93 million as of July 1, compared to $1.57 million on July 1, 1971, reflecting the increased tax base.

In addition, school enrollment, which dropped by 73 students last year, is expected to go down again this fall, Brieschke said.

The Dist. 62 tentative budget is on display at the administration building, 777 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, and a public hearing on the budget has been scheduled for Aug. 28.

The new budget allows for an increase of 5.7 per cent in administrative salaries and 7.6 per cent in teacher salaries for the 1972-73 school year. Dist. 62 teachers are still negotiating salaries for the 1972-73 school year.

Site acquisition spending was reduced from $78,000 last year to $25,000 because the district does not plan to purchase any property this year, said Brieschke. Allocations for building improvements and additional equipment were also cut.

150 Ducklings Find New Forest Preserve Homes

The Cook County Forest Preserve District has 150 new feathered residents this week as the result of a research project.

Five-week-old mallard ducklings were released Monday at the Crabtree Nature Center in Barrington and in five other areas throughout the district.

The Max McGraw Wildlife Foundation and the forest preserve district are cooperating in the project to learn more about current waterfowl use of the preserves and to increase the number and variety of wild ducks and geese visiting or living in the waters.

The ducks are an experimental strain hatched and reared for the first three weeks of life without contact with man. The isolation is designed to improve survival and behavior of the birds.

The mallards are a cross between wild drakes and hand-reared hens.

Pale green plastic saddles have been placed on the bills of the ducks to enable the foundation and district biologists to distinguish them from other birds.

Persons who see one of the marked ducks are asked to report the sighting to the Crabtree Nature Center in Barrington.

Attends Art Session

Jill Alke, 2053 Craig Dr., Des Plaines, attended a week-long session of art instruction July 9-15 at Allerton Park, the University of Illinois conference center near Monticello, sponsored by the University's division of university extension and the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. Miss Alke was sponsored by the Des Plaines Junior Woman's Club.

Developer Seeks Site For Housing

by TOM VON MALDER.

A private developer is attempting to purchase the Central School site in downtown Mount Prospect for construction of federally financed senior citizen housing.

The Herald has learned that Kenroy Inc. of Skokie is interested in buying the site, slightly in excess of 2½ acres, from the current owners who hold the site through a land trust.

A representative of Kenroy has talked to Alexander Magnus, the owners' spokesman, about the possible sale of the property at least once.

"Certainly we are trying to make a deal for the site," Bill Dillon, an attorney for Kenroy, said yesterday. He said an associate of his had talked to Magnus.

Magnus at first said he knew nothing about Kenroy's desire to buy the land. Then he said, "Someone did call one time but it was just an off-hand conversation."

DILLON SAID of the site, "If we were to buy it (Central School), I would think that (elderly housing) would be a good use," Dillon said. "It is close to transportation and shopping."

Dillon added that Kenroy's interest in the property was not new. He said Kenroy was the second highest bidder when the land was auctioned off to Magnus and the land trust. The sale price was about $410,000.

There will be more talks with Magnus, according to Dillon, but no dates have been set yet.

Dillon indicated that if Kenroy was to build elderly housing, the firm would seek federal funding for the project. When asked what type of federal funding would be sought, he said, "We haven't got into that that deeply." Kenroy officials have talked with "various financing bodies," he said.

THERE HAD BEEN talk of negotiations between Magnus and the Jewel Co. for the sale of the site and the construction of a Jewel Foodstore. Asked about rumors that the talks had fallen through, Magnus refused to comment.

It is believed that the relatively small size of the lot (for a store site) and potential dedication of land along the public right-of-ways both were obstacles to the Jewel plan.

Currently, the village is attempting to purchase two 7-foot-wide strips of the property along Central Road and Main Street for the planned widening of the intersection. The village has had an appraisal made which values the land at about $600 more than the budgeted $18,000. Magnus said his group's appraisal has not yet been finished.

If the two sides fail to reach a settlement relatively soon, the village will start condemnation proceedings to get the land, according to Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert this week said he is hopeful that negotiations will settle the issue before condemnation proceedings have to be instituted.

Taxpayers May Get Bigger Child Care Break

Employed taxpayers with child care expenses may get a bigger tax break in 1972, according to Roger C. Beck, district director of Internal Revenue Service for the northern Illinois area.

The Revenue Act of 1971 has greatly liberalized the deduction for the care of children, disabled dependents and disabled spouses. Beginning in 1972, taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes of $18,000 or less may be able to deduct up to $400 per month for household and dependent care expenses.

The deduction is reduced 50 cents for each dollar of income more than $18,000. For example, a taxpayer with an adjusted gross income of $20,000 would be limited to $3,800 (the maximum annual deduction of $4,800 less one-half of $2,000).

To qualify, a taxpayer must be employed and provide more than half the cost of maintaining a household for a dependent child under 15, a disabled dependent of any age, or a disabled spouse, Beck added.

FOR THE FIRST TIME, household expenses incurred to permit the taxpayer to be gainfully employed may also be deducted. For example, amounts paid for the services of a maid, cook or other domestic help can qualify.

Expenses incurred outside the home for the care of a child under 15 (as, for example, in a day care center) may also qualify. However, expenses outside the home are limited to $200 per month for one child, $300 for two children or $400 for three or more children.

However, these expenses shall not include educational expenses incurred for a child in the first or higher grade.

If a deduction is claimed for the care of a disabled dependent, the deduction must be reduced by the amount by which the total of the dependent's adjusted gross income and any nontaxable disability payment he receives exceeds $750. In the case of a disabled spouse, the expenses must be reduced by nontaxable disability payments.

As under the old law, a deduction may not be taken for payments to anyone who could be your dependent.

Taxpayers must itemize deductions in order to claim child care expenses. As with all itemized deductions, good records must be kept and expenses documented.

Dear Dorothy: Because I've learned how important it is to keep warranties when buying most everything these days, I keep them all in one drawer. With them is a notebook on which I mark the date of purchase of each item, then add any service calls to the data. It's silly to try to remember all these details and putting them down in black and white helps future transactions. — Jenny S.

Dear Dorothy: Noticing various comments on the advantages of nonfat dry milk, thought I'd add my two cents' worth to the discussion. It's wonderful to take on picnics. I just add cold water when we get to our destination. Also when boiling potatoes for mashing I use the dry milk powder and as much of the potato water as necessary in the mashing. A lump of butter and you have as good mashed potatoes as you would want, besides including the nutrients usually thrown away in the water. — Helen Cook.

Dear Dorothy: Would you mind putting something in your column about never putting anything in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator or freezer unless properly wrapped in either foil or moisture-vaporproof paper? My mother misinterpreted the directions which said to remove the paper from the meat, who is now aware of this. — Rayana West.

Dear Dorothy: Inasmuch as I've always made cooking a hobby, I'm usually looking for shortcuts or ways to make the job easier. Trying to bone chicken one day, I found the job a cinch after the chicken was partially frozen. — Steven Daniel.

Next On The Agenda

SPARES

The Rev. Scott N. Jones, vicar of the Campus Congregation of St. Thomas a' Becket at Northwestern University, will ask "Is the 'New Morality' Immoral?" when he addresses the Spares Sunday Evening Club on Aug. 13.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, 2328 Central Road, Glenview. During August, the club holds only one meeting.

The Rev. Mr. Jones' topic will concern itself with today's youth culture, counter-culture, sex, drugs, student power and issues of race and war as viewed by young people.

In another portion of the meeting Charles Barnstead, club music and sound man and bowling chairman, will be honored for his service to the club over the past three and a half years.

Single, widowed, divorced and legally separated adults, as well as guests, are invited.

For Garden Buffs

"Landscape Design for Home and Community" and "Summer Pruning" will be topics for two programs next week at the Botanic Gardens, Edens Expressway between Dundee and Lake Cook Roads.

Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. the Garden Club of Illinois will present the landscape design program featuring two architects. Saturday, Aug. 5, a program on pruning will be given at 10 a.m., 11 and 3 p.m.

A Holiday Wedding Theme

Red, white and blue was the color scheme for the July 1 wedding of Pamela Sue Roth of Prospect Heights and Earl Philip of Schaumburg. The bride's parents are the Alfred A. Roths of 204 Chester Lane, Prospect Heights.

The bridal gown of dotted organza over taffeta, which was made by the bride's grandmother, featured a square, Juliet neckline, Empire waist and a long, triple-flounced skirt. It was trimmed with bands of embroidered daisies and had long of mutton sleeves. The veil of French illusion trimmed in matching daisies was attached to a crown of seed pearl petals. The bride carried a bouquet of white daisies with Stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

NANCY PFEIFER of Glen Ellyn was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Susan Pierce of Schaumburg, Cynthia Philip of Waukegan, sister of the groom, and Laurie Roth, sister of the bride. They wore red and white checked peasant-style gowns of sheer gingham with eyelet-embroidered organza ruffled collars and embroidered daisy trim. Their bouquets were composed of red carnations, white daisies and blue cornflowers in white wicker baskets.

The flower girl, 5-year-old Joy Finlayson of Wauconda, wore a matching dress. Ring bearer was Darren Sprow, 6, also of Wauconda.

The groom's brother, Don Philip of Panama City, Fla., stood up as best man, and ushers were Bruce Illingworth of Wheeling, Bill Laursen of Schaumburg, and Randy Roth, brother of the bride.

HIGHLIGHT OF the 11 a.m. ceremony in Prospect Heights Community Church was a flute solo by the bride's sister. Afterward, a reception was held at Old Orchard Country Club for 200 guests. The couple then left on a brief honeymoon to Lake Geneva, Wis., but are planning a delayed honeymoon trip to Europe in the spring.

The bride graduated from Wheeling High School, Western Illinois University and Northwest Community Hospital School of Radiology. She is employed at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines.

The groom is a graduate of Northern Illinois University with bachelor's and master's degrees and teaches at Wheeling High School.

Former Women Marines Form Area Chapter

Marge Hancock of Mount Prospect has been named vice president of a newly formed unit of the Women Marines Association. Thirty former women marines recently gathered at Glenview Naval Air Station to organize the Osborne Chicago Area Chapter.

Mrs. Bernadette Kruszynski, wife of a Chicago policeman, is president.

The chapter, 30th in the nationwide Association, honors the late Blanche C. Osborne, a Chicagoan who was the third woman to join the Marine Corps in World War I. During World War II she wrote a newspaper column, "Soldier's Friend," in the Chicago American, now Chicago Today.

All former women marines are welcome into membership. Marge Hancock may be contacted locally at 509 Holly Ave., Mount Prospect, for further information.

The Association's convention this year will be held Aug. 15-19 in Honolulu.

Begin Planning For Cotillion

Cotillion VII, the annual benefit for Holy Family Hospital Des Plaines, was officially begun when Mrs. William H. Sims, Des Plaines, hosted a tea for all committee heads. Mrs. Sims is general chairman of the benefit.

All areas serviced by Holy Family Hospital were represented at the tea.

Cotillion VII will be held this year at the Continental Plaza Hotel. Several young women from the area will make their bow to the clergy at the cotillion Friday, Dec. 29.

Those wishing further information are asked to call 824-5010 or 827-3171 after 12 noon.

Bakalis Will Intervene In Disputes

School boards and teachers' groups unable to settle contract disputes before school opens this fall are likely to get some help from state School Supt. Michael Bakalis — whether they want it or not.

Bakalis recently announced formal procedures he will follow this fall in dealing with unsettled teacher contract disputes.

The procedures include an offer of voluntary mediation or fact-finding and also the possibility that Bakalis will step in "if the situation appears serious" even if the parties to a dispute refuse the voluntary services.

In addition, Bakalis will supply information to school districts involved in negotiations about finances, labor relations or anything else.

"Last year there were 35 or 40 situations in which the superintendent was involved, either privately or publicly," Mike Braver, public relations officer for Bakalis, said. "These procedures are nothing new, but this is the first time we have formalized them."

LAST YEAR, Bakalis personally intervened in a bitter teachers' strike and lockout in Decatur. After efforts to mediate the dispute, Bakalis got a court order forcing the schools to reopen and asked a court to impose a settlement. The case has been appealed.

Braver said the question of Bakalis' jurisdiction in such disputes will eventually be settled by the Illinois Supreme Court, but until then, he said, "if there is a really serious disruption of the education process, we believe that we not only have the authority but the right to settle the situation."

Braver said the belief is supported by a portion of the Illinois School Code that says the state superintendent can hear and resolve disputes.

He added that the state office does not believe there will be a repetition of the Decatur situation anywhere in Illinois this year. "We hope we don't have to use any of these procedures," he said.

Oregon Students Get Chance To Do Their Own Research

BEAVERTON, Ore. (UPI) — The average scholarship consists of a stipend and a pat on the back.

Recipients of the Summer Science Scholarships receive not only $800, but also valuable work experience on scientific projects at the Oregon Regional Primate Research Center.

The scholarship program is three years old and this summer is aiding 11 students, mainly from Portland-area high schools. The first scholarship was awarded in 1969 by the Beaverton Women's Club.

The students started their summer jobs June 14 this year, and will continue to work through the summer.

DR. EDWARD S. West, chairman of the Summer Science Scholarship committee, and assistant to the director of the center, said, "the object of the program is to take highly selective and brilliant students and expose them to scientific research so they can have some background to help them choose their life's work."

"It's so much better to participate in scientific research rather than just read about it," he said.

Applications from students in area high schools are received by the scholarship committee, and scholastic ratings, teacher recommendations, college entrance examination scores and an interview are part of the selection process, West said.

Once a student has been selected, the primate center has research scientists who have agreed to take on the students and review the applications. West said the scientists then choose five students they would like to have work with them — and, if possible, that is where the students are placed.

"If we have someone coming in who has experience working with computers, we can put them to work with our computer program," West said.

AN EXTENSIVE computer system for storing medical and genetic information on the animals at the center is part of the research center's highly technical medical and social research.

Students interested in chemistry normally work with biochemists and those interested in pathology often work in the surgery room.

Cheerleaders Here Cited At Clinic

River Trails Junior High School cheerleaders won two superior ratings recently at the 10th annual Egyptian Cheerleaders Clinic at the DuQuoin, Ill. State Fairgrounds.

Representing River Trails were Barbara Buck, Cathy DeWaal, Wendy Hawes, Sandra Laisch, Lisa Muenzer, Sandra Borowski, Barbara Bouvier, Christine Boyle, Kathy Eldridge, Kathy Krug, Kelly Howe, Barbara Heller, Jeanne Marinelli and Nicole Merk. Cathy Burns is the squad's sponsor.

About 350 girls from Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas attended the camp.

Relief Coming For Rte. 53 Drivers

Relief is on the way for Ill. Rte. 53 motorists with the new Interstate-90 scheduled to open sometime in September.

James Pitz of the Illinois Division of Highways, said yesterday that construction was on schedule and predicted the September target date would be met, barring bad weather. He said work had been delayed by the cement masons strike, but paving has now resumed.

The only work remaining is some paving and shoulder work on the stretch between Irving Park Road and Devon Avenue. When this work is finished, the highway will connect the Eisenhower Expressway with the Northwest Tollway. Drivers will no longer be forced to use the narrow, two-lane Rte. 53.

No figures were immediately available on the total cost of the construction project because it has gone on for so many years. Pitz said the Irving Park Road to Devon Avenue section cost $4 million.

Improvements for Rte. 53 call for the construction of a new roadway paralleling the present road, south of the Northwest Tollway, but not part of the existing Rte. 53. This freeway will be named Rte. 53 and the present road will be renamed.

NORTH OF THE Northwest Tollway, construction on the new roadway has been completed to Dundee Road on what is called Ill. Rte. 53. Pitz said that this section of highway may be given a U. S. route number in the future.

Construction started in 1960. Originally the state was only planning to improve Rte. 53. It was only after construction started that the state began thinking of putting in an interstate route.

The first stage of construction began between Algonquin and Kirchoff roads in 1960 and took about two years to finish. The construction crews then moved to the area between Kirchoff and Rand roads. By 1969 the entire stretch between Algonquin and Dundee roads was completed.

Because the first plan was for improvement to an existing state road, modifications had to be made to the construction to convert it to a new interstate route. Bridges were redesigned to make them waterproof. Thicker concrete had to be poured to handle the heavier traffic load. When finished, the concrete on I-90 should have a 20-year lifespan.

Willow Road Paving At Slough Slated

The stretch of Willow Road through the Hillcrest slough in Prospect Heights will be paved in about two weeks, according to Tom McHugh, a Cook County Highway Department official.

The paving is part of a larger project involving similar work on some 24 miles of road in various parts of the county. Included will be widening and paving of the one-half mile section of Willow Road between Elmhurst and Wheeling roads near where the slough is located.

The road is to be widened to a 28-foot base and paving will provide for two 12-foot wide lanes.

"The entire project," McHugh said, "is to improve the roads involved to meet county standards."

HOWEVER, Bob Braude a member of the "Save the Slough Committee," a group of citizens organized to preserve the Hillcrest wetland areas said the project could deal a serious blow to the organization's efforts.

Removal of the road across the slough has been proposed by the group as a possible solution to saving the environmentally troubled area.

Without the road, members contend, a natural flow between the polluted north half and the relatively clean south half would be restored and the area would cleanse itself within a few years.

"It looks as though the road has been paved for good and it doesn't seem like it will ever be taken out," Braude said.

He added that the committee has also been pushing for replacement of the conduit pipe under the road through which water flows from the north to south half.

"NOT NEARLY enough water flows through the pipe for any cleansing action to take place and we wanted it replaced," he continued. "But once the road is paved, the conduit will be extremely hard to take out."

Braude said he and fellow committee member Dolores Haugh had been in touch with county highway officials who told them the road would be paved only in spots temporarily to fill the holes in it.

Indict Palatine Builder

by STEVE BROWN

A Palatine man was among more than a dozen Chicago area contractors and government officials indicted by a federal grand jury on a variety of charges including bribery.

Indicted on two counts of bribery were Royal R. Faubion, 1106 Pepper Tree Dr. Faubion was president and general manager of the Chicago division of Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. when the alleged offenses occurred.

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Chicago said the indictment alleges that Faubion bribed Lawrence E. Abbott, 54, an employee of the Federal Housing Administration, on May 17 and July 27, 1971 in an effort to gain Abbott's approval for Kaufman and Broad development plans.

FAUBION is serving as president of American Continental Homes, a subsidiary of American Finance Corp.

Kaufman and Broad officials in Los Angeles said they were not aware what development may have been involved in the alleged bribe incident.

Company officials stressed that they cooperated fully with the Federal Bureau of Investigation probe into the matter. They also stated that neither Kaufman and Broad nor any of its subsidiaries were named in the indictment.

Faubion joined Kaufman and Broad in 1969. He was formerly a vice president for Cambro-Kendall, a Louisville building company.

The federal indictment alleges Faubion gave Abbott $800, three cases of liquor and a money clip in the two bribery incidents.

BARRINGTON SQUARE in Hoffman Estates, Pepper Tree Farms and Heatherlea are among the local Kaufman and Broad developments.

The company is recognized as one of the largest home builders in the Chicago area.

Another former Kaufman and Broad official, Maurice Sanderman of Highland Park, was also indicted for bribery.

Abbott and the three other indicted FHA officials have been suspended without pay.

Roselle Building Lead In Rand P

Des Plaines Chrysler Plymouth added further proof that they are able to challenge Roselle Building Materials generally regarded as one of the strongest teams in the area in a spectacular pitchers duel, Chrysler Plymouth and Roselle played a scoreless tie with the game called because of curfew after nine innings. Joe Lee of DPCP was the recipient of excellent defensive play as was Woody Cloom of Roselle. Woody surrendered two singles and fanned 14 while Joe Lee scattered seven hits.

On the same evening Ozark Airline found the range to defeat Doron matinee. Zaglawski had three hits and Ybarra drove three runs to lead the winners and Jim Tarter had two for three for the losers.

Ozark continued to show promise by tightening up the league as they pushed

A Little League football circuit was started in Reno not too long ago,' he said. 'The first year there were three fractured legs. Those kids simply aren't fast. They're not shifty and they get hurt. And at their age their homes are still pretty tender.'

"When I was in my last year of medical school, we did a series of autopsies on football players. Seventy per cent of them had microscopic blood in their urine. Some had enough to color it red."

"Sure the body is resilient and kidney heal, but what concerns me is the total effect after a few years of the kidney being bruised regularly."

Legion Tour

Now Single

Asked if the single elimination tournament was legal, Sackett replied, "All we have to do is determine a winner from this league in any way we want to. Other leagues don't even hold tournaments. We're the only one in the state that does."

"It's too bad it has to be this way. I can't be helped. If people don't like it, tough."

THE CHANGING ARC

MANY PLAYERS ASSUME THAT THE CLUBHEAD MUST FOLLOW THE SAME PATH ON BOTH THE BACKSWING AND DOWNSWING. ARC COMPARISON, HOWEVER, DISPROVES THIS. THE PLANE REMAINS THE SAME, BUT, AS THE ILLUSTRATION SHOWS, THE ARC CHANGES.

THE DELAYED COCKING OF THE WRISTS DURING THE BACKSWING ACCOUNTS FOR A WIDER ARC. THE DELAYED UNCOCKING OF THE WRISTS COMING DOWN COMBINED WITH THE WEIGHT SHIFT CAUSES THE ARC TO DESCEND MORE SHARPLY AND MOVE TO THE LEFT.

Second Half Standings: Glenison's Standard 5-1, Ladendorff Olds 6-4, Optimist 5-4, Fredrick Post 5-3, Brooks Realty 2-5, Des Plaines Bank 5-3.
Ladendorff 920 000-3-2
Des Plaines Bank 010 000-1-5

Mound hurlers: Chip Hollar over Jim Bonaszk, Ladendorff catcher by Chuck Molero in the last of the six.
Brooks 100 000-12-4
Des Plaines Bank 214 132-13-11
 Brooks Realty overcame an 11-4 Bank lead in the top of the fifth by scoring eight runs to take a 12-11 ledger. Bank came back with two runs in the bottom of the sixth to chalk up a 13-12 final Bank doubles smashed by Scott Wilhelm 42, Marty Ryan and Albert Mitchell; triple by Marty Ryan; Brooks' ten banger by Dave Overman. Mound strike for Bank was Tim Monaghan, Scott Etkin of Brooks took the loss.
Glenison's Std. 433 000-11-10
Brooks' Realty 202 000-3-1
 Glenison's pitcher, Pat Harvey, going for four innings notched 10 strikeouts and gave up only one hit; reliever, Joe Beland, fanned three and shut out Brooks for two innings. Mound loser for Brooks, Jeff Ways, fanned 10 Glenison batters. Pat Harvey doubled in this 11-2 win — the sixth straight for Glenison.

Ladendorff 004 100-5-3
 It was Novak over Gustafson in this tight 6-5 Optimist win. Ladendorff's three hits were big ones: Shields and Jost smashed doubles and John Micholowicz banged a three banger. Optimist triple smashed by Clark. Two great snatches in the field highlighted the game. Molero, Ladendorff, right fielder, snagged a hard-hit ball in the top of the fifth with Optimist bases loaded. Bobby Astan made the catch that won the game in the bottom of the sixth with the tying run on second base.

Fredrick Post 101 003 104-15-16
Des Plaines Bank 204 000-3-7
 The first inning for Post was highlighted by Dennis Leutkens' pair of doubles netting six RBI's. Chris Seaver, Post Bat Boy, played in his first Little League game and achieved a doubleplay and a two-bagger. Other doubles smashed by Post's Mike Seer, mound victor, and Paul Schoessling and Bank's Ken Golenio. Chalked up three double plays. Marty Ryan took the loss for Bank.

Glenison's Std. 020 000-2-5
Fredrick Post 200 000-2-5
 Glenison's seventh win goes to Joey Dorsey. Robert Dorsey banged the only Glenison double. Post's Dennis Leutkens smashed his second home run of the year scoring Mike Seer, who singled, to notch the only two Post runs of the game. Mike Barak took the 5-2 loss.

Brooks 201 020 100-6-12
Ladendorff 014 000 103-6-9
 This game was decided in the top of the eighth with all circumstances exactly the same as the moment in the first half when it was called for darkness. Chip Hollar, Ladendorff's winning pitcher, smashed two doubles Rich Seaver slammed a double and Russ Morfy batted a home run to win the ballgame in the bottom of the ninth. Mike Krayn took the loss for Brooks.

3 Teams Share 'Y' Lead

Kre-Ken Patterns saw its slim lead melt into nothing last week in the second night of action for the YMCA Twilight Golf League's second half of the season. The Wednesday league was rained out this week.

Last week's leader was tied by two other teams — B&H Blueprints and Arlington Toyota — with eight points each.

Hal Petersen had the hottest putter of the night with birdies on No. 5 and 6. Bruce Berlee turned the trick at No. 10 and Rog Lietzau did the same at 12.

Ron Brink captured low gross honors with a 39. Mike Gotham was right behind with a 41. Three golfers — Petersen, Art King and Len Franklin — finished with 42s.

Howard Rover shared the low net honors with Chas Everett with 32s. Petersen just missed with a 33.

Phil Jarmack presently leads with the best won-lost record of the season — .857. Brink is just off the pace with an .850.

The auto-makers haven't done it. So we did.

They still haven't unveiled the rustproof car.

And they probably never will. Because real rustproofing can't be handled on an assembly line. And undercoating and ordinary rust-proofing don't help either.

But at Ziebart, we use nine patented spray tools to get inside your car's body. Inside, where rust starts. We cover every square inch of rust-prone metal with our unique sealant. To make your car absolutely rustproof. Up to 35% more soundproof. And worth more money when you trade it in.

There's only one Ziebart process. And only one place to get it. Through an authorized Ziebart dealer. The one nearest you is listed on the back.
